UNILATERAL MOVE

Cyprus Leader Repeals Turkish Pact Of Alliance

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — President Makarios of Cyprus announced Saturday night he has abrogated unilaterally the treaty of alliance which gave Turkey the right to maintain 650 troops on this strategic Mediterranean island.

A short time later, reports of new fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots reached the capital from the northwestern section of the island. British U.N. troops in the area came under fire for the second straight day, but there were no indications of British casualties.

CASUALTIES

However, the reports said one Greek Cypriot was killed and at least six others were wounded in fighting between the villages of Kokkina and Pakyyammos.

A spokesman said Archbishop Makarios told Premier Ismet Inonu of Turkey in a note that he was abrogating the treaty because Turkish troops on the island refused orders to return to their barracks.

The letter to Ankara called the refusal a "flagrant violation of the treaty" and said that Greek Cypriots considered the treaty ended because of it.

The move was considered certain to cause a sharp reaction from Turkey and the Turkish Cypriot community on this island.

Earlier Saturday, Turkey moved 280 fresh troops to the island to rotate part of its 650 - man garrison.

Cypriot abrogation of the treaty of alliance had been predicted for several days by Greek Cypriot sources who said it was part of a plan to end Turkish influence on the island.

The treaty permits Turkey, Greece and Britain to maintain troop garrisons on the island. Another treaty signed by the three powers guarantees the territorial integrity of the island and recognizes its independence.

Communists Set Showdown Meeting In Fall

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass disclosed Saturday that world communism's showdown meeting about Red China is planned for next fall.

This gives plenty of time for all parties to take a position and for Soviet Premier Khrushchev to marshal his strength for the climatic test of strength with Mao Tze-tung.

The Tass disclosure came in a dispatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, reporting that the Bulgarian Communist party was "shoulder to shoulder" with Moscow in the fight with Peking.

The Bulgarians are the only ones to take a public stand except for the Hungarians whom Khrushchev is currently visiting. Most other parties maintained an embarrassed silence.

Not so the Bulgarians.

They released a statement of position, which Tass said was taken March 21, saying:

"The plenary meeting of the Central Committee of the Bulgarian Communist party heartily approves and unanimously supports the proposal of the Soviet Communist party Central Committee to call this autumn an international meeting of fraternal Communist and workers' parties."

The Soviet press claimed wide support in the clash with Peking.

Articles reporting wide publicity for the statement of the Soviet party position in the debate with China, published Friday, were printed Saturday night in Izvestia, the government paper, from Warsaw, Rome and Paris, among others.

Published also was a letter from a woman in Bonn assailing Mao Tze-tung and endorsing Khrushchev—in the first trickle of what doubtless will be a flood of letters from Soviet readers.

Diplomatic and other sources here described the Soviet position, as outlined in the 30,000-word statement of principles published in Pravda, the Communist party paper, as essentially defensive.

Every gesture made by the Soviet Communist party during the past year has been either ignored or met by new Chinese attacks. And the Chinese are continuing the pattern.

With little to gain and everything to lose, the Soviet party, long master in the Communist camp, apparently can expect support from all the European Communist parties except Albania. Diplomats here seem largely agreed on that.

WINTHROP ROCKEFELLER . . . Announces Candidacy

Rockefeller Enters Race In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, declaring that Arkansans are tired of one-party politics, announced Saturday as a candidate for governor.

Rockefeller, brother of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, said he got into the race because of "tremendous encouragement" from all sections of the state.

FAUBUS OPPONENT

His most likely opponent is Gov. Orval E. Faubus, a five-term Democrat who is expected to announce for re-election next week.

Rockefeller's entry into the race surprised no one. It was the logical end of a four-year Republican push to get him to run.

If the Faubus - Rockefeller race materializes, it will pit the son of an Ozark mountain farmer against the scion of one of America's wealthiest families.

But the advantage here lies with the "poor mountaineer," who has an established political organization, 10 years experience and the "blessing" of being a Democrat in a state which has not elected a Republican to major office since Reconstruction.

Rockefeller made his announcement by reading a three-page prepared statement at a news conference.

The statement did not mention Faubus by name, but it said that "10 years under one man" had disenchanted Arkansas with one-party elections. Rockefeller said he found this feeling among Republicans, Democrats and independents alike.

Rockefeller indicated he does not expect opposition in the Republican primary. No major candidate has appeared against Faubus, but he will have to make a race because two political newcomers have filed against him.

Rights Foes Gain Day In Senate Fight

Bill Backers Fail To Make Quorum; Group Recesses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate opponents of the civil rights bill gained a day in their fight to delay a vote on the measure when the measure's backers were unable to produce a quorum for a Saturday session.

After the Senate met at 11 a.m. Saturday, Southerners demanded a roll call to determine whether the quorum was present. After 41 minutes, only 41 of the 100 members had answered and the majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., was forced to recess until 10 a.m. Monday.

DIXIE SUCCESS

The Dixie bloc's success in thus retarding the already snail-paced action on the 11-point, House-passed measure brought a sharp rebuke from Mansfield, directed at the absentees.

He said it was "a travesty, shame and indignity" that the Senate backers of the bill were thus forced to end the fourth week of debate on a note of frustration.

Although on several occasions last week it had required an hour or more to meet quorum requirements, this was the first time since July 27, 1962, that the Senate had been forced to quit because of a lack of a quorum. At that time liberal senators were conducting an unsuccessful filibuster against the communications satellite bill.

The aborting of Saturday's session left Sen. Thomas H. Dodd, D-Conn., with an undelivered speech on behalf of the measure. He'll give it Monday.

In the text, released in advance of the Senate's opening, Dodd discussed several of the measure's less-publicized sections and said that over-all the legislation would help Negroes attain "their basic rights as American citizens"—but not "at the expense of other Americans."

'SOCIAL DYNAMITE'

Hard Core Jobless Ist Poverty Target

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — A potential hard core unemployment group described as "social dynamite" will be the first and primary target of the Jobs Corps in President Johnson's "war on poverty."

Dr. Vernon R. Alden, energetic Ohio University president named to set up the corps, described the goal Saturday and said he believes the program "will strike at the very roots of poverty in America."

Alden said he referred to some 750,000 American males between the ages of 15 and 21 "who wander about in city slums and in rural areas without hope of escape."

He outlined the first phases of the Jobs Corps program which would cost $200 million of the President's proposed $963-million poverty war budget for the first year.

Legislation to finance the program now is pending in both houses of Congress.

Alden, who will open a "borrowed" Jobs Corps office Monday in Washington across from the White House, said tentative plans would place 40,000 draft rejects and school dropouts in educational and training programs the first year.

"We'd like to boost that figure to 100,000 the second year," the former Harvard University associate dean said.

Alden said conservation training and educational-job training centers would be set up throughout the country to accommodate recruits for the program.

"We'll find the men through the use of 1,900 employment agencies, Selective Service centers, health, education, and welfare guidance facilities, schools, and in other ways," Alden, 43, a Navy veteran explained.

Area Mayors Re-Elected In Primaries

Aldermen Runoff Contests Slated; Bond Votes Held

Incumbent mayors were re-elected in Sikes and Chatham municipal primary elections which were decided Saturday, but aldermen runoff elections must be staged in Vidalia, Ferriday and possibly St. Joseph.

St. Joseph had such a tight race for council seats that a ruling will be requested to decide it. Mayors in these three cities were unopposed.

BONDS LOSE

Morehouse Parish voters in an election Saturday defeated a consolidated school bond issue by an assessment vote of $1,274,860 against, and $917,325 for the issue. The popular vote was 346 to 311 against the issue.

The bond issue would have provided for consolidation of four Morehouse Parish schools with the school to have been located at Mer Rouge. The schools to have been consolidated were Oak Ridge, Collinston, Bonita and Mer Rouge.

Chatham Mayor A. L. Johnson was re-elected with 218 votes to 139 for his opponent, H. C. Womack. Incumbent marshall M. R. Tolar went back into office with 236 votes. His opponent James E. McDale polled 103 votes.

Aldermen elected were W. H. Head, 186: Herschel Jordan, 183; Charles C. Moss, 182; C. R. Griffith, 167, and Ballard Womack, 162. Other votes were Tommy Womack, 122; Fred Wilhite, 118; W. H. Malone, 97; Mrs. Pauline Brumley, 81; William Walker, 77, and J. T. Garner, 70.

In the Sikes municipal election, incumbent Mayor Puckett Willis squeezed back into office with a two vote margin over opponent Mrs. Pina Hatten. Willis received 56 votes to Mrs. Hatten's 54.

A. Parker was unopposed for marshal and Chester Erskines, Earl Usrey and O. M. Gates were unopposed as aldermen.

In St. Joseph, where voters were to decide on five aldermen, results are still unofficial. Final counts showed Robert James Lancaster, incumbent, 238; Whitfield Jones, 236; O. N. McBride, incumbent, 214; A. G. McIntosh, incumbent, 212; Albert V. Lowery, 153; Sanford H. Wood, incumbent, 152, and Curtis E. Reeves, 114.

Mayor O. N. Wilds was unopposed.

Officials in St. Joseph stated that a ruling would be made by the state attorney general on final elected candidates.

Ferriday mayor L. W. "Woody" Davis was unopposed for his office. However, only one alderman was elected with several finalists to be in an April 18th runoff.

Elected as alderman was James C. McNew Jr. with 472 votes. In the runoff for the four vacant positions will be Guy Serio, incumbent, 424, Jack Harp, incumbent, 427; Raymond Galloway, 419; E. E. Wallace,

Life Fading Away From Old Soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur, gripped in a deepening coma, was in ominous straits Saturday but described as resting quietly.

Army doctors said in late afternoon that his vital functions—such as heartbeat, blood pressure and breathing — were becoming increasingly difficult to sustain. Earlier, they said his liver had ceased to function.

NEEDS MIRACLE

Only a miracle could save him, the doctors said.

Ironically, a long-standing, smoldering ailment of the liver, which surgeons hoped they had halted by the first of his three major operations, now is the principal threat to the life of MacArthur, 84.

But a veritable constellation of conditions poses odds against the fight for life of the man whose will to live and strength and fiber have inspired his doctors.

The functioning of his liver virtually has stopped, and the functioning of all his other major vital systems, including his heart, is becoming increasingly difficult to sustain.

That was the grave picture given by a grim-faced Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general. He heads the team of surgeons, doctors, nurses, and other personnel which has strived to save the life of the old hero of three wars.

Heaton's rather detailed account of MacArthur's apparently mortal combat was made more poignant by this:

His story of how the hero of the Philippines — in the short-lived convalescence following his first operation — kept his doctors spellbound with his recited memories of war experiences dating back to Flanders of World War I.

"Corregidor, island hopping, subsequent Japanese government situations were given in turn to us in (beautifully composed) English which to me is second to none," said Heaton, obviously moved by the memory of the bedside sessions with MacArthur.

MacArthur even harkened back to experiences with Gen. John J. "Blackjack" Pershing, Heaton said.

Goldwater Gets Shreveport Nod

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Fourth district Republicans Saturday endorsed Sen. Barry Goldwater for the party's presidential nomination and named delegates to the national convention.

The resolution supporting Goldwater was adopted by voice vote at the district convention. There was no opposition.

Tom Stagg Jr., Shreveport attorney and chairman of the 4th District Republican Committee, and Mrs. George Belchic of Shreveport were named delegates to the national convention.

GOULART IN EXILE

Brazilians Plan Speedy Elections

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's new political chieftains worked at top speed Saturday to prepare for a quick election in Congress to pick an interim president.

There was pressure both here and in the capital at Brasilia for an election by Wednesday, or soon after that, as the next step toward concluding successfully the revolution that toppled Joao Goulart as president.

SUCCESSOR

Goulart fled into Uruguay and government officials there said he would be received with state honors as a Brazilian ex-president and a good friend of Uruguay. They said the temporary Brazilian government had agreed to the step.

Speculation on his successor centered on army Gen. Humberto Castelo Branco, considered the real force behind the revolution, and Marshal Eurico Caspar Dutra, who retired as president 13 years ago. It was Dutra who in 1945 forced Getulio Vargas to end his 15-year dictatorship.

Congress has 30 days from last Thursday to pick a successor for the provisional president, Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli. As president of the Chamber of Deputies he assumed the president's post after Goulart quit Brasilia ahead of revolutionary armies.

Under Brazil's constitution, Mazzilli succeeded Goulart since there was no vice president. Goulart had been vice president and assumed the presidency when Janio Quadros resigned in August 1961. Mazzilli presumably will return to his post in the chamber after a new president is chosen.

All key leaders have agreed on the necessity to choose immediately a man who will run Brazil during the difficult period ahead until the end of Goulart's unexpired term in January 1966.

With the first flush of victory rapidly fading and the nation beginning again to see the grim realities of Brazil's problems, political leaders feel they must work fast or risk losing valuable popular support.

This was underscored by a statement from eight admirals—including the interim navy minister, Agusto Rademaker Grunewald — who said the battle against communism is not complete.

Soviets Launch Probe Satellite

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched Cosmos 28—another radiation belt space probe, Saturday. And it disclosed it has switched the course of Zond 1, a space ship some scientists believe is aimed at Venus.

The launching of Zond 1—Russian for "probe" — was announced without any hint of its destination, its size or weight. The disclosure of the direction change gave no further information on where it is headed.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank space telescope in Britain, said he has picked up its flight, adding: "Since this is the period in which probes would be launched to Venus, it might be a natural inference that this was the intention."

HALF WORLD APART

Flying Housewives Swap Barbed Digs

By United Press International

Two American housewives trying to fly solo around the globe landed half a world apart Saturday and traded a couple of professional digs at each other.

Mrs. Jerrie Mock, a diminutive blonde from Columbus, Ohio, reached the halfway point in her flight by arriving at Karachi, Pakistan. She discounted the efforts of her competitor, Mrs. Joan M. Smith of Long Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Smith arrived in Dakar, Senegal, far behind Mrs. Mock, but said she still can beat her rival and win the honor of becoming the first woman ever to make it around the world on a solo flight. Mrs. Smith blamed her lag on bad weather.

Mrs. Mock, arriving in Karachi after a six - hour flight from Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, said Mrs. Smith is not fulfilling her promise to follow the route taken in 1937 by Amelia Earhart, the Kansas - born aviatrix who disappeared over the South Pacific.

The Ohio flier's Cessna 180 touched down at Karachi Airport at 4:33 p.m. (6:03 a.m., EST) and she described the flight as uneventful. She said she found time to write "a couple of letters" to her mother while the plane was on automatic pilot.

Mrs. Mock planned to continue today, flying to New Delhi, capital of India.

Mrs. Smith landed in Dakar shortly after midnight, ending a 16 - hour flight over about 2,000 miles of the Atlantic Ocean between South America and Africa. She said her radio was disabled for most of the flight and that she was two hours late in arriving.

Satisfaction With Latin Acts Voiced

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday 1964 will be a prosperous year for the American people and "a good year for the Democrats from the political standpoint."

Johnson, who all but announced his bid for re-election with that statement, was in a generally buoyant mood as he surveyed the world for newsmen clustered around him in the Cabinet room.

LATIN EVENTS

Speaking of recent events in Panama and Brazil, the President said: "I would say that this has been a good week for this hemisphere."

Johnson reported he is "encouraged by the developments in Panama," which agreed Friday to resume diplomatic relations with the United States and proceed with talks aimed at solving long-standing difficulties over the Canal Zone.

He announced that the new U.S. ambassador to Panama will be Jack Hood Vaughn, the Peace Corps' director for Latin America.

As for Brazil, Johnson said he is glad constitutional processes were observed in the overthrow of former President Joao Goulart and added, "We expect and look forward to brighter hopes there."

Johnson's rosy view of the world extended even to the moral standards of American teenagers.

Asked to comment on "the loosening of morals for the young in this country," Johnson replied: "From my observation, there has been an improvement in morals since my day. I think I would have made my parents happier if at 16 or 18, or even 20, I had conducted myself to (sic) the same high standards of morals as my daughters apply to themselves now."

On another optimistic note, the President announced "very good news" about the nation's persistent balance - of - payments problems. He said preliminary figures indicate that in the January-March quarter, the U.S. payments deficit — the amount of money leaving the country balanced against the amount coming in—was almost eliminated.

At one point, the President expressed hope that one potential cause of East-West friction, overflights of East Germany by U.S. military planes, has been eliminated.

Attributing such incidents to faulty instruments or crew error, he said, "I have issued instructions calculated to avoid any such errors in the future that are humanly possible to avoid."

Asked to assess the ideological battle between Moscow and Peking, Johnson said the Soviet Union and Communist China "are fighting for support" among the Communist parties in other countries. He said the matter concerns them and, "I do not see that there is anything I can say that would contribute to it."

One reporter asked whether the actions of French President Charles de Gaulle are splitting the Western alliance.

"No," the chief executive responded. "I do not believe that the Western alliance is being split. I think we have differences, from time to time between countries and between spokesmen and leaders."

Area Showers Possible Today

A stationary front from Central Georgia to Northern Mississippi will continue to keep temperatures warm and skies cloudy in the Twin Cities and area today.

WARM

The weatherman said widely scattered showers may be expected in the area today, and a few thundershowers will bring precipitation tonight. Temperatures will remain at their pleasant spring recordings with highs ranging from 75 to 82 today and the lows expected to drop into the high 60s.

Winds will be mild, 10 to 20 mph in a southeasterly direction. Saturday brought signs of rain, no precipitation, and temperatures soared to a high of 86 and a low of 65.

Satisfaction With Latin Acts Voiced

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday 1964 will be a prosperous year for the American people and "a good year for the Democrats from the political standpoint."

Johnson, who all but announced his bid for re-election with that statement, was in a generally buoyant mood as he surveyed the world for newsmen clustered around him in the Cabinet room.

LATIN EVENTS

Speaking of recent events in Panama and Brazil, the President said: "I would say that this has been a good week for this hemisphere."

Johnson reported he is "encouraged by the developments in Panama," which agreed Friday to resume diplomatic relations with the United States and proceed with talks aimed at solving long-standing difficulties over the Canal Zone.

He announced that the new U.S. ambassador to Panama will be Jack Hood Vaughn, the Peace Corps' director for Latin America.

As for Brazil, Johnson said he is glad constitutional processes were observed in the overthrow of former President Joao Goulart and added, "We expect and look forward to brighter hopes there."

Johnson's rosy view of the world extended even to the moral standards of American teenagers.

Asked to comment on "the loosening of morals for the young in this country," Johnson replied: "From my observation, there has been an improvement in morals since my day. I think I would have made my parents happier if at 16 or 18, or even 20, I had conducted myself to (sic) the same high standards of morals as my daughters apply to themselves now."

On another optimistic note, the President announced "very good news" about the nation's persistent balance - of - payments problems. He said preliminary figures indicate that in the January-March quarter, the U.S. payments deficit — the amount of money leaving the country balanced against the amount coming in—was almost eliminated.

At one point, the President expressed hope that one potential cause of East-West friction, overflights of East Germany by U.S. military planes, has been eliminated.

Attributing such incidents to faulty instruments or crew error, he said, "I have issued instructions calculated to avoid any such errors in the future that are humanly possible to avoid."

Asked to assess the ideological battle between Moscow and Peking, Johnson said the Soviet Union and Communist China "are fighting for support" among the Communist parties in other countries. He said the matter concerns them and, "I do not see that there is anything I can say that would contribute to it."

One reporter asked whether the actions of French President Charles de Gaulle are splitting the Western alliance.

"No," the chief executive responded, 'I do not believe that the Western alliance is being split. I think we have differences, from time to time between countries and between spokesmen and leaders."

Life Fading Away From Old Soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur, gripped in a deepening coma, was in ominous straits Saturday but described as resting quietly.

Army doctors said in late afternoon that his vital functions—such as heartbeat, blood pressure and breathing — were becoming increasingly difficult to sustain. Earlier, they said his liver had ceased to function.

NEEDS MIRACLE

Only a miracle could save him, the doctors said.

Ironically, a long-standing, smoldering ailment of the liver, which surgeons hoped they had halted by the first of his three major operations, now is the principal threat to the life of MacArthur, 84.

But a veritable constellation of conditions poses odds against the fight for life of the man whose will to live and strength and fiber have inspired his doctors.

The functioning of his liver virtually has stopped, and the functioning of all his other major vital systems, including his heart, is becoming increasingly difficult to sustain.

That was the grave picture given by a grim-faced Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general. He heads the team of surgeons, doctors, nurses, and other personnel which has strived to save the life of the old hero of three wars.

Heaton's rather detailed account of MacArthur's apparently mortal combat was made more poignant by this:

His story of how the hero of the Philippines — in the short-lived convalescence following his first operation — kept his doctors spellbound with his recited memories of war experiences dating back to Flanders of World War I.

"Corregidor, island hopping, subsequent Japanese government situations were given in turn to us in (beautifully composed) English which to me is second to none," said Heaton, obviously moved by the memory of the bedside sessions with MacArthur.

MacArthur even harkened back to experiences with Gen. John J. "Blackjack" Pershing, Heaton said.

GOULART IN EXILE

Brazilians Plan Speedy Elections

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's new political chieftains worked at top speed Saturday to prepare for a quick election in Congress to pick an interim president.

There was pressure both here and in the capital at Brasilia for an election by Wednesday, or soon after that, as the next step toward concluding successfully the revolution that toppled Joao Goulart as president.

SUCCESSOR

Goulart fled into Uruguay and government officials there said he would be received with state honors as a Brazilian ex-president and a good friend of Uruguay. They said the temporary Brazilian government had agreed to the step.

Speculation on his successor centered on army Gen. Humberto Castelo Branco, considered the real force behind the revolution, and Marshal Eurico Caspar Dutra, who retired as president 13 years ago. It was Dutra who in 1945 forced Getulio Vargas to end his 15-year dictatorship.

Congress has 30 days from last Thursday to pick a successor for the provisional president, Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli. As president of the Chamber of Deputies he assumed the president's post after Goulart quit Brasilia ahead of revolutionary armies.

Under Brazil's constitution, Mazzilli succeeded Goulart since there was no vice president. Goulart had been vice president and assumed the presidency when Janio Quadros resigned in August 1961. Mazzilli presumably will return to his post in the chamber after a new president is chosen.

All key leaders have agreed on the necessity to choose immediately a man who will run Brazil during the difficult period ahead until the end of Goulart's unexpired term in January 1966.

With the first flush of victory rapidly fading and the nation beginning again to see the grim realities of Brazil's problems, political leaders feel they must work fast or risk losing valuable popular support.

This was underscored by a statement from eight admirals—including the interim navy minister, Agusto Rademaker Grunewald — who said the battle against communism is not complete.

Soviets Launch Probe Satellite

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched Cosmos 28—another radiation belt space probe, Saturday. And it disclosed it has switched the course of Zond 1, a space ship some scientists believe is aimed at Venus.

The launching of Zond 1—Russian for "probe" — was announced without any hint of its destination, its size or weight. The disclosure of the direction change gave no further information on where it is headed.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank space telescope in Britain, said he has picked up its flight, adding: "Since this is the period in which probes would be launched to Venus, it might be a natural inference that this was the intention."

Goldwater Gets Shreveport Nod

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Fourth district Republicans Saturday endorsed Sen. Barry Goldwater for the party's presidential nomination and named delegates to the national convention.

The resolution supporting Goldwater was adopted by voice vote at the district convention. There was no opposition.

'SOCIAL DYNAMITE'

Hard Core Jobless Ist Poverty Target

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — A potential hard core unemployment group described as "social dynamite" will be the first and primary target of the Jobs Corps in President Johnson's "war on poverty."

Dr. Vernon R. Alden, energetic Ohio University president named to set up the corps, described the goal Saturday and said he believes the program "will strike at the very roots of poverty in America."

Alden said he referred to some 750,000 American males between the ages of 15 and 21 "who wander about in city slums and in rural areas without hope of escape."

He outlined the first phases of the Jobs Corps program which would cost $200 million of the President's proposed $963-million poverty war budget for the first year.

Legislation to finance the program now is pending in both houses of Congress.

Alden, who will open a "borrowed" Jobs Corps office Monday in Washington across from the White House, said tentative plans would place 40,000 draft rejects and school dropouts in educational and training programs the first year.

"We'd like to boost that figure to 100,000 the second year," the former Harvard University associate dean said.

Alden said conservation training and educational-job training centers would be set up throughout the country to accommodate recruits for the program.

"We'll find the men through the use of 1,900 employment agencies, Selective Service centers, health, education, and welfare guidance facilities, schools, and in other ways," Alden, 43, a Navy veteran explained.

HALF WORLD APART

Flying Housewives Swap Barbed Digs

By United Press International

Two American housewives trying to fly solo around the globe landed half a world apart Saturday and traded a couple of professional digs at each other.

Mrs. Jerrie Mock, a diminutive blonde from Columbus, Ohio, reached the halfway point in her flight by arriving at Karachi, Pakistan. She discounted the efforts of her competitor, Mrs. Joan M. Smith of Long Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Smith arrived in Dakar, Senegal, far behind Mrs. Mock, but said she still can beat her rival and win the honor of becoming the first woman ever to make it around the world on a solo flight. Mrs. Smith blamed her lag on bad weather.

Mrs. Mock, arriving in Karachi after a six - hour flight from Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, said Mrs. Smith is not fulfilling her promise to follow the route taken in 1937 by Amelia Earhart, the Kansas - born aviatrix who disappeared over the South Pacific.

The Ohio flier's Cessna 180 touched down at Karachi Airport at 4:33 p.m. (6:03 a.m., EST) and she described the flight as uneventful. She said she found time to write "a couple of letters" to her mother while the plane was on automatic pilot.

Mrs. Mock planned to continue today, flying to New Delhi, capital of India.

Mrs. Smith landed in Dakar shortly after midnight, ending a 16 - hour flight over about 2,000 miles of the Atlantic Ocean between South America and Africa. She said her radio was disabled for most of the flight and that she was two hours late in arriving.

Local 'Y' Offers Many Activities

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. begins its annual membership drive here Monday, offering individual and family-type memberships.

The YMCA, serving both Monroe and West Monroe communities, offers popular physical education and swimming activities and the Father and Son Indian Guides. The Indian Guides is the YMCA's newest national program and is designed to foster companionship between fathers and their young sons, ages 6 to 8. The tribes meet in homes of members and have a regular schedule of work and play.

The Y, located at 1809 Glenmar Ave., offers varied programs for all ages which include the Gray-Y Club for grade school boys, the Hi-Y Clubs for high school boys, and family night programs for older groups.

The community program for the summer is day camping in Forsythe Park which keeps the youngsters busy with swimming instruction, water sports, handicrafts, athletics, fishing, educational trips, cook-outs and overnight camp-outs. The "Y" also renders community service by making the swimming pool, a heated, indoor facility, available for other organizations such as Northeast Louisiana State College, the American Red Cross, and school and church groups.

The Gray-Y Clubs, with teams in football, basketball, track and other sports, is operated with college student leaders who go to various schools one or two afternoons each week to work with boys and prepare them for league play. Gray-Y boys have club meetings and special activities such as the fishing rodeo, camping trips and trips to points of historical events. They boasted a membership last year of 425 boys.

The Hi-Y clubs currently operate in Neville, Ouachita and West Monroe High schools with a teacher as an advisor who helps the teen-agers plan service and social activities. One of their most important projects is the Hi-Y Youth and Government programs which culminate in a model legislature held at Baton Rouge.

The YMCA is a member agency of the United Givers Fund but draws more than half of its operating income from membership dues. Approximately 2,000 are enrolled in the physical education activity in the building. John Dobbins is the youth work director and Howard C. Morland is executive secretary of the YMCA.

A YMCA sponsored program for grade school boys is the Gra-Y Club with teams in football, basketball, track and other sport operated with college student leaders. The Gra-Y at Lexington School includes sitting left to right Joe Farr, Bobby Sale, Mile Lary, Harvey Downs and Alfred Bartlett; kneeling, Lynn Allbritton, Andy Bruce, Alan Blumenthal, Bob Shaw, Freddie Landry, and Jim Sheffield; standing, Bobby Peat, John Craft, David Hilley, Joe Humble, John Bernhardt and Gra-Y leaders Dervis Tippen and Butch Hoffman.

Cotton Futures Move Irregular

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices of cotton futures on the domestic market moved irregularly this week but closed in lower ground.

At the close of trading active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were off 25 cents to $1.45 a bale. Last week the market was off 35 cents to 50 cents.

Trading continued slow with traders awaiting House of Representatives action on a otton-wheat bill.

During the first half of the week, commission house selling resulted in new life of contract lows from all deliveries from December onward. Later there was some replacement buying but earlier losses were not fully regained.

Exports in the week ended Thursday totaled 87,000 bales against 138,000 last week and 63,000 a year earlier.

Centennial Festivities Open

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

MANSFIELD — "We won the battle, — who cares about the war — and we're celebrating."

That seems to be the mood behind the Battle of Mansfield Centennial being held here this weekend.

Visitors from Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas and as far away as Monaco, France have approximately doubled the population of the town's usual head count of about 6,000.

The Rebel yells, opening Saturday's festivities, were uttered by peaceful contestants on the courthouse square, rather than nervous Johnny Rebs on the local battlefield a century ago.

Special guests for the occasion included Gen. Walter S. McIlhenny, USMC reserve, of Avery Island. McIlhenny is a great grandson of Gen. Dick Taylor, Confederate general and defender of Mansfield.

Also present are Prince Victor Mansfield de Polignic and his wife Princess Elizabeth of Monaco, France.

The Prince's father, Gen Camille de Polignic, led the calvary countercharge that proved decisive in the April 8, 1864 conflict.

POLECAT

Legend has it that the name de Polignic played a part in rallying the Texas and Louisiana horsemen, who had just seen their leader, General Mouton, fall at the height of the fighting.

Realizing that the Rebels couldn't pronounce his Gallic name, de Polignic used their own corruption of it in the spirited cry, "Follow the Polecat."

The gist of the battle is the following batile ballad, jotted down on the spot by a wounded Confederate soldier:

"Come good folks, and I'll sing you a ditty
Of the year of '64
When Old General Banks marched out to the city
With thirty thousand or more;
He swore he'd capture Shreveport
Or else know the reason why,
He'd bring Old Steele with his army down
And make the rebels fly . . ."
"Old Dick was there (General Dick Taylor; and Mouton, too.
And Greene's Val Verde Boys,
And Walker's Texans weren't so very few,
For they kicked up a terrible noise. . ."
"Old Banks he run ahah Ha!
The Rebels chased the foe —
And such a hot race, you ne'er did see
Since the year of '64. . ."

Man At Wisner Found Dead Of Gunshot Wound

WINNSBORO (Special) — George Boothe, 27-year-old Wisner commercial fisherman, was found dead of a gunshot wound on the patio of his trailer home early Saturday morning.

Boothe's wife, Mrs. Annie Kay Boothe, discovered her husband's body shortly after 5:30 a.m. when she opened the door to see if he had left in the truck. The Franklin Parish sheriff's department said Boothe suffered a gunshot wound over the left eye which killed him instantly.

Franklin Parish Coroner Dr. Brashear Earle told deputies Boothe had been shot with a load of No. 6 shot from a .20-gauge automatic shotgun found beside his body. No ruling had been made in the death by the coroner's office late Saturday.

Mrs. Boothe told investigating deputies that she turned the alarm clock off at 5 a.m. and noticed then that her husband was gone. However, she dozed back to sleep and did not awaken again until shortly after 5:30 a.m. when she checked to see if her husband had left the house.

Investigating deputies said the gun's discharge was not heard by either Mrs. Boothe or neighbors living nearby. They believed the gun may have discharged while Boothe was preparing to go turkey hunting. The coroner set the time of death at sometime after 4:30 a.m.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Wisner with the Rev. Carlton Vance, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in South Central Cem y near Wisner under the direction of the First National Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

Centennial Festivities Open

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

MANSFIELD — "We won the battle, — who cares about the war — and we're celebrating."

That seems to be the mood behind the Battle of Mansfield Centennial being held here this weekend.

Visitors from Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas and as far away as Monaco, France have approximately doubled the population of the town's usual head count of about 6,000.

The Rebel yells, opening Saturday's festivities, were uttered by peaceful contestants on the courthouse square, rather than nervous Johnny Rebs on the local battlefield a century ago.

Special guests for the occasion included Gen. Walter S. McIlhenny, USMC reserve, of Avery Island. McIlhenny is a great grandson of Gen. Dick Taylor, Confederate general and defender of Mansfield.

Also present are Prince Victor Mansfield de Polignic and his wife Princess Elizabeth of Monaco, France.

The Prince's father, Gen Camille de Polignic, led the calvary countercharge that proved decisive in the April 8, 1864 conflict.

POLECAT

Legend has it that the name de Polignic played a part in rallying the Texas and Louisiana horsemen, who had just seen their leader, General Mouton, fall at the height of the fighting.

Realizing that the Rebels couldn't pronounce his Gallic name, de Polignic used their own corruption of it in the spirited cry, "Follow the Polecat."

The gist of the battle is the following battle ballad, jotted down on the spot by a wounded Confederate soldier:

"Come good folks, and I'll sing you a ditty
Of the year of '64
When Old General Banks marched out to the city
With thirty thousand or more;
He swore he'd capture Shreveport
Or else know the reason why,
He'd bring Old Steele with his army down
And make the rebels fly . . ."
"Old Dick was there (General Dick Taylor, and Mouton, too.
And Greene's Val Verde Boys,
And Walker's Texans weren't so very few,
For they kicked up a terrible noise. . ."
"Old Banks he run ahah Ha!
The Rebels chased the foe —
And such a hot race, you ne'er did see
Since the year of '64. . ."

Man At Wisner Found Dead Of Gunshot Wound

WINNSBORO (Special) — George Boothe, 27-year-old Wisner commercial fisherman, was found dead of a gunshot wound on the patio of his trailer home early Saturday morning.

Boothe's wife, Mrs. Annie Kay Boothe, discovered her husband's body shortly after 5:30 a.m. when she opened the door to see if he had left in the truck. The Franklin Parish sheriff's department said Boothe suffered a gunshot wound over the left eye which killed him instantly.

Franklin Parish Coroner Dr. Brashear Earle told deputies Boothe had been shot with a load of No. 6 shot from a .20-gauge automatic shotgun found beside his body. No ruling had been made in the death by the coroner's office late Saturday.

Mrs. Boothe told investigating deputies that she turned the alarm clock off at 5 a.m. and noticed then that her husband was gone. However, she dozed back to sleep and did not awaken again until shortly after 5:30 a.m. when she checked to see if her husband had left the house.

Investigating deputies said the gun's discharge was not heard by either Mrs. Boothe or neighbors living nearby. They believed the gun may have discharged while Boothe was preparing to go turkey hunting. The coroner set the time of death at sometime after 4:30 a.m.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Wisner with the Rev. Carlton Vance, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in South Central Cem ry near Wisner under the direction of the First National Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

The remains will lie in state at the home of Boothe's father in Wisner until time for services.

WISCONSIN PRIMARY

Wallace Might Net GOP Ballots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., predicted Saturday night many Republicans will strike at President Johnson by voting for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in Wisconsin's presidential primary Tuesday.

Proxmire said in a speech recorded for radio use in his state that Wallace, a segregationist spokesman, is likely to benefit from "a gross misunderstanding of the mild and moderate civil rights bill" now before the Senate.

Republicans, who have no party entries in their own primary, are permitted by Wisconsin law to cross over to vote in the Democratic primary. In this race, Wallace is opposing Wisconsin Gov. John W. Reynolds, running as a favorite-son candidate in support of President Johnson.

National politicians will be watching the Wisconsin results more for their possible bearing on the civil rights issue than on any effect on the virtual certainty that Johnson will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

Proxmire said local elections and a hot State Supreme Court race will "bring more Republican conservative-inclined voters to the polls" than usual.

"But the real advantage Wallace is counting on is that 98 per cent of the Wisconsin voters are white," Proxmire said. "He is convinced that this appeal to white superiority and white interests will pay off.

"Under the circumstances, the sense of justice and the intelligence of Wisconsin voters will be severely tested. Wisconsin's great name is in jeopardy as it rarely has been before."

Republican presidential contenders have steered clear of Wisconsin in favor of an uncommitted delegate slate headed by Rep. John W. Byrnes. GOP leaders have urged their members to stay in their own primary but have conceded many won't.

Any substantial vote for WWallace would be likely to be interpreted widely as registering dissatisfaction with the House-passed civil rights measure now before the Senate.

Any substantial vote for Wallace on the other hand, would help quiet the disturbance some civil rights proponents have felt about the flood of mail they have been receiving opposing the pending bill.

Cancer Crusade Drive Opens In Monroe Monday

The Cancer Crusade will move into the Monroe business section Monday as the drive continues in West Monroe, according to chairman James Harbuck.

Harbuck announced Saturday that volunteer workers will meet at a dutch-treat breakfast Monday at 7 a.m. at the Holiday Inn to map plans for the Monroe business section drive.

With the drive already underway in West Monroe, Harbuck said the Monroe business drive would be followed by a house-to-house effort April 20th.

The house-to-house drive will be conducted throughout Northeast Louisiana on April 20th.

Harbuck noted that funds from the Cancer Crusade, conducted annually here by the Ouachita Chapter of the American Cancer Society, would go towards the treatment of patients on the local level as well as research.

Harbuck is in his second consecutive year as crusade chairman. He pointed out that April is "Cancer Month" throughout the United States.

Monroe Postal Award Program Slated April 13

Harold Jinks, special assistant to Postmaster General John A. Gronouski will present a "Good Housekeeping Citation" to Monroe postal officials in ceremonies here April 13.

Jinks, from Washington, D.C., will make the presentation at 4 p.m. in the Gold Room of the Frances Hotel to Monroe Postmaster Woodrow Hathorn and postal superintending engineer Vernon W. Mears. U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman will attend the ceremonies along with Monroe city officials and a majority of the post office personnel.

The award is made on recommendation of the U.S. assistant Postmaster Tyler Abell of the Bureau of Facilities, only to those communities whose postal facilities have received a superior ratings in rigid inspections. These ratings include inspections of exterior structure and grounds, interior structure, interior equipment, toilet facilities and enforcement of civil service rules of work.

The Monroe post office is one of only 97 postal facilities in the United States to receive the award and is the second post office in the state of Louisiana to be awarded the citation. There are 45,000 postal installations in the United States which could possibly have been awarded such a citation.

Postmaster Hathorn credits Mears with being the man "mostly responsible for our receiving the award." However, he also praised postal employees, pointing out that without their co-operation the Monroe post office would never have received such a citation.

The presentation ceremonies will be followed by a coffee hour being sponsored by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce "as evidence of civic appreciation for this fine service given the business community by Mr. Hathorn and his colleagues," Chamber Pres. George Moses announced.

Moses will serve as master of ceremonies at the informal gathering to which the membership at large is invited. The coffee hour will be from 4 to 5 p.m.

VIETNAMESE PACT

Laotian Leader Denies Alliance

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, leader of the right wing faction in Laos' coalition government, denied Saturday that he had arranged a military alliance with Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, military strongman in South Viet Nam.

Reports from Saigon earlier this week said Phoumi and Khanh had reached agreement on a plan to allow South Vietnamese troops to cross into Laos when in pursuit of Communist guerrillas.

"I categorically deny that there is any truth in these reports," Phoumi said at a news conference after he returned from a tour of northern Laotian provinces with King Savang Vatthana.

Phoumi confirmed that he had met with Khanh in Saigon and that the two leaders had discussed the military and political situation in Southeast Asia. In an interview with UPI, Phoumi said they did not discuss any detailed plans for common defense against Viet Cong guerrillas on the frontier between Laos and South Viet Nam.

Phoumi said he was prepared to participate in a tri-partite meeting with the leaders of the neutralist and pro-Communist factions in the Laotian government.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist premier of the coalition, has urged that such a meeting be held when he returns from his current trip to North Viet Nam, Communist China, Hong Kong and Thailand on April 12.

Souvanna arrived in Peking from Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, Saturday for "a friendly visit to China," the official Chinese Communist news agency reported in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo. It said he was greeted at the airport by Premier Chou En-lai and "several thousand Peking residents."

Sources here said Souvanna's trip was designed to persuade the North Vietnamese and Communist Chinese to put a brake on the militant pro-Communist Pathet Lao in Laos and withdrew North Vietnamese troops backing them.

Chileans Stand At Crossroads Of Remaining Pro-West

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Chile is at a crossroads. Events of the next few months likely will decide whether the government will remain pro-West in attitude or slide into or near the Soviet bloc.

The presidential election is five months away. Jorge Allessandri, the country's middle-of-the-road president, cannot under the constitution run for re-election.

A national conference this weekend of the powerful Radical party may go a long way toward deciding which way the country will go.

This party has three courses open to it:

1. Support the extreme left, Moscow-leaning candidate Salvador Allende.

2. Vote for Eduardo Frei, candidate of the moderately leftist Christian Democratic party; or

3. Go to the polls with a candidate of their own.

VIETNAMESE PACT

Laotian Leader Denies Alliance

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, leader of the right wing faction in Laos' coalition government, denied Saturday that he had arranged a military alliance with Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, military strongman in South Viet Nam.

Reports from Saigon earlier this week said Phoumi and Khanh had reached agreement on a plan to allow South Vietnamese troops to cross into Laos when in pursuit of Communist guerrillas.

"I categorically deny that there is any truth in these reports," Phoumi said at a news conference after he returned from a tour of northern Laotian provinces with King Savang Vatthana.

Phoumi confirmed that he had met with Khanh in Saigon and that the two leaders had discussed the military and political situation in Southeast Asia. In an interview with UPI, Phoumi said they did not discuss any detailed plans for common defense against Viet Cong guerrillas on the frontier between Laos and South Viet Nam.

Phoumi said he was prepared to participate in a tri-partite meeting with the leaders of the neutralist and pro-Communist factions in the Laotian government.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist premier of the coalition, has urged that such a meeting be held when he returns from his current trip to North Viet Nam, Communist China, Hong Kong and Thailand on April 12.

Souvanna arrived in Peking from Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, Saturday for "a friendly visit to China," the official Chinese Communist news agency reported in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo. It said he was greeted at the airport by Premier Chou En-lai and "several thousand Peking residents."

Sources here said Souvanna's trip was designed to persuade the North Vietnamese and Communist Chinese to put a brake on the militant pro-Communist Pathet Lao in Laos and withdrew North Vietnamese troops backing them.

LONGER LIVES

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese are living longer because of adequate nourishment in the postwar period. A government welfare white paper said average life spans reached 66.2 for men and 71.2 for women in 1962. The U.S. averages are 67.3 and 72.9, respectively.

Chileans Stand At Crossroads Of Remaining Pro-West

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Chile is at a crossroads. Events of the next few months likely will decide whether the government will remain pro-West in attitude or slide into or near the Soviet bloc.

The presidential election is five months away. Jorge Allessandri, the country's middle-of-the-road president, cannot under the constitution run for re-election.

A national conference this weekend of the powerful Radical party may go a long way toward deciding which way the country will go.

This party has three courses open to it:

1. Support the extreme left, Moscow-leaning candidate Salvador Allende.

2. Vote for Eduardo Frei, candidate of the moderately leftist Christian Democratic party; or

3. Go to the polls with a candidate of their own.

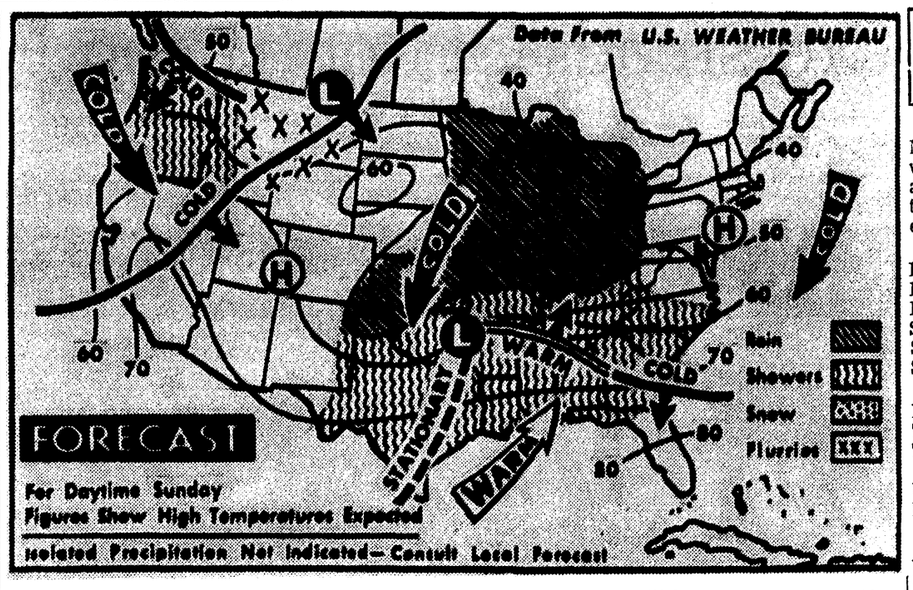
Dynamite Blast Shatters Cafe In Mississippi

BUDE, Miss. (AP) — Local and federal investigators probed the apparent dynamite bombing of a Negro cafe Saturday. The pre-dawn blast demolished part of the structure and jarred homes for one mile.

Owner John Clark said he could not determine who could have bombed his place because he tries "to get along with people and haven't had any trouble with anyone." No one was injured.

His wife, Lillie, had just left the cafe. She saw the explosion.

She said she had closed the cafe and was getting ready for bed when two vehicles pulled up in front of the establishment, which is adjacent to their home.



RAIN WILL BE quite general over nation today except in Pacific coast, southern Atlantic areas and northeast. It will be snow in northern plateau. The northeast will have warmer weather, while it'll be cooler in north Pacific, northern plateau and north plains. (AP Wirephoto)

CHEVELLE by Chevrolet
It's got young ideas about size, style and power

It's fun to drive a car with young ideas. Even more enjoyable when it's a Chevelle, built by Chevrolet. Because then you're driving a car with youthful styling and frisky performance plus the features that make Chevrolets so practical to own.

Chevelle's sociable size makes it especially appealing. It's shorter than big cars, so it's easy to handle and park. But that's hard to tell from the inside, because there's so much comfortable room for people and so much luggage space.

Apart from its bold, exciting lines and luxurious interior, Chevelle will climb a hill or pass on the highway with a wide margin of safety. A choice of engines makes sure of that.

CHEVROLET TRADE 'N' TRAVEL TIME

Now's a wonderful time to get the most fun from a new Chevelle. Because springtime is Trade 'N' Travel Time at your Chevrolet dealer's. You can choose from eleven elegant Chevelles, including convertibles, wagons, sedans and Super Sport models.

Open House Is Scheduled At Boys Club

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

National Boys' Club Week will be observed starting today by the West Monroe Boys Club, and continuing through next Saturday.

Highlight of the observance will be Open House Thursday from 3:30 to 9 p.m.

"We will have as many activities as possible going on, for parents and other interested persons to observe," said Executive Director Lloyd Williams.

"We would like for the parents to see just what their children do at Boys Club," he added.

Judge John F. McCormick, club president, points out that the club is in its third year of operation, and participation in the varied club activities "has exceeded our fondest expectations."

Approximately 900 boys are registered in the local club, a character-building organization in which "juvenile decency" is stressed.

"Our club is affiliated with the Boys' Clubs of America and enjoys the unique distinction of being the first full-time Boys' Club organized in the State of Louisiana," the judge noted.

Credit for success of the club goes first "to the loyal, unselfish and dedicated board members, executive directors and the public as a whole, for its enthusiastic support," he said.

The president also congratulated "the fine boys who participate in the Boys' Club program."

Activities which will be going on during open house include arts and crafts, dog training class, basketball, trampoline, wrestling and recreational games. The club library also will be open.

"We hope we'll have a lot of visitors," said Williams. "It will give any dad a chance to play horseshoes, shoot pool or play ping-pong with his son."

Program of the club is designed "to take up the time the boy doesn't spend in the home, church or school.

"We hope some day to have additional clubs in West Monroe and Monroe," said the director, "so that every boy in Ouachita parish will have a place to go when the schools, churches and homes don't have anything for him to do."

Youngsters who are members of the organization feel "ownership, that we belong to the club," said one boy.

Boys aged 7 through 18 years participate in the club, a United Givers' Fund organization.

Recreational games currently underway include ping pong, horse shoes, table basketball, table football, tether ball, checkers, assorted card games for all ages, billiards with a regulation table for ages 14 — 18 and skill pool, a small table for boys 7 through 13.

Team sports at this time are wrestling and gymnastics. Arts and crafts include plaster molding, popsicle sticks crafts and plaiting. The Scholastic program provides the library, well-lighted with table and chairs for studying and reading, with a limited amount of reference books, magazines and assorted books. Educational films also are available.

Health and safety program now underway includes cleanliness and bicycle safety campaign. Sportsmanship and fair play are stressed in all activities.

The program of activities extends to several items which are seasonal. These offered at other times in the year are shuffleboard and badminton, among recreational games, basketball, touch football, flag football, baseball, softball, volleyball, physical fitness and swimming.

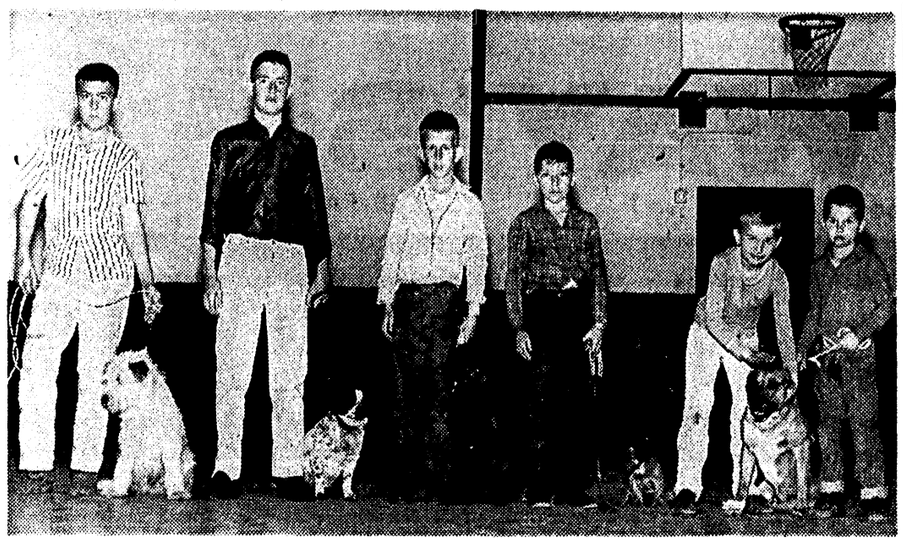
In the scholastic program, voluntary workers provide aid in homework study at certain times in the year, there are a wide variety of contests, and a Choir program.

First aid instruction also is taught in the health and safety program.

The symbol of "Dennis the Menace", the cartoon character, has been adopted as this year's "theme boy" with the slogan "The Right Answer for Every Boy."

Each boy in the West Monroe Club observes the national code, aimed at building better citizens:

"I believe in God and the right to worship according to my own faith and religion; I believe in America and the American way of life . . . in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights; I believe in fair play, honesty and sportsmanship; I believe in my Boys' Club which stands for these things."



DOG TRAINING CLASS, recently organized, has sparked interest among members of West Monroe Boys' Club. Some of the youths making use of the opportunity to teach their pets obedience are, from left, Donnie Holloway, Randy Jackson, Kenneth Schossow, Brice Osborn, Richard Keith Powell and Jerry Powell. PUNCHING BAG recently installed in the Boys' Club gymnasium is tried out by club member Gerald Estes.

According to the attending doctor, Kenny's condition is satisfactory.

Snake-Bite Best To Beat Traffic

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —It may not be worth it, but 14-year-old Ronald Hill proved Saturday that the fastest way through New Orleans traffic is to be snake-bit.

Hill, out catching snakes, was fanged by a cottonmouth water moccasin on the outskirts of town.

About 30 police cars cooperated in setting up a string of roadblocks that gave a police car a clear shot to a hospital, where physicians had anti-venom serum ready.

ELECTORS BATTLE LOOMS

Louisiana Parties Facing Key Fights

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana's Democratic and Republican parties face key fights this week in advance of the race for president.

The Democratic State Central Committee will thrash out the question of whether to continue with a scheduled electors primary this summer that could make way for independents to bolt from the party's choice.

A faction intent on halting any attack on President Lyndon B. Johnson, considered the probable choice for nominee, appears to have the advantage.

Republicans in Louisiana's eight congressional districts, meanwhile, will hold conventions through Wednesday to choose pairs of delegates to a state convention.

The main GOP issue is whether to pledge Louisiana's delegation to Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona conservative, or remain unpledged. Goldwater apparently holds the edge.

Each district will name two delegates and two alternates to the GOP National Convention.

The final four members of the 20-member delegation, and an equal number of alternates, will be picked at a state convention at Alexandria April 18.

The Democratic Party contest Saturday will pit a conservative-segregationist group headed by Leander H. Perez Sr., Plaquemines Parish, and a more liberal group headed by Bennett Voorhies Jr., Lafayette Parish.

Perez won committee approval of the original resolution, which set up a Democratic vote on two slates of presidential electors—one for the party candidate and the other unpledged—at a meeting last fall before the late President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Voorhies has prefiled for the meeting a resolution to rescind the Perez plan, and to call on the legislature to enact laws to stabilize elector selections.

He also prefiled a resolution calling for open preferential primaries for president in Louisiana. The Perez plan calls for a closed elector primary.

Voorhies said he would like to see a plan similar to those of Oregon or New Hampshire.

Voorhies said he didn't want to appear Cocky about the vote to do away with the Perez plan, but "I think we have a majority."

OUR 60TH ANNIVERSARY WAS A TREMENDOUS SUCCESS!!!
This was a big week for People's Homestead and Savings Association. On Tuesday, March 31, 1964 we at People's Homestead celebrated our 60th anniversary. The officers and staff express to you our deep appreciation for your visits and for your kind good wishes.
To young and old alike there was considerable interest and nostalgia in turning back the calendar, and seeing some of the scenes of the Twin Cities as they appeared back in 1904. People's Homestead and the Twin Cities have come a long way since that date. The progress that this savings and loan association has made is a tribute to the far sightedness of the local people who founded People's Homestead on that March 31, right after the turn of the century.
Your visits are always enjoyed and you're always welcome at People's Homestead and Savings Association.

PEOPLE'S HOMESTEAD & SAVINGS ASSOCIATION
60th YEAR
1904 - 1964

OUR 60TH ANNIVERSARY WAS A TREMENDOUS SUCCESS!!!

This was a big week for People's Homestead and Savings Association. On Tuesday, March 31, 1964 we at People's Homestead celebrated our 60th anniversary. The officers and staff express to you our deep appreciation for your visits and for your kind good wishes.

To young and old alike there was considerable interest and nostalgia in turning back the calendar, and seeing some of the scenes of the Twin Cities as they appeared back in 1904. People's Homestead and the Twin Cities have come a long way since that date. The progress that this savings and loan association has made is a tribute to the far sightedness of the local people who founded People's Homestead on that March 31, right after the turn of the century.

Your visits are always enjoyed and you're always welcome at People's Homestead and Savings Association.

World Rule Causing Chinese, Soviet Struggle

MOSCOW (AP) — The clash between the Soviet Union and China is primarily a rivalry for dictatorship over the world Communist movement, if what the two protagonists say about each other is true.

In bitter counter accusations each of the two Red nations attributes to other a desire to use the Communist movement for greater national glory.

And with both professing faith that eventually the whole world will be Communist, this becomes their struggle to see who might rule the earth.

But each denies the accusation of the other that it is in fact trying to use communism as a national tool.

That is a falsehood, "nothing but a new version of that old fable" of the West about communism being a "hand of Moscow," according to Premier Khrushchev's chief spokesman in theoretical squabbles.

The spokesman, Mikhail Suslov, denounced such Chinese accusations in a speech made secretly Feb. 14 and published Friday. It was in answer to six months of Peking's bitter blasts and most particularly a Feb. 4 Chinese editorial.

That editorial said the Soviet Communist party regarded other Communist parties "as pawns on their diplomatic chessboard. Khrushchev insists on fraternal parties' dancing to his every tune without knowing whence or whither."

"Every remark and every word of Khrushchev's are imperial edicts, however wrong or absurd they may be," it added.

Lies, all lies, said Suslov, proclaiming a Soviet belief in majority decisions by Communist parties that bind the whole movement. In this light, he called for a world Communist meeting, apparently confident that the Soviet Union has a majority.

In his counterattack, Suslov said the Chinese are "opposing the Communist movement in all the basic questions of strategy and tactics" with a merger of ideological wrongheadness and "nationalistic, great power aspirations."

The Chinese, Suslov said, are out to establish "a sort of separate international bloc" under their own control.

World Rule Causing Chinese, Soviet Struggle

MOSCOW (AP) — The clash between the Soviet Union and China is primarily a rivalry for dictatorship over the world Communist movement, if what the two protagonists say about each other is true.

In bitter counter accusations each of the two Red nations attributes to other a desire to use the Communist movement for greater national glory.

And with both professing faith that eventually the whole world will be Communist, this becomes their struggle to see who might rule the earth.

But each denies the accusation of the other that it is in fact trying to use communism as a national tool.

That is a falsehood, "nothing but a new version of that old fable" of the West about communism being a "hand of Moscow," according to Premier Khrushchev's chief spokesman in theoretical squabbles.

The spokesman, Mikhail Suslov, denounced such Chinese accusations in a speech made secretly Feb. 14 and published Friday. It was in answer to six months of Peking's bitter blasts and most particularly a Feb. 4 Chinese editorial.

That editorial said the Soviet Communist party regarded other Communist parties "as pawns on their diplomatic chessboard. Khrushchev insists on fraternal parties' dancing to his every tune without knowing whence or whither."

"Every remark and every word of Khrushchev's are imperial edicts, however wrong or absurd they may be," it added.

Lies, all lies, said Suslov, proclaiming a Soviet belief in majority decisions by Communist parties that bind the whole movement. In this light, he called for a world Communist meeting, apparently confident that the Soviet Union has a majority.

In his counterattack, Suslov said the Chinese are "opposing the Communist movement in all the basic questions of strategy and tactics" with a merger of ideological wrongheadness and "nationalistic, great power aspirations."

The Chinese, Suslov said, are out to establish "a sort of separate international bloc" under their own control.

U.S. Government's Use Of Lie Detector Tests Raises Serious Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee reported Saturday the federal government gave lie detector— polygraph— tests to at least 23,122 persons last year.

Actually the figure is higher since the Central Intelligence Agency refused to say how many it gave.

The subcommittee said "serious questions have been raised regarding the reliability of the device and the propriety of its use."

The committee found most of the supposedly scientific tests were administered by military men, some of whom had only five days' training and most of whom were required to have only a high school diploma.

Further, the House Committee on Government Operations reported the polygraph was found to be only 72 per cent accurate in judging falsehoods.

All federal courts and many state tribunals refuse to admit results of a polygraph test into evidence.

The preliminary report was prepared for the full committee by the Foreign operations and Government Information subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif. Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., heads the full committee.

VICTORIES IN WAR AGAINST CANCER

Three Twin Cities residents who faced the dreaded disease and recovered, tell of their experiences.

CANCER — the final diagnosis that patients dread to hear and doctors hate to pronounce. Just what would be the emotions brought forth by this one word, if it were uttered by your physician and aimed at you?

At least three Twin City residents have faced this verdict, but have battled the disease, conquered it, and are once more leading normal, active lives.

Ranging from a teen-aged high school student to a welfare visitor with a grown son, this trio shares a vital interest in cancer and in spreading information about the malady.

The memory of her illness is still fresh for Mrs. Janice Hodnett, secretary of the Monroe - Ouachita Regional Planning Commission, who was finally ruled free of cancer just a year ago this month.

ACTIVE IN CAUSE

Although she is unable to remember anything about her fight with a malignancy since it happened when she was eight months old, Gloria Lewis, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Lewis, is quite active in her work to defeat cancer.

Mrs. Paul K. Wright, welfare visitor for the Louisiana Department of Public Welfare, is very grateful to be back in her realm of public service after undergoing a lengthy treatment to regain her power of speech.

All three of these one-time cancer patients are vigorous advocates of better information concerning cancer for the general public, and were quite willing to tell of their personal experiences.

"Fantastic" and "miraculous" are terms used by Mrs. Janice Hodnett in describing her bout with cancer. With her illness diagnosed as a type of malignancy which kills virtually all of its victims, she agreed to help test a new medication still in the research stages.

"What do you do when there's nothing else to do?" she said.

In June of 1962, doctors decided that Janice was suffering from Choriocarcinoma, defined in medical terms as "an infrequent malignant lesion of the placenta incurred during pregnancy or after delivery, usually in women between 20 and 24 years of age."

REJECTING IDEA

"As I heard that long word," Janice recalled, "I thought, 'it can be cured with a few pills and there is nothing to worry about.' Then the doctor said 'malignancy' and I knew. Cancer!"

All through the next few hours as she was finding out more about her illness, such as the fact that it is fatal in 55 per cent of cases six months after the onset and in 75 per cent during the first two years, Janice said her mind kept rejecting the whole idea.

"This can't be happening to me. I'm so young—only 21. This can't be happening to me."

The only prevalent treatment was surgery followed by X-ray treatments, Janice's doctor told her, and even with this method there was no assurance that she would be completely cured.

"Heartbroken, I gave my consent for the operation," Janice continued, "although it meant I would never be able to have children."

The night before the surgery was scheduled, Janice's doctor mentioned that he had been reading about a new drug, still being researched, that might possibly be able to cure Choriocarcinoma.

He explained to Janice that if she chose this treatment, she would literally be setting herself up as a human "guinea pig." Along with the fact that there was no guarantee the medication would be effective, there would definitely be painful and toxic effects from the extremely powerful drug.

NEW HOPE

"I knew immediately that this was the answer I had prayed for," Janice said. My surgery was cancelled 12 hours before the operation. The minute the decision was made to take the new medicine, I felt like a new person. I believed in it — I knew it would work. From then on, I relied upon my favorite scripture to help me: 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.' "

Janice was the first person in Monroe to undergo this type of medication, which required hospitalization and constant supervision with each treatment.

Her reactions were quite favorable at the start, but after five doses at a local hospital, her physicians decided that her progress had come to a standstill even though there was a small amount of the cancer left.

After consultation with specialists at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., where the preliminary testing of the drug took place, Janice's doctors sent her to Passavant Memorial Hospital in Chicago, for treatments with a second type of medicine.

FORTUNATE TIMING

If anything can be said to have been fortunate about Janice's illness, it was the timing. In October, 1962, the National Institutes of Health issued a three-year grant totaling approximately $158,000 to open a Choriocarcinoma treatment center at Passavant.

Serving as a reasearch subject at the newly-opened center, Janice had all her expenses paid by NIH. She and her husband went to Chicago in January, 1963, where she was the twentieth patient to receive this treatment.

Then on March 31, 1963, Janice was informed that all her cancer tests were negative and that she could return home.

"My story is a miracle-type story that I would expect to read — not one I would expect to happen to me," Janice concluded. "Now it all seems like a bad dream. But it did happen to me, and now that it's over, I realize how fortunate I was to have been able to take advantage of, and be a part of, some of the very valuable research on cancer."

NO INDICATION

Just by looking at Gloria Lewis, an attractive, vivacious high school junior, a person would never guess that she once had cancer, or further guess that she is the first person ever to survive her type of malignancy listed in the records of Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia.

Gloria confesses that she is unable to remember anything about her illness, since it all began when she was about eight months old.

This was when her family moved from Pennsylvania, where Gloria was born, to Texas. Always a healthy baby, Gloria suddenly became listless after the trip, and her parents couldn't understand why.

Then a doctor diagnosed her trouble as a large malignancy, known as a Welm's tumor, located on her left side.

Treatments of radium X-rays greatly reduced the size of the lump. Next came surgery, followed by more X-rays. Doctors said if the cancer did not return in six years that she would be considered cured, although they doubted that she would ever be able to walk.

But the disease was treated in its early stages, and that fact, coupled with the Lewis' determination that Gloria would not live her life as a "hopeless cripple," brought her through the ordeal.

DANCING ENTHUSIAST

Always an enthusiastic dancer, Gloria is now completing her seventh year of formal training. She enjoys all types of dancing, she says, as well as many other typical teen-age recreations.

"My only handicap is that I don't like to wear a two-piece bathing suit because my scar shows," Gloria confided.

Rather than shunning exercise because of her condition, Gloria devotes a great deal of time to it. "I think my dancing is one of the main factors in my recovery," she said. "The exercise helped to develop my side and enabled me to maintain the tone in the rest of my body."

"For a very long time," she continued, "I had to be extra-conscious of my posture, but now even that is normal."

At 16, Gloria doesn't believe that she will have a recurrance of cancer, but willingly endorses efforts to further knowledge about the disease.

Three years ago, Gloria was a guest of honor at a national cancer convention in New Orleans, and since then has served several times in the fight against cancer.

"If I had to have cancer, I'm glad it was in my throat," said Mrs. Paul K. Wright, who underwent a laryngectomy 11½ years ago.

"My doctors told me that the throat was the safest place to have a malignancy," Mrs. Wright explained. "This area is supposed to be the easiest to treat, and there is less danger of the cancer returning."

VERDICT IN 1952

The verdict of cancer came in 1952, after Mrs. Wright's local doctors referred her case to Ochsner's Clinic in New Orleans. There she was told that she had an immediate choice between X-ray treatments and surgery, but that surgery would probably be necessary in the future.

"I decided to go ahead with the surgery," Mrs. Wright said. The operation entailed complete removal of her larnyx — the organ of speech.

"After the operation I had to learn to talk all over again. I couldn't make a sound. For many weeks, I used reams of note paper in the slow, cumbersome process of communication.

But with her optimistic determination, Mrs. Wright, using no artificial aids, learned to speak again.

After a month-long convalescence at Oschsner's, Mrs. Wright enrolled in speech therapy at the Memphis Speech and Hearing Clinic in Memphis. In six weeks, she had learned to manager her "new voice."

RESUMED POST

Forced to leave her position as a visitor with the Louisiana Department of Public Welfare during her illness, Mrs. Wright did clerical work for about a year and a half while she was perfecting her speech. She resumed her visitor's post in 1957.

Now the bright-eyed Mrs. Wright is back in her favorite work and uses her voice daily in talking with co-workers, taking applications, visiting the public and recording all her data on a dictaphone.

Along with her career, Mrs. Wright devotes a great deal of time to her family in West Monroe. Her husband is office manager of Union Oil Mill, and her 23-year-old son, Ken, who was recently married, is associated with an insurance firm.

In discussing her feelings when she learned that she had cancer, Mrs. Wright admitted that she was not too frightened by the diagnosis.

'SUSPECTED ALL ALONG'

"We had suspected all along that this would be the answer. The biopsy in New Orleans merely confirmed the doctors' theories.

"I think what really helped me the most was the literature I had read about cancer and its treatment. I was familiar with the procedures involved in laryngectomies and speech therapy, so I wasn't terribly afraid."

"Naturally, my experience has left me with a great interest in cancer," Mrs. Wright continued, "and in other laryngectomy patients in particular."

As a member of the International Association of Laryngectomees, Mrs. Wright receives a bi-monthly bulletin which enables her to keep up with the latest developments in the field and with the people who share her condition.

CELEBRATING THEIR FIRST full year free from constant worries about cancer, Janice and Billy Joe Hodnett compare ideas on the selection of foods offered at a local restaurant. Billy Joe, a speech education major at Northeast State College, is also music director at Claiborne Baptist Church. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford)

A TYPICAL TASK around the welfare department for Mrs. Paul K. Wright is this use of a dictaphone. This routine duty, scarcely even considered by most office workers, is fully appreciated by Mrs. Wright, who spent several months in total silence after throat cancer necessitated the removal of her vocal cords. (Staff Photo by John Fogleman.)

MAINTAINING A COMPLETE record collection is a very important item on the agenda of an aspiring dancer, so Gloria Lewis, 16-year-old Neville High Junior, sorts out a few of her albums. Stricken by cancer when she was eight months old, Gloria is now fully recovered and is an avid swimmer, as well as an accomplished dancer. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford.)

The only prevalent treatment was surgery followed by X-ray treatments, Janice's doctor told her, and even with this method there was no assurance that she would be completely cured.

"Heartbroken, I gave my consent for the operation," Janice continued, "although it meant I would never be able to have children."

The night before the surgery was scheduled, Janice's doctor mentioned that he had been reading about a new drug, still being researched, that might possibly be able to cure Choriocarcinoma.

He explained to Janice that if she chose this treatment, she would literally be setting herself up as a human "guinea pig." Along with the fact that there was no guarantee the medication would be effective, there would definitely be painful and toxic effects from the extremely powerful drug.

NEW HOPE

"I knew immediately that this was the answer I had prayed for," Janice said. My surgery was cancelled 12 hours before the operation. The minute the decision was made to take the new medicine, I felt like a new person. I believed in it — I knew it would work. From then on, I relied upon my favorite scripture to help me: 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.' "

Janice was the first person in Monroe to undergo this type of medication, which required hospitalization and constant supervision with each treatment.

Her reactions were quite favorable at the start, but after five doses at a local hospital, her physicians decided that her progress had come to a standstill even though there was a small amount of the cancer left.

After consultation with specialists at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., where the preliminary testing of the drug took place, Janice's doctors sent her to Passavant Memorial Hospital in Chicago, for treatments with a second type of medicine.

FORTUNATE TIMING

If anytihing can be said to have been fortunate about Janice's illness, it was the timing. In October, 1962, the National Institutes of Health issued a three-year grant totaling approximately $158,000 to open a Choriocarcinoma treatment center at Passavant.

Serving as a reasearch subject at the newly-opened center, Janice had all her expenses paid by NIH. She and her husband went to Chicago in January, 1963, where she was the twentieth patient to receive this treatment.

Then on March 31, 1963, Janice was informed that all her cancer tests were negative and that she could return home.

"My story is a miracle-type story that I would expect to read — not one I would expect to happen to me," Janice concluded. "Now it all seems like a bad dream. But it did happen to me, and now that it's over, I realize how fortunate I was to have been able to take advantage of, and be a part of, some of the very valuable research on cancer."

NO INDICATION

Just by looking at Gloria Lewis, an attractive, vivacious high school junior, a person would never guess that she once had cancer, or further guess that she is the first person ever to survive her type of malignancy listed in the records of Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia.

Gloria confesses that she is unable to remember anything about her illness, since it all began when she was about eight months old.

This was when her family moved from Pennsylvania, where Gloria was born, to Texas. Always a healthy baby, Gloria suddenly became listless after the trip, and her parents couldn't understand why.

Then a doctor diagnosed her trouble as a large malignancy, known as a Welm's tumor, located on her left side.

Treatments of radium X-rays greatly reduced the size of the lump. Next came surgery, followed by more X-rays. Doctors said if the cancer did not return in six years that she would be considered cured, although they doubted that she would ever be able to walk.

But the disease was treated in its early stages, and that fact, coupled with the Lewis' determination that Gloria would not live her life as a "hopeless cripple," brought her through the ordeal.

DANCING ENTHUSIAST

Always an enthusiastic dancer, Gloria is now completing her seventh year of formal training. She enjoys all types of dancing, she says, as well as many other typical teen-age recreations.

"My only handicap is that I don't like to wear a two-piece bathing suit because my scar shows," Gloria confided.

Rather than shunning exercise because of her condition, Gloria devotes a great deal of time to it. "I think my dancing is one of the main factors in my recovery," she said. "The exercise helped to develop my side and enabled me to maintain the tone in the rest of my body."

"For a very long time," she continued, "I had to be extra-conscious of my posture, but now even that is normal."

At 16, Gloria doesn't believe that she will have a recurrance of cancer, but willingly endorses efforts to further knowledge about the disease.

Three years ago, Gloria was a guest of honor at a national cancer convention in New Orleans, and since then has served several times in the fight against cancer.

"If I had to have cancer, I'm glad it was in my throat," said Mrs. Paul K. Wright, who underwent a laryngectomy 11½ years ago.

"My doctors told me that the throat was the safest place to have a malignancy," Mrs. Wright explained. "This area is supposed to be the easiest to treat, and there is less danger of the cancer returning."

VERDICT IN 1952

The verdict of cancer came in 1952, after Mrs. Wright's local doctors referred her case to Ochsner's Clinic in New Orleans. There she was told that she had an immediate choice between X-ray treatments and surgery, but that surgery would probably be necessary in the future.

"I decided to go ahead with the surgery," Mrs. Wright said. The operation entailed complete removal of her larnyx — the organ of speech.

"After the operation I had to learn to talk all over again. I couldn't make a sound. For many weeks, I used reams of note paper in the slow, cumbersome process of communication.

But with her optimistic determination, Mrs. Wright, using no artificial aids, learned to speak again.

After a month-long convalescence at Oschsner's, Mrs. Wright enrolled in speech therapy at the Memphis Speech and Hearing Clinic in Memphis. In six weeks, she had learned to manager her "new voice."

RESUMED POST

Forced to leave her position as a visitor with the Louisiana Department of Public Welfare during her illness, Mrs. Wright did clerical work for about a year and a half while she was perfecting her speech. She resumed her visitor's post in 1957.

Now the bright-eyed Mrs. Wright is back in her favorite work and uses her voice daily in talking with co-workers, taking applications, visiting the public and recording all her data on a dictaphone.

Along with her career, Mrs. Wright devotes a great deal of time to her family in West Monroe. Her husband is office manager of Union Oil Mill, and her 23-year-old son, Ken, who was recently married, is associated with an insurance firm.

In discussing her feelings when she learned that she had cancer, Mrs. Wright admitted that she was not too frightened by the diagnosis.

'SUSPECTED ALL ALONG'

"We had suspected all along that this would be the answer. The biopsy in New Orleans merely confirmed the doctors' theories.

"I think what really helped me the most was the literature I had read about cancer and its treatment. I was familiar with the procedures involved in laryngectomies and speech therapy, so I wasn't terribly afraid."

"Naturally, my experience has left me with a great interest in cancer," Mrs. Wright continued, "and in other laryngectomy patients in particular."

As a member of the International Association of Laryngectomees, Mrs. Wright receives a bi-monthly bulletin which enables her to keep up with the latest developments in the field and with the people who share her condition.

CELEBRATING THEIR FIRST full year free from constant worries about cancer, Janice and Billy Joe Hodnett compare ideas on the selection of foods offered at a local restaurant. Billy Joe, a speech education major at Northeast State College, is also music director at Claiborne Baptist Church. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford)

A TYPICAL TASK around the welfare department for Mrs. Paul K. Wright is this use of a dictaphone. This routine duty, scarcely even considered by most office workers, is fully appreciated by Mrs. Wright, who spent several months in total silence after throat cancer necessitated the removal of her vocal cords. (Staff Photo by John Fogleman.)

MAINTAINING A COMPLETE record collection is a very important item on the agenda of an aspiring dancer, so Gloria Lewis, 16-year-old Neville High Junior, sorts out a few of her albums. Stricken by cancer when she was eight months old, Gloria is now fully recovered and is an avid swimmer, as well as an accomplished dancer. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford.)

World Endorses Howard, Rodriguez And McSherry

On May 16, qualified voters of Monroe will cast ballots in a Democratic Primary to select men who will fill important offices in the city government for the next four years — a period that probably will be the most important in city history.

Offices to be filled include those of mayor, city commissioners, city school board posts and city Democratic executive committee positions.

Major Group

While the school board and executive committee elections are important, the city council, of course, is the major governing body of Monroe. Serious consideration and good judgment should be used in electing a mayor, commissioner of streets, and commissioner of finance and utilities.

Based on their records of performance, The Monroe Morning World endorses Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of streets, and H. W. McSherry, commissioner of finance and utilities, for re-election. And we do so with no reservations.

These three men who comprise the present city council are not seeking re-election as a "ticket." Each is running as an independent candidate without being politically aligned with either of the others. Even so, in view of the progress made in Monroe during the last eight years, the three incumbents have worked as an excellent team in the interest of the city and of the entire area.

With the strong and consistent support and cooperation of progressive-minded citizens of Monroe, Mayor Howard, and Commissioners Rodriguez and McSherry have designed a blueprint for tomorrow in Monroe. This is better known as the $11¼ million capital improvement program—and when completed will give this city the most modern and up-to-date facilities of any city in the state.

Included in this long - awaited and vitally needed program will be a new city hall, municipal auditorium, civic center, airport terminal building, fire department improvements and sewerage treatment plant. These projects are scheduled to be completed by the latter part of 1966 or early in 1967 and will give Monroe a "new look," placing it in the forefront of progressive cities.

Projects Vital

All of these projects are vitally important. Together, the new city hall and municipal auditorium will put a bright, shining and welcoming face on the city of Monroe for various delegates, industrialists, businessmen and visitors who come to this city. They should increase the city's air of hospitality a hundred fold and its facilities for accommodation far beyond that.

Ranking particularly high in importance is the new sewerage treatment plant, which will assist Monroe in ridding the Ouachita of its own pollution.

These projects must be carried out according to plan and The World believes Mayor Howard, Mr. Rodriguez and Mr. McSherry are the men best qualified to complete this tremendous job they have started.

To finish the capital improvement program is, without question, the major reason the people of Monroe should return the incumbents to office.

But there are numerous other reasons.

Of major importance, the City of Monroe continues to be operated on good business principles. Gone are the days when the city's financial ledger was written in red ink; gone are the days when the city could not pay its current bills; gone are the days when the city was broke.

Today the city enjoys an excellent financial condition. There is money in the bank for Monroe as the city operates on a pay-as-you go basis. This is because Mr. Howard, Mr. Rodriquez and Mr. McSherry, with the support of the people, have operated economically with the harmonious cooperation of the Utilities Commission, which now has established water and light rates comparable to those charged by private utilities.

Our tax structure, in addition, compares better than favorably with our sister cities. For instance, property owners in Monroe pay 40 mills annually for the maintenance of the city's facilities and the city's schools while in Alexandria property owners pay 46½ mills and in Lafayette 59 mills.

In Monroe, property owners, paying 40 mills, have access to expanded recreational facilities, good streets, fine schools, and excellent fire and police protection. A small $2 fee is charged each home dweller monthly for the collection of garbage, mosquito abatement and the maintenance of sewerage and drainage. In some other cities home owners are required to wrap their garbage before placing it next to the streets for pick-up but in Monroe city crews render backyard-to-truck service.

Other Fields

While finances of any city government are of extreme consideration, Monroe has managed—under Mr. Howard, Mr. Rodriguiz and Mr. McSherry—to progress in other fields.

For example, in Mr. Rodriguez's department, the city in the past four years has improved 216 streets, or 49.44 miles of street improvements, with the support of the property owners. Practically all of Monroe's Class A streets have been resurfaced.

Besides that, the city now has two underpasses — at Plum Street, built from the city's general fund, with the help from the railroads, and at South Second Street, built with city and state revenues. Without a working relationship with the state administration, the latter project could not have been carried out.

There is no reason why Monroe —with the incumbents returned to office — cannot maintain a working relationship with the state administration for the coming four years.

Other improvements in Monroe include a greatly expanded drainage system. Seldom do our city streets flood today. Our sewer systems have been expanded so that more than 90 per cent of the city now has underground sewer facilities.

In Mr. McSherry's department, Monroe has seen the construction of four new recreation centers and two new swimming pools, providing equal facilities for white and Negro citizens.

In addition, the zoo at Bernstein park has been improved and expanded to such a point that it has become a major attraction for Monroe. Few zoos in comparable cities equal ours.

Dedicated

While forward steps have been taken in the departments of Mr. McSherry and Mr. Rodriguez, the drive and dedication of Mayor Howard, a man of business experience and sincerity, in improving facilities of all types for the use of the people, has been clearly demonstrated.

Under Mayor Howard, Monroe has enjoyed its greatest growth and development in modern times. That is evident everywhere. Business is expanding and our city is doing well and has established a good reputation.

Monroe enjoys low interest rates on bonds because of the city's excellent financial condition. In the selling of recent bonds the city saved thousands of dollars on interest rates because of this one factor.

Through their progressiveness, the present members of the city council have been able to attract several new businesses to Monroe.

Because of a top-grade fire department and its sucess in preventing fire losses, fire insurance rates for Monroe residences and businesses have been reduced.

The incumbents have also carried on a successful city beautification program. One of the latest and most noticeable improvements is the provision of additional boat docks on the Ouachita river.

With the capital improvement program and the pending nine-foot channel in the Ouachita river completed, Monroe's future will look bright. Our city will continue to grow and develop.

For these reasons, we, the citizens of Monroe, must not turn back now. We have just begun.

That is why The World believes — and we believe a majority of the citizens will agree — the re-election of Mayor Howard and Commissioners McSherry and Rodriguez is vitally important because they are the men who can guide Monroe to a completion of its objectives.

Views Of Our Readers

Can It Be?

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The racial issue has become a festering sore in both the north and the south. Even the western states have not escaped the turmoil created by racial groups trying to pressure the congress in legislative alternations of customs long established. Our politicans (not statesmen) are using this situation to accomplish their own ends.

Prior to World War II there began an exodus of industry from the old industrial areas of the north to the south and southwest. The politicians of the north became alarmed and concerned at the adverse effect this movement had on their economy and the loss of population. The unions were frightened because of loss of dues and the loss of membership. The southern area had many advantages — good labor supply, abundance of raw materials, milder climate and less rigid union labor control. These were the factors that encouraged the industrialists to move south.

What could be done to discourage this movement?

The south and southwest had a large Negro population which, if aroused, could create an atmosphere of hate, conflict and greed. Such chaos would be an unhealthy climate for industry. This, then, was the basis of a program called the civil rights movement.

It could be that the politicians and the labor groups are not so much in sympathy with the Negro rights as they are in using the Negro as a tool to accomplish their selfish purposes.

It may be that the "civil righters" have "overplayed their hand." People throughout the nation are sick of demonstrations, turmoil and federal condonement of the disregard for law. Let the present administration give this some thought and beware of the next national elections.

Glenwood Hospital

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I deeply appreciate the article in the Monroe Morning World by Mary Ann Corpin on the expansion of Glenwood Hospital in West Monroe.

Her article gave the basic facts on the expansion of this fine hospital, which is a great humanitarian institution right in our midst.

In my lifetime I have seldom, if ever, seen so much service offered for so little. The Methodist church operates this hospital without any pay for its services. Members of the board of commissioners have and do give their services free, as do members of the board of trustees.

Tex Kilpatrick, general chairman of the campaign to enlarge the hospital, is now giving a great deal of his busy life, as are his assistants and helpers, free for this wonderful project to completely double the facilities of Glenwood.

As Mary Ann Corpin says in her article, for only the renewing of the half-mill tax for bonds, which is only 50 cents on $1,000 of taxable property, we can enlarge this fine hospital.

Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Mrs. Boyd:

This will acknowledge your letter of February 17, 1964, relative to the activity of your Society in the field of humane work, for which I thank you very kindly.

As a child I was taught that you could always trust a person who loved dogs and if you observed a person being kind to a dog, then you had met a genuine individual. Also I was taught that there was something missing in the makeup of a person who was cruel to dogs and other domesticated animals.

As a lover of man's best friend, the dog, may I say to you that I am proud of the work that your Society is doing and I wish very much to be associated with you in this noble endeavor. If you know of any service that I can render that would make your job easier or would make it possible for your organization to increase its scope of work, then please command my services.

I cannot believe that you are going to encounter any difficulty in obtaining public support and funds to build a shelter and create a one-year reserve for maintenance. When this job is done, I am sure it will attract the attention of the officials of the parish and city governments to the extent that they will consider taking the funds necessary to maintain a dog pound and transferring this work to your Society. To this end, we must all direct our best efforts.

Assuring you of my continued interests and of my best wishes for your maximum success.

Member of Congress

Thanks Expresed

To the Editor:

I would like to take this means of expressing my sincere thanks to you for your efforts in making our March Egg Promotional Program a success in Monroe and the surrounding areas. I feel that the program in Monroe was one of the most outstanding in the state.

I am looking forward to working with you in the future. Again, thank you for your cooperation.

Called 'Counterfeit'

To the Editor:

This chronic bellyacher would like your kind indulgence in these few pious observations deemed necessary in view of recent political calisthenics in Washington. Should not our so-called "southern" President who, because of his apparent disregard for the good people of the south in particular, evidenced by his attempt to hamstring us with a punitive and vicious civil rights monstrosity, now be more aptly referred to as "counterfeit Confederate"?

He seems to have already imported the detested "foot-in-mouth" disease into the Washington scene, along with historical amnesia and his own version of left-wind dementia. We are now to be launched into a feigned "war on poverty". It appears obvious that very few people understand that this is a fight that he expects to lose while winning the election, and that he and top national figures are not capable of fully appraising the program's ultimate accomplishments.

At the same time we drool and drool over what these wheeler - dealers expect us to believe is a manna from heaven, when they dole us out a few paltry dollars of our own income tax money in the form of a tax cut, and even this we are urged to throw back into the vicious cycle of circulation immediately, that it might be dumped into the laps of those "nice" nations, those ne'er-do-well, undeserving, insulting and unappreciative foreign nations who wonder at our stupidity.

This involves the ridiculous principle of "spending ourselves rich" while poverty festers everlastingly in this richest nation on earth — but richest in what?

Sincerely,

Church Against Mixing

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

President Johnson has asked the ministers of the Southern Baptist Convention to preach from their pulpits the so-called civil rights bill and to urge their people to accept the bill. If we do anything at the Landmark Missionary Baptist Church of West Monroe we will preach against this freedom-robbing bill.

Our church is affiliated with the American Baptist Association, and we wish to make public the stand that our church and our national association has made for years regarding integration.

On June 23, 1959, the American Baptist Association unanimously adopted the first of its resolutions regarding integration. In part we quote from this resolution: "We recognize all men of all races as our neighbors and our brothers, only in the sense of their creation in the image of God, and that it is wrong before God moraly, socially, and Biblically to force all races to integrate in social affairs."

"Be it Finally Resolved that our people, as Christian Citizens of the State, use their influence in every peaceable and legal way possible to discourage and prevent social mixing and mongrelizing, especially with the NEGROID race, because we believe it to be against the Word and Will of God, by which we shall all one day be Supremely Judged."

The Landmark Baptist Church does not believe that any Bible Scholar can prove by the Bible that integration of races has ever or will ever be accepted of God. They can not prove it is taught in the Bible. We have men in our ranks who have debated the question, and they will do so again if called upon.

We call upon other Baptist Organizations to publish a resolution that has been adopted by their association or convention against integration, IF THEY HAVE ANY.

As pastor of the Landmark Missionary Baptist Church, I feel that President Johnson had no right whatsoever to instruct a minister of the Gosepl what to preach. A minister is led of the Holy Spirit and is called of God to preach the Word of God, and a neither a civil rights bill nor integration cannot be substantiated by the Word of God.

Thresher Widows Receive U.S. Pay

ONE YEAR AGO this coming Friday, Apr. 10, the submarine U. S. S. Thresher plunged to the ocean bottom about 200 miles off the coast of New England. In seconds, 129 men perished. The disaster also left 85 widows and 171 fatherless children — plus another seven born shortly after the Thresher went down.

The story of the Thresher survivors dramatically, though tragically, illustrates the extent of the financial benefits paid today to more than 3,000,000 widows and children of men covered by the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system. And since many widows — particularly young women — are not aware of the survivor benefits to which they are eligible today, this follow-up tale is of key interest.

In all but one case, the Thresher widows with children under 18 have been eligible for monthly benefits and, had their husbands not been buried at sea, the other widows would have received lump-sum payments to cover funeral costs. Monthly benefits for the surviving families are ranging up to the maximum $254.

HERE IS THE CASE of a typical Thresher family — consisting of a widow, age 29, and two young girls, ages 4 and 7.

Benefits, which became payable immediately, amount to $67.50 per month for each of the three survivors. The children will continue to receive monthly checks until they are 18, and when the 7-year-old reaches that age, benefits for her mother and sister will rise to $71.30 a month. When the mother reaches 62 — assuming she does not remarry — her benefits will rise to $78.40.

The total "expected" benefits for this one family of three are estimated at $29,385. The total present value of benefits going to the Thresher survivors is $1,672,000.

How many are eligible today for this coverage and how many are receiving benefits?

Today 91 million workers (active and retired) are eligible; nine out of 10 mothers and their children are eligible in the event of the death of the breadwinner.

TODAY 500,000 widows and 2. million children are receiving regular benefits — double the number only five years ago. In all, more than 5 million mothers and children have received monthly benefits amounting to nearly $13 billion since the program went into effect in 1940.

What do benefits amount to?

Monthly payments now range from $60 to $254 per family. The average is $192 monthly for a widowed mother with two children. Social Security today is paying close to $400 million to survivors each month.

Who qualifies?

All widows with children under 18 if their deceased husbands have Social Security credit of at least a year and a half out of the three years prior to death. Children over 18 may qualify if they have been disabled since before their 18th birthday. If a widow remarries, she no longer receives these benefits but her children continue to receive their shares—unless and until they too get married.

SURVIVORS QUALIFY not only for monthly benefits but also for lump sum payment toward funeral costs of $120 to $255.

Can the children of a woman worker get benefits if she dies?

Yes, and even if the father is living at home and contributing to their support — if she worked under Social Security for at least half of the three years before her death. If she has not worked that much, but has previous Security credit, her children will get benefits only if she was contributing half their support or was living with them and their father was doing neither.

The individual monthly benefits may appear small, but in countless hundreds of thousands of cases, they are the force holding a family together and keeping the children out of the old-fashioned orphanage.

Never Write Off Elderly Patient

THIS IS A TIP for doctors of medicine. Nevertheless, readers of the column are cordially invited to partake. After all, you are the ones really involved.

My tip is this: for pity's sake, never say to an elderly patient who comes in for reassurance or for some medicine to relieve discomfort: "What do you expect at your age?" If I can take pride in only one thing in the practice of medicine, I have never been been guilty of such an inane, callous and unsympathetic remark.

I recall a lively lady of about 75 who bustled into my office to keep her first appointment. You could see she was still upset about something. In effect, here is what she told me:

"Before I tell you why I'm here, doctor, I think you ought to know why I left my previous medical man. How could I continue to come to a man who was asinine enough to say to me last week, when I complained of being dizzy at times: 'What do you expect at your age?'

"IT MADE ME SO mad, I couldn't wait to get my dress on and stalk out of that office. But not before I told him what I thought. Does everybody who has passed the Biblical allotment have to lie down in a corner and suffer just because he or she is over 65 or 70? Does the fact that I'm 75 mean that I can't ask for relief of dizziness? Don't 40-year-olds suffer from dizziness too? What's the difference between trying to help them and older patients?

"Take it from me, doctor, medical schools ought to give courses in common sense handling of patients and tact. But I suppose that's too much to ask."

And so she went on and on and I let her. Letting off steam would do her good. In fact, after a few minutes she said that she felt better now that she had got that out of her system.

SHE WAS IN remarkably good physical condition. Her blood pressure electrocardiogram and other examinations fell within normal limits. I tried to explain to her that dizziness in her case was probably due to less elasticity in her arteries. I made certain not to use another silly phrase we sometimes use loosely: "You'll have to learn to live with it." Instead, I prescribed medicine which sometimes helps, but I emphasized I couldn't make any promises for cure.

"Well, that's better," she said. "Now I still feel like a member of the human race. That's all I expect, nothing more — at my age."

Before she left she turned to me and said, "I wish you'd do me a favor. Call the other doctor and tell him why I left. Perhaps that will put some sense into him so he won't ever say to an older patient, 'What so you expect at your age?' "

THE "OTHER" doctor happened to be a colleague I had known for years and respected as a skillful diagnostician. I did not hesitate to call him after she had left. I put it as nicely as I could. I was not at all surprised to hear him admit that he was sorry when he let that phrase slip out. "I'll never be guilty of it again," he said.

All of these projects are vitally important. Together, the new city hall and municipal auditorium will put a bright, shining and welcoming face on the city of Monroe for various delegates, industrialists, businessmen and visitors who come to this city. They should increase the city's air of hospitality a hundred fold and its facilities for accommodation far beyond that.

Ranking particularly high in importance is the new sewerage treatment plant, which will assist Monroe in ridding the Ouachita of its own pollution.

These projects must be carried out according to plan and The World believes Mayor Howard, Mr. Rodriguez and Mr. McSherry are the men best qualified to complete this tremendous job they have started.

To finish the capital improvement program is, without question, the major reason the people of Monroe should return the incumbents to office.

But there are numerous other reasons.

Of major importance, the City of Monroe continues to be operated on good business principles. Gone are the days when the city's financial ledger was written in red ink; gone are the days when the city could not pay its current bills; gone are the days when the city was broke.

Today the city enjoys an excellent financial condition. There is money in the bank for Monroe as the city operates on a pay-as-you go basis. This is because Mr. Howard, Mr. Rodriquez and Mr. McSherry, with the support of the people, have operated economically with the harmonious cooperation of the Utilities Commission, which now has established water and light rates comparable to those charged by private utilities.

Our tax structure, in addition, compares better than favorably with our sister cities. For instance, property owners in Monroe pay 40 mills annually for the maintenance of the city's facilities and the city's schools while in Alexandria property owners pay 46½ mills and in Lafayette 59 mills.

In Monroe, property owners, paying 40 mills, have access to expanded recreational facilities, good streets, fine schools, and excellent fire and police protection. A small $2 fee is charged each home dweller monthly for the collection of garbage, mosquito abatement and the maintenance of sewerage and drainage. In some other cities home owners are required to wrap their garbage before placing it next to the streets for pick-up but in Monroe city crews render backyard-to-truck service.

Other Fields

While finances of any city government are of extreme consideration, Monroe has managed—under Mr. Howard, Mr. Rodriguiz and Mr. McSherry—to progress in other fields.

For example, in Mr. Rodriguez's department, the city in the past four years has improved 216 streets, or 49.44 miles of street improvements, with the support of the property owners. Practically all of Monroe's Class A streets have been resurfaced.

Besides that, the city now has two underpasses — at Plum Street, built from the city's general fund, with the help from the railroads, and at South Second Street, built with city and state revenues. Without a working relationship with the state administration, the latter project could not have been carried out.

There is no reason why Monroe —with the incumbents returned to office — cannot maintain a working relationship with the state administration for the coming four years.

Other improvements in Monroe include a greatly expanded drainage system. Seldom do our city streets flood today. Our sewer systems have been expanded so that more than 90 per cent of the city now has underground sewer facilities.

In Mr. McSherry's department, Monroe has seen the construction of four new recreation centers and two new swimming pools, providing equal facilities for white and Negro citizens.

In addition, the zoo at Bernstein park has been improved and expanded to such a point that it has become a major attraction for Monroe. Few zoos in comparable cities equal ours.

Dedicated

While forward steps have been taken in the departments of Mr. McSherry and Mr. Rodriguez, the drive and dedication of Mayor Howard, a man of business experience and sincerity, in improving facilities of all types for the use of the people, has been clearly demonstrated.

Under Mayor Howard, Monroe has enjoyed its greatest growth and development in modern times. That is evident everywhere. Business is expanding and our city is doing well and has established a good reputation.

Monroe enjoys low interest rates on bonds because of the city's excellent financial condition. In the selling of recent bonds the city saved thousands of dollars on interest rates because of this one factor.

Through their progressiveness, the present members of the city council have been able to attract several new businesses to Monroe.

Because of a top-grade fire department and its sucess in preventing fire losses, fire insurance rates for Monroe residences and businesses have been reduced.

The incumbents have also carried on a successful city beautification program. One of the latest and most noticeable improvements is the provision of additional boat docks on the Ouachita river.

With the capital improvement program and the pending nine-foot channel in the Ouachita river completed, Monroe's future will look bright. Our city will continue to grow and develop.

For these reasons, we, the citizens of Monroe, must not turn back now. We have just begun.

That is why The World believes — and we believe a majority of the citizens will agree — the re-election of Mayor Howard and Commissioners McSherry and Rodriguez is vitally important because they are the men who can guide Monroe to a completion of its objectives.

Can It Be?

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The racial issue has become a festering sore in both the north and the south. Even the western states have not escaped the turmoil created by racial groups trying to pressure the congress in legislative alternations of customs long established. Our politicans (not statesmen) are using this situation to accomplish their own ends.

Prior to World War II there began an exodus of industry from the old industrial areas of the north to the south and southwest. The politicians of the north became alarmed and concerned at the adverse effect this movement had on their economy and the loss of population. The unions were frightened because of loss of dues and the loss of membership. The southern area had many advantages — good labor supply, abundance of raw materials, milder climate and less rigid union labor control. These were the factors that encouraged the industrialists to move south.

What could be done to discourage this movement?

The south and southwest had a large Negro population which, if aroused, could create an atmosphere of hate, conflict and greed. Such chaos would be an unhealthy climate for industry. This, then, was the basis of a program called the civil rights movement.

It could be that the politicians and the labor groups are not so much in sympathy with the Negro rights as they are in using the Negro as a tool to accomplish their selfish purposes.

It may be that the "civil righters" have "overplayed their hand." People throughout the nation are sick of demonstrations, turmoil and federal condonement of the disregard for law. Let the present administration give this some thought and beware of the next national elections.

Glenwood Hospital

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I deeply appreciate the article in the Monroe Morning World by Mary Ann Corpin on the expansion of Glenwood Hospital in West Monroe.

Her article gave the basic facts on the expansion of this fine hospital, which is a great humanitarian institution right in our midst.

In my lifetime I have seldom, if ever, seen so much service offered for so little. The Methodist church operates this hospital without any pay for its services. Members of the board of commissioners have and do give their services free, as do members of the board of trustees.

Tex Kilpatrick, general chairman of the campaign to enlarge the hospital, is now giving a great deal of his busy life, as are his assistants and helpers, free for this wonderful project to completely double the facilities of Glenwood.

As Mary Ann Corpin says in her article, for only the renewing of the half-mill tax for bonds, which is only 50 cents on $1,000 of taxable property, we can enlarge this fine hospital.

Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Mrs. Boyd:

This will acknowledge your letter of February 17, 1964, relative to the activity of your Society in the field of humane work, for which I thank you very kindly.

As a child I was taught that you could always trust a person who loved dogs and if you observed a person being kind to a dog, then you had met a genuine individual. Also I was taught that there was something missing in the makeup of a person who was cruel to dogs and other domesticated animals.

As a lover of man's best friend, the dog, may I say to you that I am proud of the work that your Society is doing and I wish very much to be associated with you in this noble endeavor. If you know of any service that I can render that would make your job easier or would make it possible for your organization to increase its scope of work, then please command my services.

I cannot believe that you are going to encounter any difficulty in obtaining public support and funds to build a shelter and create a one-year reserve for maintenance. When this job is done, I am sure it will attract the attention of the officials of the parish and city governments to the extent that they will consider taking the funds necessary to maintain a dog pound and transferring this work to your Society. To this end, we must all direct our best efforts.

Assuring you of my continued interests and of my best wishes for your maximum success.

Member of Congress

Called 'Counterfeit'

To the Editor:

This chronic bellyacher would like your kind indulgence in these few pious observations deemed necessary in view of recent political calisthenics in Washington. Should not our so-called "southern" President who, because of his apparent disregard for the good people of the south in particular, evidenced by his attempt to hamstring us with a punitive and vicious civil rights monstrosity, now be more aptly referred to as "counterfeit Confederate"?

He seems to have already imported the detested "foot-in-mouth" disease into the Washington scene, along with historical amnesia and his own version of left-wind dementia. We are now to be launched into a feigned "war on poverty". It appears obvious that very few people understand that this is a fight that he expects to lose while winning the election, and that he and top national figures are not capable of fully appraising the program's ultimate accomplishments.

At the same time we drool and drool over what these wheeler - dealers expect us to believe is a manna from heaven, when they dole us out a few paltry dollars of our own income tax money in the form of a tax cut, and even this we are urged to throw back into the vicious cycle of circulation immediately, that it might be dumped into the laps of those "nice" nations, those ne'er-do-well, undeserving, insulting and unappreciative foreign nations who wonder at our stupidity.

This involves the ridiculous principle of "spending ourselves rich" while poverty festers everlastingly in this richest nation on earth — but richest in what?

Sincerely,
Dillion A. Wilkins

Church Against Mixing

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

President Johnson has asked the ministers of the Southern Baptist Convention to preach from their pulpits the so-called civil rights bill and to urge their people to accept the bill. If we do anything at the Landmark Missionary Baptist Church of West Monroe we will preach against this freedom-robbing bill.

Our church is affiliated with the American Baptist Association, and we wish to make public the stand that our church and our national association has made for years regarding integration.

On June 23, 1959, the American Baptist Association unanimously adopted the first of its resolutions regarding integration. In part we quote from this resolution: "We recognize all men of all races as our neighbors and our brothers, only in the sense of their creation in the image of God, and that it is wrong before God moraly, socially, and Biblically to force all races to integrate in social affairs."

"Be it Finally Resolved that our people, as Christian Citizens of the State, use their influence in every peaceable and legal way possible to discourage and prevent social mixing and mongrelizing, especially with the NEGROID race, because we believe it to be against the Word and Will of God, by which we shall all one day be Supremely Judged."

The Landmark Baptist Church does not believe that any Bible Scholar can prove by the Bible that integration of races has ever or will ever be accepted of God. They can not prove it is taught in the Bible. We have men in our ranks who have debated the question, and they will do so again if called upon.

We call upon other Baptist Organizations to publish a resolution that has been adopted by their association or convention against integration, IF THEY HAVE ANY.

As pastor of the Landmark Missionary Baptist Church, I feel that President Johnson had no right whatsoever to instruct a minister of the Gosepl what to preach. A minister is led of the Holy Spirit and is called of God to preach the Word of God, and a neither a civil rights bill nor integration cannot be substantiated by the Word of God.

Thresher Widows Receive U.S. Pay

ONE YEAR AGO this coming Friday, Apr. 10, the submarine U. S. S. Thresher plunged to the ocean bottom about 200 miles off the coast of New England. In seconds, 129 men perished. The disaster also left 85 widows and 171 fatherless children — plus another seven born shortly after the Thresher went down.

The story of the Thresher survivors dramatically, though tragically, illustrates the extent of the financial benefits paid today to more than 3,000,000 widows and children of men covered by the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system. And since many widows — particularly young women — are not aware of the survivor benefits to which they are eligible today, this follow-up tale is of key interest.

In all but one case, the Thresher widows with children under 18 have been eligible for monthly benefits and, had their husbands not been buried at sea, the other widows would have received lump-sum payments to cover funeral costs. Monthly benefits for the surviving families are ranging up to the maximum $254.

HERE IS THE CASE of a typical Thresher family — consisting of a widow, age 29, and two young girls, ages 4 and 7.

Benefits, which became payable immediately, amount to $67.50 per month for each of the three survivors. The children will continue to receive monthly checks until they are 18, and when the 7-year-old reaches that age, benefits for her mother and sister will rise to $71.30 a month. When the mother reaches 62 — assuming she does not remarry — her benefits will rise to $78.40.

The total "expected" benefits for this one family of three are estimated at $29,385. The total present value of benefits going to the Thresher survivors is $1,672,000.

How many are eligible today for this coverage and how many are receiving benefits?

Today 91 million workers (active and retired) are eligible; nine out of 10 mothers and their children are eligible in the event of the death of the breadwinner.

TODAY 500,000 widows and 2. million children are receiving regular benefits — double the number only five years ago. In all, more than 5 million mothers and children have received monthly benefits amounting to nearly $13 billion since the program went into effect in 1940.

What do benefits amount to?

Monthly payments now range from $60 to $254 per family. The average is $192 monthly for a widowed mother with two children. Social Security today is paying close to $400 million to survivors each month.

Who qualifies?

All widows with children under 18 if their deceased husbands have Social Security credit of at least a year and a half out of the three years prior to death. Children over 18 may qualify if they have been disabled since before their 18th birthday. If a widow remarries, she no longer receives these benefits but her children continue to receive their shares—unless and until they too get married.

SURVIVORS QUALIFY not only for monthly benefits but also for lump sum payment toward funeral costs of $120 to $255.

Can the children of a woman worker get benefits if she dies?

Yes, and even if the father is living at home and contributing to their support — if she worked under Social Security for at least half of the three years before her death. If she has not worked that much, but has previous Security credit, her children will get benefits only if she was contributing half their support or was living with them and their father was doing neither.

The individual monthly benefits may appear small, but in countless hundreds of thousands of cases, they are the force holding a family together and keeping the children out of the old-fashioned orphanage.

Never Write Off Elderly Patient

THIS IS A TIP for doctors of medicine. Nevertheless, readers of the column are cordially invited to partake. After all, you are the ones really involved.

My tip is this: for pity's sake, never say to an elderly patient who comes in for reassurance or for some medicine to relieve discomfort: "What do you expect at your age?" If I can take pride in only one thing in the practice of medicine, I have never been guilty of such an inane, callous and unsympathetic remark.

I recall a lively lady of about 75 who bustled into my office to keep her first appointment. You could see she was still upset about something. In effect, here is what she told me:

"Before I tell you why I'm here, doctor, I think you ought to know why I left my previous medical man. How could I continue to come to a man who was asinine enough to say to me last week, when I complained of being dizzy at times: 'What do you expect at your age?'

"IT MADE ME SO mad, I couldn't wait to get my dress on and stalk out of that office. But not before I told him what I thought. Does everybody who has passed the Biblical allotment have to lie down in a corner and suffer just because he or she is over 65 or 70? Does the fact that I'm 75 mean that I can't ask for relief of dizziness? Don't 40-year-olds suffer from dizziness too? What's the difference between trying to help them and older patients?

"Take it from me, doctor, medical schools ought to give courses in common sense handling of patients and tact. But I suppose that's too much to ask."

And so she went on and on and I let her. Letting off steam would do her good. In fact, after a few minutes she said that she felt better now that she had got that out of her system.

SHE WAS IN remarkably good physical condition. Her blood pressure electrocardiogram and other examinations fell within normal limits. I tried to explain to her that dizziness in her case was probably due to less elasticity in her arteries. I made certain not to use another silly phrase we sometimes use loosely: "You'll have to learn to live with it." Instead, I prescribed medicine which sometimes helps, but I emphasized I couldn't make any promises for cure.

"Well, that's better," she said. "Now I still feel like a member of the human race. That's all I expect, nothing more — at my age."

Before she left she turned to me and said, "I wish you'd do me a favor. Call the other doctor and tell him why I left. Perhaps that will put some sense into him so he won't ever say to an older patient, 'What so you expect at your age?'"

THE "OTHER" doctor happened to be a colleague I had known for years and respected as a skillful diagnostician. I did not hesitate to call him after she had left. I put it as nicely as I could. I was not at all surprised to hear him admit that he was sorry when he let that phrase slip out. "I'll never be guilty of it again," he said.

Inside Reports

WHAT WAS behind the speech of Senator Fulbright in which he urged that Americans peel off old myths and think "unthinkable things" in foreign policy? Experts who have had sometime to analyze the unexpected address fear he may have been signaling a profound shift in U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union. A partial blueprint for a new policy is contained in a government-financed, limited-circulation study by the Institute For Defense Analysis, which has become must reading for ranking administration officials. Called the Rock Report, it argues for a strategy of interdependence for common action across national lines for the control of conflict. Critics of the report within the Administration and Congress are alarmed at the way in which recent administration moves and probings toward the Soviets are paralleling or corresponding to the report proposals. . .

U.S. DIPLOMATS just back from Southeast Asia report that Cambodian chief, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, is convinced that Red China will dominate the area within the next decade. And therefore the prince is determined to prepare for that eventuality by showing his friendship for the Communist Chinese now . .

RUMORS ARE circulating in Madrid that Franco is about ready to step down. The occasion may come this month when Spain begins celebrating its 25 years of peace since the end of the Civil War. Best bet as successor is Spain's vice president, General Munez Grandes. . .

A NEW non-segregated club for top men in public affairs has been formed by those who resigned from Washington's Metropolitan Club over its alleged discrimination. The new Federal City Club will open May 1. Founders include Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Douglas Dillon and Willard Wirtz. . .

PROFESSOR Raymond Saulnier, former chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, has warned of the possible inflationary effects of the tax cut. He predicted a 2 per cent increase in living costs for 1964 — higher than last year's 1.6 per cent rise — which would completely negate the effects of the tax bill for the man on the street. But the taxpayer won't feel the pinch until after the November presidential election . . .

THE OLD idea that one tonsillectomy is good for a lifetime is false. In fact, if your tonsils have regrown, you are the rule, according to Dr. A. R. Hollender of the University of Miami. "No existing procedure guarantees against subsequent regeneration of lymphod tissue at the site of operation," he reports. Tonsil regrowth, he says, occurs in about 65 per cent of cases where removal took place before the age of 12. . .

THERE IS AN executive hot potato going on these days. The State Department recently announced that it is setting up a businessman's counterpart to the Peace Corps, to be known as the Executive Service Corps. While most of the talk in Washington is about what these economic ambassadors could do for the underindustrialized nations, at corporate lunch tables across the country, the idea is raising some unsettling questions and causing insecure executives to stare moodily into their martini. For example, suppose the vice president in charge of personnel drops into your office and says casually, "Say, Hotchkiss, have you given any thought to the new Executive Peace Corps? Does this mean the company thinks it can easily get along without you for two years? Or suppose you really want to go, can you afford to give your company such obvious evidence of your expendability? Would two years outside the U.S. economic life leave you irreparably behind? These and other questions are creating a new game of executive hot potato and may bring cordial replies from prospective ESC candidates saying, "I had hoped to go, but they need me here—I think." . . .

WHILE THE administration supposedly was cutting off a few thousand dollars in foreign aid to five countries trading with Cuba, it came to light that the value of administration-approved export licenses granted for U.S. shipments to Communist countries hit an all-time high of $144 million last year. . .

DESPITE the much-publicized cuts in the White House electric bill, no real savings will be passed along to the beleaguered taxpayers. The fiscal 1965 budget for the Executive Mansion, with its 77 employes, will again run $671,000. . . .

Around The World

Two major developments — that could have far-reaching effects on world's history — occurred the past week. And both may actually aid the U.S. in its worldwide fight against Communism.

In a surprising move, giant Brazil threw out Joao Goulart and his Communist-influence government which had been a consistent sore spot for the U.S.

The almost bloodless coup was accomplished by the Armed Forces during a two-day revolution. The new president is Social Democrat Paschoal Ranierei Mazzilli, who is considered friendly with the U.S. and who is anti-Communist. Then, too, most experts believe the new government will give more whole hearted cooperation to the Alliance for Progress. Goulart, on the other hand, had torpedoed it. It was also expected that there would be, at least for the time being, an end to efforts promoted by Goulart to legalize the newly outlawed Communist Party in Brazil.

GOULART

Brazil is still Latin America's biggest nation, where only a fraction of the vast area ever felt the plow. It still is the nation in which eight per cent of the landowners hold 75 per cent of the cultivated land.

The revolt was led by army leaders primarily and it was termed an ouster move against the Communist. As troops marched into Rio De Janeiro, Goulart fled to his home province in South Brazil where his brother-in-law was governor. It was feared at first a fight would be made from there with the use of the Third Army. However, that army also revolted, leaving Goulart without backing. Late Friday he was reported to have fled the country, but at that hour this could not be confirmed.

It had been known that the U.S. had been leary of Goulart for sometime and apparently was satisfied with his overthrow. President Johnson wasted no time sending a "warmest good wishes" message to Mazilli.

The message was one of unusual speed for the U.S. in recognizing a new government. It apparently accepted without question the legitimacy of Ranieri Mazzilli's ascent, and was in line with unofficial word from the White House that the U.S. government was pleased by removal of Goulart, in whose government the Communist had been playing an increasingly important role.

Before the revolt started, Goulart had warned opponents he would not modify his reform program and charged that foreign money is helping finance the campaign against him. He had spoken out with an address which followed criticism of his decision, late reversed, not to punish mutinous sailors who joined in a Communist inspired passive rebellion.

The other major development came when Russia's Kremlin virtually read the Chinese out of the world communist movement. This could forecast an era which would bring new opportunities and new dangers for the United States and its allies.

How to exploit what appears to be an unbridgeable chasm between Moscow and Peking was a major concern of White House and State Department officials long before the Soviet Communist Party issued the showdown Thursday. Now it has become a vital concern.

To most diplomats, it long has seemed inevitable that a definite break with China would mean the Soviet Union would have to work to improve relations with the West. Not only does such a break mean the return to the relatively small "socialist camp" of the late 1940's, it also means the Soviet Union must guard the world's longest border against an openly hostile China. In addition to the United States, firmly opposing Communist expansion to the West, there is now also Communist China, firmly opposing Soviet policy in the East.

The fiery break came Thursday as Russia finally lashed back at Red China, calling for a show down meeting of the world's Communist parties to thrash out the big feud. Breaking a six-months silence, the Kremlin accused the Chinese of trying to run the Red Bloc, to stir political unrest in the Soviet Union, to sabotage Premier Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence and to obtain nuclear weapons at any price. In a Soviet reply that occupied nearly an entire edition of the newspaper Pravda, Mao Tse-tung's regime was called the "main danger to the unity of the world Communist movement." Pravda said the final straw was Tuesday when Peking called Khrushchev "the greatest capitulatonist in history" and demanded that Communists in and out of the Soviet Union repudiate his policies.

Khrushchev

There seemed little doubt in most expert minds that this was a definite break. And it could mean better relations with Russia or worse. It could mean that Khrushchev would have to adopt a sterner policy with the West to hold onto his leadership, which in itself could mean the cold war will get colder.

However, Premier Khrushchev must be thanking his lucky stars, if he has any, he resisted all pressures to help Red China build an atomic bomb.

The possibility still remains that pressure from other Communist parties during the proposed meeting might bring the Chinese back into the Communist fold. It seems much more probable, however, that they will continue to scorn any shepherding from Moscow.

In this case, another almost inevitable result would be a sharpening in the struggle for influence in southern Asia, Africa and Latin America — all of which would affect the U.S. A good place to watch, then, for this is Zanzibar, where the Soviet Union and China are already eyeball to eyeball and it's a question of who'll wink first.

Meanwhile, Khrushchev visited Hungary last week—and no doubt the main subject was the break.

Congressional Scene

SENATOR THOMAS J. Dodd predicts a revolution in Cuba in the not too distant future and says those who hold that "Castro is here to stay" would impede such a revolt. While he named no names, Dodd apparently aimed his Senate speech at Chairman J. William Fulbright of Arkansas who said last week that the Fidel Castro government would not disappear overnight unless the U.S. wanted to invade Cuba. . . .

A DIFFERENT approach was taken by Rep. Everett G. Burkhalter of California, which is a throwback to most politicians. Burkhalter, who is 67, says he is retiring after one term in the House largely because he is disgusted with the seniority system. He added a "lot of these old men are living in their dotage and it's obsolete, antiquated" to place power in Congress in the hands of those who stay on the longest and thus move into committee chairmanships. He proposed limiting House membership to 16 years and putting a 70-year-age limit on candidates. . .

ON THE CIVIL RIGHTS front, Senator Mike Mansfield, the Senate leader, says he always anticipates the worst and hopes for the best. He then predicted that the Senate debate on the Civil Rights bill could last through the two political conventions this summer. He said action on all other bills, including money measures, would just pile up should the civil rights debate continue into the late summer. Meanwhile, a backer of the bill said his side has "been too content to rest on the moral correctness of our position." As a result, Senator Gaylor Nelson said proponents of the House-passed legislation are "too poorly prepared to fight a defensive war on the line-by-line details of this bill" to counter what he called "false propaganda" spread by opponents of the measure. In this respect, many Negro leaders are threatening direct violent demonstrations if the debate continues. . .

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce, notes Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb, approved the sale of $123,000 worth of crude sulphur to Communist Czechoslovakia, the arms arsenal for Red revolutions around the globe. Lipscomb points out that sulfuric acid is among the most indispensable raw material in the chemical industry and is a basic ingredient in the manufacture of important military explosives. . .

LIPSCOMB

MEANWHILE, John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to orbit, has announced he will withdraw from the Ohio U.S. Senate campaign because of injuries from a bathroom fall last month. Said Glenn: "no man has a right to ask for a seat in either branch of Congress merely because of a specific event such as orbiting the earth in a spacecraft." Physicians have told him that participation in the campaign would be detrimental to his health and recovery. His supporters, however, are still talking of him making the race. . .

THE SUPREME COURT, which frequently and seemingly goes beyond its jurisdiction, has come up with another odd ruling. It said in effect the past week that Negroes are entitled to be addressed as "Miss, Mrs. or Mr." in south courtrooms — just like white people. The 6-3 ruling struck down the contempt of court conviction of Mary Hamilton, a field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, in the Circuit Court of Etowah County, Alabama. The county solicitor addressed her as "Mary." She said she would not answer questions unless addressed as Miss Hamilton, and the judge held her in contempt of court. The High Court reversed the order. . .

JUST AS IT did in the case of former President Eisenhower, the driving speed of President Johnson has come up. There have been reports the President drove 80 to 85 miles per hour during his holiday at his Texas ranch. However, George Reedy, Johnson's press secretary, said he has no personal knowledge of presidential speeding. He said he could never recall any occasion when the President exceeded the speed limit. . . .

ANTI-JAPANESE demonstrations continued to roll across the battle-scared hills of South Korea. The demonstrations are in protest against negotiations now going on between Japan and South Korea to resume normalized relations. President Chung Hee Park told the groups that he intended to press on with the talks, but promised that a settlement "only on terms most favorable to us" will be made . . .

New Waterway Plan

EDITOR'S NOTE — Even before this year's violent anti-America outbursts in the Panama Canal Zone, U. S. scientists sought an economical means of excavating a new canal between the Atlantic and Pacific. Atomic power may hold the secret to a great new lock-free Isthmian canal. Here is a report on efforts in this direction by an author of a number of authoritative works on tunnels, canals and bridges.

By JOSEPH GIES

Written For Associated Press

Recent flag-raising riots in the Canal Zone focused attention on our famous Atlantic - Pacific link. But by raising emotional temperatures in Central America and in the United States the riots blurred the real problem of the future of the Panama Canal.

Not Needed

The existing Panama Canal is no longer adequate to shipping needs. A lock canal, it carries ships up and over the Isthmus of Panama by a series of steps, each of which requires lock opening and pumping.

A ship cannot navigate through the locks. It must be towed and maneuvered by a team of six locomotives at two miles an hour.

With forecasts of continuing increases in traffic, a bigger, wider, deeper, sea - level canal without locks seems to be imperative.

The pressure for a big, sea-level canal has been growing for years. In 1957, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries appointed a board of consultants—engineers—to investigate and report. After studying the question the board found that the cheapest solution possible with conventional engineering methods would be deepening and widening the present canal, converting it to a sea-level waterway. The cost: nearly $3 billion.

Maj. Gen. W. E. Potter, then governor of the Canal Zone and a member of the board, wondered if there wasn't a better alternative. Just about the time that the board of consultants had been given its task another group of experts had received another mission. This was the Atomic Energy Commission's "Project Plowshare," aimed at exploring the potential of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes.

Picked as the home base of Project Plowshare was the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the University of California. To the Lawrence Laboratory, in 1960, Potter addressed a query: What would be the cost of digging a sea-level canal in the Central American Isthmus by nuclear power?

The experts at the Lawrence Laboratory gave an encouraging, though qualified, reply. If the cheapest potential route were used, that from Sasardi to Morti, in Panama, an entirely new, wide, sea - level canal could be dug for about $800 million—as compared to $3 billion for converting the present canal.

Since 1960 some very important developments have taken place. When last November Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, chairman of the joint Committee on Atomic Energy, queried Dr. Gerald Johnson, associate director of the Lawrence Laboratory for Plowshare, Johnson was able to give a considerably more specific answer.

The cost could be reduced from the 1960 estimate. And the fallout danger was greatly diminished, with the vanishing point possibly in sight. In the light of Johnson's reply to Pastore, in fact, it seems all but inevitable that a new, bigger, deeper Isthmian Canal will eventually be dug by nuclear excavation—though Johnson emphasizes that five years of development, explosives production and cratering experiments must be carried out first.

Johnson estimates the cost of a nuclear-excavated sea - level canal at no more than $500 million.

Two Operations

When excavation is carried out by conventional explosives, two separate operations are necessary — the blast, which loosens the material, and the moving of the material, which must be done by mechanical means.

If a big enough charge were used, the material could be ejected by the blast, but the cost of so much chemical explosive would outweigh the cost of using power shovels. However, when nuclear charges are used, the picture alters radically. Even a small nuclear charge will eject the excavated material, cutting out virtually all need for mechanical excavation.

What happens to the percentage of radiation that escapes into the air? From a 100-kiloton charge buried at 650 feet, a dust cloud will rise several thousand feet. But since most of the radioactive particles will have been in intimate contact with dust particles to which they will adhere, most of the radioactivity will fall back to the ground along with other debris in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. Little, if any, fallout would be added to the world's atmosphere. With further experimentation there is every reason to believe that even this tiny amount could be greatly reduced.

The new Panama Canal — which may not be in Panama— could be a much bigger job, requiring at least 300 separate charges, if the shortest route is chosen.

The technique would be simplicity itself. A string of 300 holes, three to six feet in diameter, depending on the magnitude of the explosive, would be drilled to the selected depth. For modern drilling machinery this would be a very easy job.

The charges, carefully calculated on the basis of well-established data, would be lowered to position, and the holes filled. Then on a calm, windless day, a string of a dozen to 15 would be fired at once.

So well-controlled would the fallout be that within a few days men could move in for the followup work. How long would the whole job take? Perhaps two years, once it was begun. But it could not be begun on the spur of the moment.

"If the United States wants to develop capability to carry out major nuclear excavation projects, like the isthmian canal, it will take five years of hard work before we're ready," says Johnson.

Inside Reports

WHAT WAS behind the speech of Senator Fulbright in which he urged that Americans peel off old myths and think "unthinkable things" in foreign policy? Experts who have had sometime to analyze the unexpected address fear he may have been signaling a profound shift in U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union. A partial blueprint for a new policy is contained in a government-financed, limited-circulation study by the Institute For Defense Analysis, which has become must reading for ranking administration officials. Called the Rock Report, it argues for a strategy of interdependence for common action across national lines for the control of conflict. Critics of the report within the Administration and Congress are alarmed at the way in which recent administration moves and probings toward the Soviets are paralleling or corresponding to the report proposals. . .

U.S. DIPLOMATS just back from Southeast Asia report that Cambodian chief, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, is convinced that Red China will dominate the area within the next decade. And therefore the prince is determined to prepare for that eventuality by showing his friendship for the Communist Chinese now . .

RUMORS ARE circulating in Madrid that Franco is about ready to step down. The occasion may come this month when Spain begins celebrating its 25 years of peace since the end of the Civil War. Best bet as successor is Spain's vice president, General Munez Grandes. . .

A NEW non-segregated club for top men in public affairs has been formed by those who resigned from Washington's Metropolitan Club over its alleged discrimination. The new Federal City Club will open May 1. Founders include Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Douglas Dillon and Willard Wirtz. . .

PROFESSOR Raymond Saulnier, former chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, has warned of the possible inflationary effects of the tax cut. He predicted a 2 per cent increase in living costs for 1964 — higher than last year's 1.6 per cent rise — which would completely negate the effects of the tax bill for the man on the street. But the taxpayer won't feel the pinch until after the November presidential election . . .

THE OLD idea that one tonsillectomy is good for a lifetime is false. In fact, if your tonsils have regrown, you are the rule, according to Dr. A. R. Hollender of the University of Miami. "No existing procedure guarantees against subsequent regeneration of lymphod tissue at the site of operation," he reports. Tonsil regrowth, he says, occurs in about 65 per cent of cases where removal took place before the age of 12. . .

THERE IS AN executive hot potato going on these days. The State Department recently announced that it is setting up a businessman's counterpart to the Peace Corps, to be known as the Executive Service Corps. While most of the talk in Washington is about what these economic ambassadors could do for the underindustrialized nations, at corporate lunch tables across the country, the idea is raising some unsettling questions and causing insecure executives to stare moodily into their martini. For example, suppose the vice president in charge of personnel drops into your office and says casually, "Say, Hotchkiss, have you given any thought to the new Executive Peace Corps? Does this mean the company thinks it can easily get along without you for two years? Or suppose you really want to go, can you afford to give your company such obvious evidence of your expendability? Would two years outside the U.S. economic life leave you irreparably behind? These and other questions are creating a new game of executive hot potato and may bring cordial replies from prospective ESC candidates saying, "I had hoped to go, but they need me here—I think." . . .

WHILE THE administration supposedly was cutting off a few thousand dollars in foreign aid to five countries trading with Cuba, it came to light that the value of administration-approved export licenses granted for U.S. shipments to Communist countries hit an all-time high of $144 million last year. . .

DESPITE the much-publicized cuts in the White House electric bill, no real savings will be passed along to the beleaguered taxpayers. The fiscal 1965 budget for the Executive Mansion, with its 77 employes, will again run $671,000. . . .

Around The World

Two major developments — that could have far-reaching effects on world's history — occurred the past week. And both may actually aid the U.S. in its worldwide fight against Communism.

In a surprising move, giant Brazil threw out Joao Goulart and his Communist-influence government which had been a consistent sore spot for the U.S.

The almost bloodless coup was accomplished by the Armed Forces during a two-day revolution. The new president is Social Democrat Paschoal Ranierei Mazzilli, who is considered friendly with the U.S. and who is anti-Communist. Then, too, most experts believe the new government will give more whole hearted cooperation to the Alliance for Progress. Goulart, on the other hand, had torpedoed it. It was also expected that there would be, at least for the time being, an end to efforts promoted by Goulart to legalize the newly outlawed Communist Party in Brazil.

GOULART

Brazil is still Latin America's biggest nation, where only a fraction of the vast area ever felt the plow. It still is the nation in which eight per cent of the landowners hold 75 per cent of the cultivated land.

The revolt was led by army leaders primarily and it was termed an ouster move against the Communist. As troops marched into Rio De Janeiro, Goulart fled to his home province in South Brazil where his brother-in-law was governor. It was feared at first a fight would be made from there with the use of the Third Army. However, that army also revolted, leaving Goulart without backing. Late Friday he was reported to have fled the country, but at that hour this could not be confirmed.

It had been known that the U.S. had been leary of Goulart for sometime and apparently was satisfied with his overthrow. President Johnson wasted no time sending a "warmest good wishes" message to Mazilli.

The message was one of unusual speed for the U.S. in recognizing a new government. It apparently accepted without question the legitimacy of Ranieri Mazzilli's ascent, and was in line with unofficial word from the White House that the U.S. government was pleased by removal of Goulart, in whose government the Communist had been playing an increasingly important role.

Before the revolt started, Goulart had warned opponents he would not modify his reform program and charged that foreign money is helping finance the campaign against him. He had spoken out with an address which followed criticism of his decision, late reversed, not to punish mutinous sailors who joined in a Communist inspired passive rebellion.

The other major development came when Russia's Kremlin virtually read the Chinese out of the world communist movement. This could forecast an era which would bring new opportunities and new dangers for the United States and its allies.

How to exploit what appears to be an unbridgeable chasm between Moscow and Peking was a major concern of White House and State Department officials long before the Soviet Communist Party issued the showdown Thursday. Now it has become a vital concern.

To most diplomats, it long has seemed inevitable that a definite break with China would mean the Soviet Union would have to work to improve relations with the West. Not only does such a break mean the return to the relatively small "socialist camp" of the late 1940's, it also means the Soviet Union must guard the world's longest border against an openly hostile China. In addition to the United States, firmly opposing Communist expansion to the West, there is now also Communist China, firmly opposing Soviet policy in the East.

The fiery break came Thursday as Russia finally lashed back at Red China, calling for a show down meeting of the world's Communist parties to thrash out the big feud. Breaking a six-months silence, the Kremlin accused the Chinese of trying to run the Red Bloc, to stir political unrest in the Soviet Union, to sabotage Premier Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence and to obtain nuclear weapons at any price. In a Soviet reply that occupied nearly an entire edition of the newspaper Pravda, Mao Tse-tung's regime was called the "main danger to the unity of the world Communist movement." Pravda said the final straw was Tuesday when Peking called Khrushchev "the greatest capitulatonist in history" and demanded that Communists in and out of the Soviet Union repudiate his policies.

Khrushchev

There seemed little doubt in most expert minds that this was a definite break. And it could mean better relations with Russia or worse. It could mean that Khrushchev would have to adopt a sterner policy with the West to hold onto his leadership, which in itself could mean the cold war will get colder.

However, Premier Khrushchev must be thanking his lucky stars, if he has any, he resisted all pressures to help Red China build an atomic bomb.

The possibility still remains that pressure from other Communist parties during the proposed meeting might bring the Chinese back into the Communist fold. It seems much more probable, however, that they will continue to scorn any shepherding from Moscow.

In this case, another almost inevitable result would be a sharpening in the struggle for influence in southern Asia, Africa and Latin America — all of which would affect the U.S. A good place to watch, then, for this is Zanzibar, where the Soviet Union and China are already eyeball to eyeball and it's a question of who'll wink first.

Meanwhile, Khrushchev visited Hungary last week—and no doubt the main subject was the break.

Congressional Scene

SENATOR THOMAS J. Dodd predicts a revolution in Cuba in the not too distant future and says those who hold that "Castro is here to stay" would impede such a revolt. While he named no names, Dodd apparently aimed his Senate speech at Chairman J. William Fulbright of Arkansas who said last week that the Fidel Castro government would not disappear overnight unless the U.S. wanted to invade Cuba. . . .

A DIFFERENT approach was taken by Rep. Everett G. Burkhalter of California, which is a throwback to most politicians. Burkhalter, who is 67, says he is retiring after one term in the House largely because he is disgusted with the seniority system. He added a "lot of these old men are living in their dotage and it's obsolete, antiquated" to place power in Congress in the hands of those who stay on the longest and thus move into committee chairmanships. He proposed limiting House membership to 16 years and putting a 70-year-age limit on candidates. . .

ON THE CIVIL RIGHTS front, Senator Mike Mansfield, the Senate leader, says he always anticipates the worst and hopes for the best. He then predicted that the Senate debate on the Civil Rights bill could last through the two political conventions this summer. He said action on all other bills, including money measures, would just pile up should the civil rights debate continue into the late summer. Meanwhile, a backer of the bill said his side has "been too content to rest on the moral correctness of our position." As a result, Senator Gaylor Nelson said proponents of the House-passed legislation are "too poorly prepared to fight a defensive war on the line-by-line details of this bill" to counter what he called "false propaganda" spread by opponents of the measure. In this respect, many Negro leaders are threatening direct violent demonstrations if the debate continues. . .

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce, notes Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb, approved the sale of $123,000 worth of crude sulphur to Communist Czechoslovakia, the arms arsenal for Red revolutions around the globe. Lipscomb points out that sulfuric acid is among the most indispensable raw material in the chemical industry and is a basic ingredient in the manufacture of important military explosives. . .

LIPSCOMB

MEANWHILE, John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to orbit, has announced he will withdraw from the Ohio U.S. Senate campaign because of injuries from a bathroom fall last month. Said Glenn: "no man has a right to ask for a seat in either branch of Congress merely because of a specific event such as orbiting the earth in a spacecraft." Physicians have told him that participation in the campaign would be detrimental to his health and recovery. His supporters, however, are still talking of him making the race. . .

THE SUPREME COURT, which frequently and seemingly goes beyond its jurisdiction, has come up with another odd ruling. It said in effect the past week that Negroes are entitled to be addressed as "Miss, Mrs. or Mr." in south courtrooms — just like white people. The 6-3 ruling struck down the contempt of court conviction of Mary Hamilton, a field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, in the Circuit Court of Etowah County, Alabama. The county solicitor addressed her as "Mary." She said she would not answer questions unless addressed as Miss Hamilton, and the judge held her in contempt of court. The High Court reversed the order. . .

JUST AS IT did in the case of former President Eisenhower, the driving speed of President Johnson has come up. There have been reports the President drove 80 to 85 miles per hour during his holiday at his Texas ranch. However, George Reedy, Johnson's press secretary, said he has no personal knowledge of presidential speeding. He said he could never recall any occasion when the President exceeded the speed limit. . . .

ANTI-JAPANESE demonstrations continued to roll across the battle-scared hills of South Korea. The demonstrations are in protest against negotiations now going on between Japan and South Korea to resume normalized relations. President Chung Hee Park told the groups that he intended to press on with the talks, but promised that a settlement "only on terms most favorable to us" will be made . . .

Direction Troubles

On Greek Advice

By JIM BECKER

ATHENS (AP) — Beware of Greeks, giving directions. For one thing, they can't speak Greek right.

If they'd been giving the directions to those armies of Persians, Romans and Greeks who fought all the big battles here in the old days, the boys would have missed each other on the road.

That would leave the first 15 chapters of our history books blank.

Anyone trying to visit the battle sites today has direction trouble.

Take Thermopylae.

The Spartans made their famous stand to the last man there against the invading Persians, and we were all taught how to pronounce it in school. We all forgot, of course, but if you ask for the place by its history book name:

Or Salamis, where the Greek navy finished off the Persian threat once and for all, back in 480 B.C.;

BLEW CHANCES

Or Actium, where Marc Antony and Cleopatra blew their chance to rule the world;

Or Chaironeia, where Alexander the Great fought his first battle;

Or Lepanto, where the navy of the Papal League stopped the Turks, and saved us all a trip to Mecca;

They're all pronounced or spelled differently, now.

For example, the dictionary says it should be There-mop-pah-lie, with the accent on the mop. The modern Greek says Thir-moe-pele-ee, with the accent on the pee.

The dictionary puts the accent on the first syllable in Salamis, the modern Greeks on the last. In Actium, it's the first or second syllable depending on the century.

Lepanto is now spelled "Naupactos." And let's not even discuss Chaironeia.

All those battles, which decided which way the world would turn for some 2,000 years, were fought in Greece, in an area the space of the state of Rhode Island.

If you can break through the language barrier, you can visit them all in a couple of days.

By that time, you'll be seeing little men in helmets with a fringe on top, slashing at each other with spears and swords, in your sleep.

Many of the battle sites are still ready for action.

The wall the Spartans fought behind is still in place at Thermopylae. The modern road follows the ancient path, within the shadow of the cliffs.

A statue stands where Leonidas, the king of the Spartans, finally fell. However, the river has dumped two miles of soil into the bay and eliminated the bottleneck that made the pass so important in the old days.

You could just walk around it, now.

The island of Salamis, in the sea off Athens, looks so much like it did in the old days that it would come only as a slight shock if a wooden galley with 200 oars should suddenly swoop around the coast.

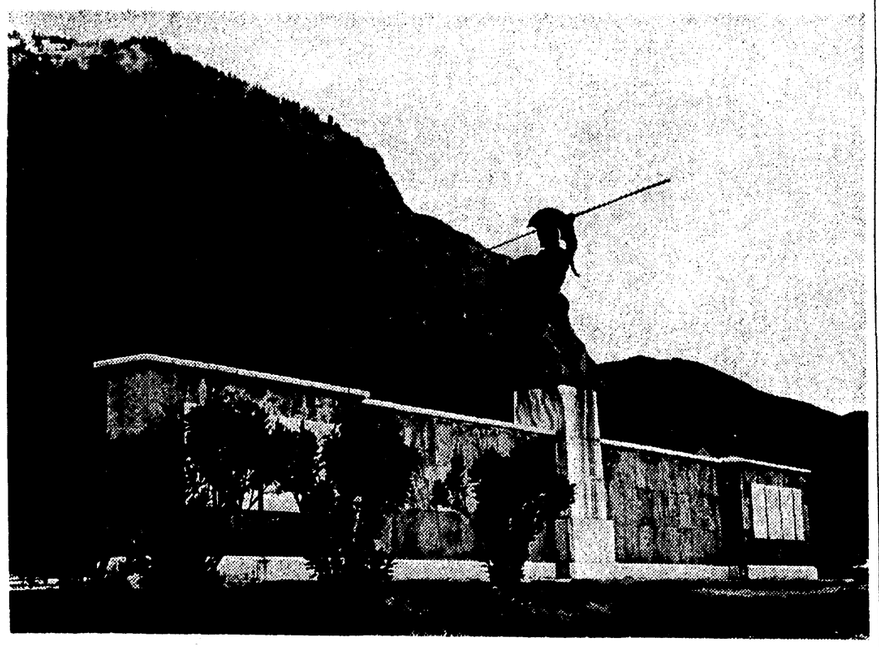
At Actium, you can walk the ground where the armies of Antony and Octavian camped. Antony's cavalry had trouble with the mud. So do modern cars.

The battle of Chaironeia could be refought any time you could collect a couple of hundred thousand fellows who needed a little exercise. They could use as end zones the giant statue of a lion that stood on top of the burial mound of Alexander's dead soldiers. The Romans used it 300 years later, and it's still in place.

At Lepanto, if a Turkish ship rolled up for refitting at the docks, it would feel right at home, as soon as the crew got used to calling the place Naupactos, which is how the Greeks spell it now.

Of course, the docks there are only four or five hundred years old.

In Greece, that's modern architecture.



A STATUE of Leonidas, king of the Spartans, marks the spot where he fell, along with a number of his subjects, at the battle of Thermopylae. The ancient battle site, like many others in Greece, looks much as it did when the Spartans stood to the last man against the invading Persians. The monument replaced an ancient one which disappeared. That one carried a famous inscription: "We lie here in obedience to orders." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

WATER IN reflecting pools to "smooth rough edges" of buildings is an important feature of designs by architect Minoru Yamasaki of Birmingham, Mich. Architect's Dream

Hope And Happiness

By ROGER GOELZ

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—"You want to build hope and aspirations that will make people delighted and happy."

This is what Minoru Yamasaki hopes emerges from the gleaming glass and metal modern structures he conceives.

It is the driving force in Yamasaki's life. He became dedicated to architecture as a wide-eyed boy in Seattle, Wash., patiently and excitedly watching every move of an uncle who made marvelous drawings of places where people could live or work.

Now, in his 51st year, Yamasaki has fashioned two new spires that will alter the thrilling and familiar skyline of Manhattan.

TRADE CENTER

Yamasaki is architect of New York City's World Trade Center, one of the major architectural undertakings of our time. It will feature two spires, each 110-stories high. The center is scheduled for completion in 1970. It will occupy a 16-acre site and the spires will tower above the Empire State Building—now the world's tallest edifice.

In designing the center, Yamasaki planned for a community of 130,000 people—50,000 office workers and an estimated 80,000 daily visitors.

To offset a shiny mass of glass and steel, Yamasaki's over-all design calls for parks and plazas. A key feature is the use of reflecting pools.

"Water means a lot to me," Yamasaki says. "It changes, and it reflects. It makes a building with sympathy. More than that it can smooth rough edges. It's living."

A building is more than just a place for man to work in and live in, Yamasaki says. It should reflect his life.

"You don't want to be depressed by it, you don't want to be overwhelmed by it and, more important, it shouldn't be brutal or miserable."

Concrete and shiny metal are the keynotes of his modern style. Yamasaki and his 84-man staff design a building from the basement to final color schemes for interiors. Each step has a significant role in Yamasaki's over-all scheme.

Yamasaki puts enormous energy into his work, frequently spending 20-hour days covering exacting details of a building under construction or revising plans of a proposed structure.

Inside his crowded Birmingham office, three secretaries keep track of his schedule which in a typical week might include trips to Seattle, Honolulu, New York and Minneapolis.

Displayed prominently on a wall in his office is an oft-quoted statement of another architect:

"Make no little plans; they have no magic to stimulate men's blood and probably themselves will not be realized. Make big plans; aim higher in hope and work, remembering that a noble, logical diagram once recorded will never die but long after we are gone will be a living thing."

"We've had dogs," Yamasaki candidly admits in discussing his major works.

Too much time is spent on looking at the material aspect of modern life, he adds. There's too much emphasis on building as cheaply as possible.

He believes "a little" extra money spent on breaking up the urban aspect of buildings is more than worthwhile.

In answer to criticism that today's glass and steel-concrete structures tend to be depressing Yamasaki says a building reflects the life of its occupants.

"No person is always happy and therefore it is not fair to ask that a building make them either happy or sad."

U.S. Seems To Be Winning In Battle For Democracy In African Nations

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — The United States seems to be gaining in the battle to win Africa for democracy. But the battle is far from over.

In the last 10 years, during which a new Africa has emerged, the United States has faced tremendous problems. It has been charged with not doing enough, or with doing too much. But, say American diplomats and a number of African statesmen, the result of the U.S. effort has been positive.

The United States has made no big mistakes. Neither has it had any glittering successes. Errors in judgment and planning have been committed, but none of them was as stark as Soviet blunders in the Congo and Guinea.

FIGHTING

The United States had been fighting an uphill battle, handicapped by its own domestic racial problems and the jealousy of former colonial powers wanting to keep Africa a private preserve.

Still, American technicians and businessmen are appearing in growing numbers in the steaming equatorial jungles, the parched sands of North Africa, and along the mist-shrouded coasts. American aid, in various forms, has been pouring into Africa at the rate of a half billion dollars a year.

Thus far this has not made warm and reliable friends of the African nations. Most of them believe America's wealth is unlimited and complain they are not getting enough.

American diplomats feel, however, that the aid effort has succeeded in limiting Communist influence in several areas.

The strongly entrenched former colonial powers undoubtedly have been a strong deterrent to communism. At the same time, the former colonizers have considerably hampered America's freedom of movement in Africa.

United States actions have repeatedly been criticized by Belgians in the Congo, Frenchmen in North and West Africa, Portuguese in Angola and Mozambique, and by South Africa for opposition to apartheid.

The Soviet bloc, on the other hand, has no alliances that hamper it in Africa. It is freer to move and generally has been supporting all nationalist, anti-colonialist movements.

OWN COURSE

African statesmen vow they will pursue their own course, regardless of the money received from either side. They promise impressive economic results in the distant future.

Both Americans distributing aid and Africans receiving it agree that the process is a long one, that in the sleeping giant which is Africa today results will take a long time.

A few American diplomats believe the United States is wasting its time and money. They feel the African countries will always have the strongest ties with their former colonizers. Most American officials working in Africa, however feel money should continue to pour in to help Africa's struggle toward development.

One immediate gain in America's plunge into Africa has been the emergence of several thousand Americans who can lay some claim to being African experts.

Ten years ago few American diplomats were acquainted with the continent, and almost no technicians knew anything about it. When the colonial empires began to crack, the United States had to move. New nations were being born with staggering speed and obscure trading posts were becoming capitals.

"We had to establish embassies, train and appoint our representatives. We had no old hands like France and England," says Francis H. Russell, now U.S. ambassador to Tunisia who previously served in Ghana.

In general, American diplomats in Africa feel that U.S. objectives have been reasonably served against tremendous odds. They insist the United States is not trying to replace the colonial powers. It would rather work with them.

NOT EASY

This has not always been easy. Some powers long established in Africa are suspicious. They fear American business is trying to replace their national enterprise.

This is particularly true in former French Africa. French businessmen and officials want to keep control of business enterprises, while permitting a share of American investment.

In the West African country of Gabon, hysteria among French residents recently caused a widespread "U.S. go home" campaign. This started with rumors that Americans were in touch with forces trying to unseat pro-French President Leon Mba.

The United States has also become a convenient scapegoat for many misfortunes besetting the groping, inexperienced nations.

In Ghana, where dictator Kwame Nkrumah is less and less popular while the people are generally friendly to the United States, the ruling Convention Peoples party staged a demonstration in front of the U.S. Embassy.

"Americans paid to kill Nkrumah," shouted agitators.

In most of independent Africa however, Americans are treated as friends. Flareups of anti-Americanism have never been long-lasting and seldom have done much harm.

"Africans have been remarkably charitable toward the American racial problem," says Walter Carrington, an American Negro now working as a Peace Corps administrator. He has been traveling in Africa for 10 years.

Carrington feels, however, that the racial problem "is the biggest handicap for the U.S. position in Africa."

He and another Negro Peace Corps administrator, Madison Jones, feel that the program of aid to Africa and strong anti-segregation measures in the United States constituted the turning point in the U.S. position in Africa.

"I feel that the United States now occupies a particularly strong position in Africa," Jones says. "Considering that ten years ago we were nowhere here, we have made great strides."

Jones believes that African students returning after studying in the United States enhance America's position in their countries. American good will and progress in racial matters, he says, overcome the usual incidents encountered by Africans in the United States.

Despite everything, these incidents are comparatively few. Adolphus Paterson, a Ghana journalism student, met only two during his six months in the United States.

Civitan Clubs Sponsor Movie

"Day of Triumph", a two-hour motion picture about the life of Christ, will be shown at Neville High School auditorium Tuesday, April 21, under the sponsorship of the Monroe and West Monroe Civitan Clubs.

Curley Kitchell, general chairman of the event, said tickets for the 8 p.m. performance will cost 90 cents for adults and 50 cents for children and may be purchased from members of both Civitan Clubs.

He described the movie as the "only major film production of the life of Christ that's Scripture true." It will include climatic events in the life of Christ, including the Sermon on the Mount, the Last Supper, the conversion of Mary Magdalene, the rising of Lazarus, the Lord's Prayer, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection.

The movie was produced by Dr. James K. Fredrich, an Episcopal minister and for many years a leading producer of church films.

Woman Discovers Famed Artist Son

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The author, an artist and journalist, born in Arles, France, famed for its association with such artists as Vincent van Gogh and Paul Gauguin. She has lived in the United States for the past 10 years and tells here the story of the discovery of Gauguin's son.)

By JOSETTE GIRAUD

CHICAGO (AP) — "Give me 10 francs. I am hungry."

That old man, half naked, dirty, crouching under a tree, whose voice stopped me in a street was Emile Gauguin, son of the famed French painter, Paul Gauguin. This was in 1961, in Papeete, Tahiti, and Emile was then 61.

Paul was 51 when his son was born and had only about four more years to live. The boy's mother was a beautiful Tahitian girl, 17. Emile resembled his father astonishingly. I gave him some money, and I told him he could come to eat at my place any time.

He came and ate voraciously, without words and without thanks. Then he would leave, and he would come back again.

We came slowly to exchange a few words. He had difficulty at the beginning with his French as he was not used to expressing himself.

That illiterate man, rejected by all, was as isolated as a deaf mute. Because he talked with pride about his father, and to help him get out of his isolation, I encouraged him to paint.

From the beginning he started painting with ability, as if he always had painted — strange compositions full of beauty, expressing all his fears and all the thoughts he could not explain.

He worked with the simplicity of an artisan, without explaining what he painted and why. But isn't creation the most mysterious process? It was by painting that Emile became conscious of his dignity as a man, and that more than anything else gave him the strength to give up alcohol.

He had been a drunkard, begging on the streets of Papeete. He was a tourist attraction and collected coins by posing for pictures.

When he had completed a small collection of paintings, I took them on a tour of Europe. Emile's first one-man show was in Geneva, last April, and there were shows in London and Paris. Critics, curators and art dealers urged me to continue to encourage him. Now he is getting ready for his first American show next year.

Keeping my promise to Emile, I returned to Tahiti to take him away. He was waiting anxiously. He wanted to go away from the hostility of Tahiti and his unhappy past.

Planes Dogfight At 1,600 M.P.H.

GEORGE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two high for contrails, two rocket-packing jets twist and tumble in the desert air.

Dogfights!

The pilots, veterans of the Nationalist Chinese Air Force, struggle grimly for mastery.

Their F104Gs, loaded with complicated weapons systems, call for utmost concentration as they streak through the thin air at more than twice the speed of sound.

Dogfighting at 1,600 miles an hour would tear the wings off a less sturdy plane, but the F104G — one of the free world's most advanced weapons — has only stubs, honed razor-sharp to split the wind.

OTHER PLANE

Suddenly one of the Chinese gets the other plane in his sights, presses a camera button to record his "kill" and the fight is over.

Observers on the ground see two tiny dots swoop down, enlarge into roaring infernos of metal and flame, and land in formation. Minutes later the pilots are closeted with their instructors for critiques of their performance.

Capt. Hsiang-hui Sun and Capt. Hung-ti Fan, both 27 and pilots in the Nationalist Chinese Air Force on Formosa, are members of the current class of foreign pilots being schooled here to fly the F104G.

There are 22 in the class; 3 from West Germany, 11 from The Netherlands, 2 from Greece, 2 from Nationalist China, and 4 U.S. pilots who will instruct abroad. In the past two years, the school has turned out more than 100 pilots from nine nations, including Italy, Japan, Turkey, Belgium and Norway.

The school — officially the 4443rd Combat Crew Training Squadron of the Tactical Air Command — is booked solid through July of 1965, four classes a year.

It's a little known project to train pilots of the allied air forces to fly a plane their countries have decided is the best currently available.

The foreign pilots learn the tricks of their trade from top U.S. pilots, such as Maj. Claude J. Crenshaw, 45, Monroe, La., a World War II veteran with 12 victories in the European theater.

Maj. Crenshaw is the son of Mr. W. G. Crenshaw, 120 Egan St., Monroe.

On Greek Advice

By JIM BECKER

ATHENS (AP) — Beware of Greeks, giving directions. For one thing, they can't speak Greek right.

If they'd been giving the directions to those armies of Persians, Romans and Greeks who fought all the big battles here in the old days, the boys would have missed each other on the road.

That would leave the first 15 chapters of our history books blank.

Anyone trying to visit the battle sites today has direction trouble.

Take Thermopylae.

The Spartans made their famous stand to the last man there against the invading Persians, and we were all taught how to pronounce it in school. We all forgot, of course, but if you ask for the place by its history book name;

Or Salamis, where the Greek navy finished off the Persian threat once and for all, back in 480 B.C.;

BLEW CHANCES

Or Actium, where Marc Antony and Cleopatra blew their chance to rule the world;

Or Chaironeia, where Alexander the Great fought his first battle;

Or Lepanto, where the navy of the Papal League stopped the Turks, and saved us all a trip to Mecca;

They're all pronounced or spelled differently, now.

For example, the dictionary says it should be There-mop-pah-lie, with the accent on the mop. The modern Greek says Thir-moe-pele-ee, with the accent on the pee.

The dictionary puts the accent on the first syllable in Salamis, the modern Greeks on the last. In Actium, it's the first or second syllable depending on the century.

Lepanto is now spelled "Naupactos." And let's not even discuss Chaironeia.

All those battles, which decided which way the world would turn for some 2,000 years, were fought in Greece, in an area the space of the state of Rhode Island.

If you can break through the language barrier, you can visit them all in a couple of days.

By that time, you'll be seeing little men in helmets with a fringe on top, slashing at each other with spears and swords, in your sleep.

Many of the battle sites are still ready for action.

The wall the Spartans fought behind is still in place at Thermopylae. The modern road follows the ancient path, within the shadow of the cliffs.

A statue stands where Leonidas, the king of the Spartans, finally fell. However, the river has dumped two miles of soil into the bay and eliminated the bottleneck that made the pass so important in the old days.

You could just walk around it, now.

The island of Salamis, in the sea off Athens, looks so much like it did in the old days that it would come only as a slight shock if a wooden galley with 200 oars should suddenly swoop around the coast.

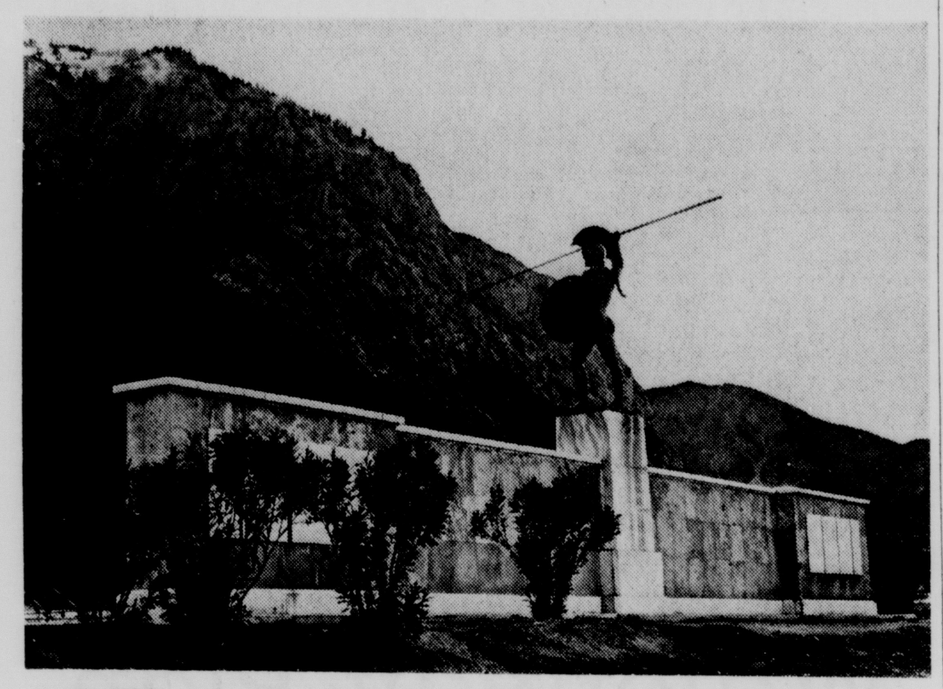
At Actium, you can walk the ground where the armies of Antony and Octavian camped. Antony's cavalry had trouble with the mud. So do modern cars.

The battle of Chaironeia could be refought any time you could collect a couple of hundred thousand fellows who needed a little exercise. They could use as end zones the giant statue of a lion that stood on top of the burial mound of Alexander's dead soldiers. The Romans used it 300 years later, and it's still in place.

At Lepanto, if a Turkish ship rolled up for refitting at the docks, it would feel right at home, as soon as the crew got used to calling the place Naupactos, which is how the Greeks spell it now.

Of course, the docks there are only four or five hundred years old.

In Greece, that's modern architecture.



A STATUE of Leonidas, king of the Spartans, marks the spot where he fell, along with a number of his subjects, at the battle of Thermopylae. The ancient battle site, like many others in Greece, looks much as it did when the Spartans stood to the last man against the invading Persians. The monument replaced an ancient one which disappeared. That one carried a famous inscription: "We lie here in obedience to orders." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

WATER IN reflecting pools to "smooth rough edges" of buildings is an important feature of designs by architect Minoru Yamasaki of Birmingham, Mich. Here he studies the model of a proposed luxury hotel in Los Angeles. Yamasaki is the architect of New York City's World Trade Center, a 16-acre project scheduled for completion in 1970. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Architect's Dream

Hope And Happiness

By ROGER GOELZ

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—"You want to build hope and aspirations that will make people delighted and happy."

This is what Minoru Yamasaki hopes emerges from the gleaming glass and metal modern structures he conceives.

It is the driving force in Yamasaki's life. He became dedicated to architecture as a wide-eyed boy in Seattle, Wash., patiently and excitedly watching every move of an uncle who made marvelous drawings of places where people could live or work.

Now, in his 51st year, Yamasaki has fashioned two new spires that will alter the thrilling and familiar skyline of Manhattan.

TRADE CENTER

Yamasaki is architect of New York City's World Trade Center, one of the major architectural undertakings of our time. It will feature two spires, each 110-stories high. The center is scheduled for completion in 1970. It will occupy a 16-acre site and the spires will tower above the Empire State Building—now the world's tallest edifice.

In designing the center, Yamasaki planned for a community of 130,000 people—50,000 office workers and an estimated 80,000 daily visitors.

To offset a shiny mass of glass and steel, Yamasaki's over-all design calls for parks and plazas. A key feature is the use of reflecting pools.

"Water means a lot to me," Yamasaki says. "It changes, and it reflects. It makes a building with sympathy. More than that it can smooth rough edges. It's living."

A building is more than just a place for man to work in and live in, Yamasaki says. It should reflect his life.

"You don't want to be depressed by it, you don't want to be overwhelmed by it and, more important, it shouldn't be brutal or miserable."

Concrete and shiny metal are the keynotes of his modern style. Yamasaki and his 84-man staff design a building from the basement to final color schemes for interiors. Each step has a significant role in Yamasaki's over-all scheme.

Yamasaki puts enormous energy into his work, frequently spending 20-hour days covering exacting details of a building under construction or revising plans of a proposed structure.

Inside his crowded Birmingham office, three secretaries keep track of his schedule which in a typical week might include trips to Seattle, Honolulu, New York and Minneapolis.

Displayed prominently on a wall in his office is an oft-quoted statement of another architect:

"Make no little plans; they have no magic to stimulate men's blood and probably themselves will not be realized. Make big plans; aim higher in hope and work, remembering that a noble, logical diagram once recorded will never die but long after we are gone will be a living thing."

"We've had dogs," Yamasaki candidly admits in discussing his major works.

Too much time is spent on looking at the material aspect of modern life, he adds. There's too much emphasis on building as cheaply as possible.

He believes "a little" extra money spent on breaking up the urban aspect of buildings is more than worthwhile.

In answer to criticism that today's glass and steel-concrete structures tend to be depressing Yamasaki says a building reflects the life of its occupants.

"No person is always happy and therefore it is not fair to ask that a building make them either happy or sad."

U.S. Seems To Be Winning In Battle For Democracy In African Nations

Northeast Crushes Mississippi State

Morgan Equals Styron Record

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Northeast State College's undefeated track and field team heaped a little more salt on the Southeast Conference's wounds here Saturday night by crushing Mississippi State, 100-44, in a dual meet witnessed by about 3,000 fans.

The Indians, who had already whipped a number of SEC track powers in winning the Florida and Memphis Relays, captured first places in 13 of 17 events to annex their fourth straight outdoor win this spring.

Three different Indians were double winners, Roger Morgan in both hurdles, Ronnie Fountain in the 100 and 220 dashes and Doug Constant in the broad jump and triple jump.

Morgan won the 330-yard hurdles in 37.8, but his sizzling 13.9 effort in the 120 highs tied the Brown Stadium record set by Don Styron of Northeast in 1960. The mark, run against an eight to 10 mile wind, is a 10th of a second off the school record of 13.8 set by Stryon in 1962.

One Stadium record was actually broken.

Justin Canale, State's big football star, heaved the shot put 54-6⅝ to shatter the 54-2½ record set by Lud Bandaries of Louisiana State in 1960.

Northeast came close to another record with a 41.1 showing the 440 relay, best time of the year for the Indians. The Tribe combine of Dalton LeBlanc, Roger Morgan, Charles McDonald and Ronnie Fountain were only a 10th second off the Stadium record of 41.0 set by the Indians in 1960.

Neville High also turned in some good times in winning three high school division relays.

Gary Pappas, Ken Brazzel, Doug Cookston and Freddie Moses toured the 440 in 44.4.

The team of Pappas, Jerry Braud, Eric Borgkvist and Moses clipped off the 880 in 1:31.1.

But the real dilly was the Tiger mile relay team's 3:28.9 effort. Braud, Cookston, Brazzel and Borgkvist ran this one.

Ouachita was disqualified as second place winner in the mile relay after staying close to the Tigers through most of the four lap distance.

Lee Junior High won the 440 relay in 50.0 and the 880 relay in 1:44.8 in a special Junior High relays division.

After the meet Northeast State Track Coach Bob Groseclose praised both Constant and Morgan. "Doug is really starting to come around," Groseclose said. "We missed Tommy Edmonson (out with an injury), but I think Constant is really going to help us." Edmonson had been the Tribe's top man in the pole vault, triple jump and broad jump.

"I don't want to say too much about Morgan. You know he could have done even better if the wind hadn't been against him. There's not much telling what he'll do before he finishes here.

"And I'm particularly proud of the sprint relay team. They did extremely well."

Constant went 22-¼ in the broad jump wih Gerald Waguespack second and Fountain third to give the Indians a sweep in that event. Constant also had a 44-2¼ effort in the triple jump. Waguespack was second in this.

The Indians also swept the 120 hurdles and 330 hurdles. Dalton LeBlanc finishing second and Fred Vogel third in the 120's and Vogel second with LeBlanc third in the 330's.

Beside's Canale's record breaking discus heave, State's best events were Gary Smiley's 4:20.5 in the mile run and a sweep in the two-mile run where Paul Bieke was first in 9:41.7. Malcolm Balfour was second and Jimmy Taylor third. Don Posey high jumped 6-2 for State's only other first place.

Fountain's two firsts came on a 9.8 time in the 100 and a 21.9 in the 220.

The Indians also got firsts on John Baker's 48.7 in the 440, a 3:19.2 effort in the mile relay. Gayland LeBlanc's 1:56.2 in the half mile, Tommy Slack's 200-5½ javelin toss and Ronnie Overby's 13-7 pole vault.

CONFERENCE OPENER

Tribe Pops Southwestern For Doubleheader Victory

By EDGAR COLTHARP
World Sports Writer

Northeast bombed the University of Southwestern Louisiana 9-0 in the first game of a baseball doubleheader and came back to take the second contest, 2-1, at Wossman Recreation Center Saturday.

The Tribe moved into the conference lead with the two victories, the first Gulf States Conference play of the year for both teams.

The wins upped the season mark to 6-7 for the Indians, who are now riding a five game victory streak.

Back to back solo home runs by Alton Thomas and Jim Caskey in the fourth frame of the first contest started NLSC's scoring parade.

Caskey walloped another four-bagger in the sixth with one on to notch the eighth and ninth runs.

Northeast finished the fourth inning with only the two homer tallies, but added another marker in the fifth.

John Pace, Tribe rightfielder, led off the stanza with a single and advanced to second when the next man up, John "Red" Hall, walked.

Thomas popped out to the catcher and Caskey then singled home Pace.

Both Caskey and Thomas had four runs batted in for the game. Third baseman Charley Dykes accounted for the other.

The sixth frame was the wildest of the contest as the Indians counted six tallies.

David Worthington led off with a double, followed by catcher Eddie Kincaid who walked. Dykes' ground single into right field scored Worthington from second.

Pace, the next man at bat, singled to load the bases. Hall struck out, but Thomas' double brought in three runs.

At this point Caskey came through with his second homer which scored Thomas ahead of him.

Floyd Murry went all the way on the mound for the Tribe as he got his first win of the year against two losses.

Murry gave up six hits and struck out four in posting the shutout.

The second game was a thriller all the way with Northeast taking a two run lead in the third inning and the Bulldogs getting one back in the fifth.

Dean Bounds, Indian pitcher, allowed the visitors only three hits as he put his season record at 1-2.

The Tribe in turn collected seven safeties off USL's Norbert Morgan, compared to the 13 hits off three Bulldog hurlers in the opening game.

The big man with the bat in the windup fray was Worthington as he accounted for both Northeast runs with a homer while Joey McGinn was aboard.

He also made the fielding play of the day when he robbed Harold LeRay, USL's left fielder, of a hit with a diving back - handed stab of a line drive in the sixth inning of the second game.

In the Tribe third McGinn reached base on shortstop Ashton Chaisson's error, the fourth in a series of five for both games by the Southwestern infielder.

Worthington then slapped Morgan's first pitch over the left field fence.

The next hitter, catcher Kincaid, knocked a single to left and moved to second when the left fielder booted the play.

Kincaid, however, died at second as Dykes popped to the catcher and Pace lined to the second baseman.

Northeast threatened in the fourth when lead off man Pace singled and later moved to second on another error by the USL shortstop.

Pace couldn't advance past that point as Bounds struck out and McGinn went down short to first.

Southwestern put its first man up in the fifth, Lionel Kleinpeter, on base on Worthington's error.

Brother Leonard Kleinpeter singled, moving Lionel to second where he was out moments later on the tail end of a double play when Paul Boeneke lined to McGinn and McGinn tossed to Worthington on the bag.

Morgan then lofted a fly ball to right which fell in for a double when Pace lost it in the sun.

The fluke hit scored the runner from first base.

The Indians' defense allowed the Bulldogs only one base runner in the last two innings, he on a base on balls in the seventh.

Northeastern pulled off two double plays, one in each game, while USL managed only one.

Southwestern committed seven errors to the Tribe's three for the day. NLSC added up to 20 hits while the Bulldogs got nine.

Northeast travels to Hammond Monday for a two game set with the strong Southeastern Lions, last year's conference champions.

SNEAD IN SLUMP

Jack Nicklaus Soars Ahead At Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus put together three consecutive birdies halfway through the back nine Saturday to shoot a four under par 67 and vault past slumping Sam Snead into a three-shot lead after 54 holes of the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament with a 206 total.

Snead, the leader by three shots through each of the first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament, was stunned by a triple bogey 6 on the seventh hole and wound up with 74 to drop to a four-way tie for second at 209.

Defending champion Doug Sanders charged back from a slow start to fire 66, winning $400 for the day's low round that tied him with Snead, Canadian Al Johnston and Australian Bill Dunk.

Al Geiberger's 70 put him alone in sixth place at 210, one stroke ahead of U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, who was the co-leader with Larry Mowry through the first nine holes of the day's play.

Boros faltered to an incoming 38 for a 73 round over the par 71 Sedgefield Country Club course, a 7,000-yarder. Mowry, out in 33, soared to 40 in the incoming nine for 73 that dropped him to 213.

Nicklaus, playing here only because snow a week ago prevented him from practicing at home in Columbus, Ohio, for his defense of the Masters title next weekend, had five birdies and one bogey.

"I'm still not hitting the ball real solid, but it's been a little better every day," he said. "My front nine iron play wasn't good, but I got the ball closer to the hole on the back nine. I feel I will be hitting the ball better by the time the Masters opens."

Nicklaus had eight pars and a birdie from three feet on the short third for a front nine 35. He had to make three par putts of four to five feet after his initial efforts were short.

He knocked in a 12-footer to birdie No. 10 and took three to get down from the edge on No. 12, his only bogey. Starting on 13, he knocked in birdie putts of seven, eight and 15 feet. He missed a seven-footer on the final green that would have tied Sanders for the low round.

Snead battled back from bogeys on the fourth and fifth holes with an eagle on the long sixth. But on No. 7, a 171-yard, par 3 hole, he lost his lead.

His tee shot caught the edge of a trap and rolled back into the bunker. There was no way to hit under the ball cleanly and Sam whacked it three times before reaching the green. Then he needed two putts.

A bogey followed on No. 8 and the 51-year-old seven-time winner here, turned in 40.

Coming back, he birdied 12 and 14, but went over par on 16 and 17, three-putting both. A birdie on 18 wound up a sad day. He lamented that in 54 holes he knocked in only one putt longer than six feet.

Sanders put together a par of 33s; Dunk had a 36-35 card and Johnston shot the course in 36-33 to tie Snead for second place.

Arnold Palmer, hitting every green, shot 70 on 15 pars, an eagle, a birdie and a double bogey.

Sixty-two pros who shot 222 or better and 10 amateurs qualified for the final 18 holes Sunday.

Willie Pastrano Does Gym Work For Title Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano put in an hour of gym work Saturday but passed up any sparring as he continued to tune up for Friday's title bout with Argentina's Gregorio Peralta.

Peralta, who arrived from New York Friday, boxed three rounds in the same gym after Pastrano finished his workout.

The South American puncher was pronounced "coming along fine," by Charlie Johnson, his American manager.

Trainer Lou Gross, handling Pastrano for the championship bout, said the New Orleans native would box "two or three rounds Sunday. And, of course, he'll run about three miles in the morning."

Pastrano has boxed 101 round in preparation for the fight, his firt defense of the title he won last June 1 from Harold Johnson.

Peralta has put in more than 50 rounds with sparring mates.

Promoter Bennie Geigerman, meanwhile, announced that he was trying to line up a match between the winner of the Pastrano - Peralta championship bout and Carl (Bobo) Olsen, the former middleweight king who now fights in the light heavyweight division.

Geigerman said advance sales for Friday's bout, to be staged in Municipal Auditorium, totaled "around $15,000 so far, but next week is when most of the tickets will be sold."

Geigerman has the fight scaled for an $80,000 gate. The bout will be nationally-telecast starting at 10 p.m., EST, over ABC with a blackout within a 150-mile radius of New Orleans.

MAN FROM MISSOURI

Mighty Lingle Hero In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Fifteen records fell and one was tied as Missouri, speared by the mighty Robin Lingle, who ran a 1:48.1 half-mile and a 4:02.4 mile, dominated the Texas Relays with two records Saturday.

The Tiger distance medley relay team, with Lingle bringing it in with his great mile, set a record of 9:45.2.

Oklahoma also won two relays and Grambling took two in the college division, hanging up a record of 1:23.3 in the 880.

The Grambling Tigers from Louisiana missed on their efforts to set a world mark in the 440-yard relay. They did 40.6—six-tenths of a second over the record.

The college division produced two records—Grambling's 880-yard relay and 9:57.8 in the distance medley by Emporia, Kan. State.

Morgan Equals Styron Record

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Northeast State College's undefeated track and field team heaped a little more salt on the Southeast Conference's wounds here Saturday night by crushing Mississippi State, 100-44, in a dual meet witnessed by about 3,000 fans.

The Indians, who had already whipped a number of SEC track powers in winning the Florida and Memphis Relays, captured first places in 13 of 17 events to annex their fourth straight outdoor win this spring.

Three different Indians were double winners, Roger Morgan in both hurdles, Ronnie Fountain in the 100 and 220 dashes and Doug Constant in the broad jump and triple jump.

Morgan won the 330-yard hurdles in 37.8, but his sizzling 13.9 effort in the 120 highs tied the Brown Stadium record set by Don Styron of Northeast in 1960. The mark, run against an eight to 10 mile wind, is a 10th of a second off the school record of 13.8 set by Stryon in 1962.

One Stadium record was actually broken.

Justin Canale, State's big football star, heaved the shot put 54-6⅝ to shatter the 54-2½ record set by Lud Bandaries of Louisiana State in 1960.

Northeast came close to another record with a 41.1 showing the 440 relay, best time of the year for the Indians. The Tribe combine of Dalton LeBlanc, Roger Morgan, Charles McDonald and Ronnie Fountain were only a 10th second off the Stadium record of 41.0 set by the Indians in 1960.

Neville High also turned in some good times in winning three high school division relays.

Gary Pappas, Ken Brazzel, Doug Cookston and Freddie Moses toured the 440 in 44.4.

The team of Pappas, Jerry Braud, Eric Borgkvist and Moses clipped off the 880 in 1:31.1.

But the real dilly was the Tiger mile relay team's 3:28.9 effort. Braud, Cookston, Brazzel and Borgkvist ran this one.

Ouachita was disqualified as second place winner in the mile relay after staying close to the Tigers through most of the four lap distance.

Lee Junior High won the 440 relay in 50.0 and the 880 relay in 1:44.8 in a special Junior High relays division.

After the meet Northeast State Track Coach Bob Groseclose praised both Constant and Morgan. "Doug is really starting to come around," Groseclose said. "We missed Tommy Edmonson (out with an injury), but I think Constant is really going to help us." Edmonson had been the Tribe's top man in the pole vault, triple jump and broad jump.

"I don't want to say too much about Morgan. You know he could have done even better if the wind hadn't been against him. There's not much telling what he'll do before he finishes here.

"And I'm particularly proud of the sprint relay team. They did extremely well."

Constant went 22-¼ in the broad jump wih Gerald Waguespack second and Fountain third to give the Indians a sweep in that event. Constant also had a 44-2¼ effort in the triple jump. Waguespack was second in this.

The Indians also swept the 120 hurdles and 330 hurdles. Dalton LeBlanc finishing second and Fred Vogel third in the 120's and Vogel second with LeBlanc third in the 330's.

Beside's Canale's record breaking discus heave, State's best events were Gary Smiley's 4:20.5 in the mile run and a sweep in the two-mile run where Paul Bieke was first in 9:41.7. Malcolm Balfour was second and Jimmy Taylor third. Don Posey high jumped 6-2 for State's only other first place.

Fountain's two firsts came on a 9.8 time in the 100 and a 21.9 in the 220.

The Indians also got firsts on John Baker's 48.7 in the 440, a 3:19.2 effort in the mile relay, Gayland LeBlanc's 1:56.2 in the half mile, Tommy Slack's 200-5½ javelin toss and Ronnie Overby's 13-7 pole vault.

CONFERENCE OPENER

Tribe Pops Southwestern For Doubleheader Victory

By EDGAR COLTHARP
World Sports Writer

Northeast bombed the University of Southwestern Louisiana 9-0 in the first game of a baseball doubleheader and came back to take the second contest, 2-1, at Wossman Recreation Center Saturday.

The Tribe moved into the conference lead with the two victories, the first Gulf States Conference play of the year for both teams.

The wins upped the season mark to 6-7 for the Indians, who are now riding a five game victory streak.

Back to back solo home runs by Alton Thomas and Jim Caskey in the fourth frame of the first contest started NLSC's scoring parade.

Caskey walloped another four-bagger in the sixth with one on to notch the eighth and ninth runs.

Northeast finished the fourth inning with only the two homer tallies, but added another marker in the fifth.

John Pace, Tribe rightfielder, led off the stanza with a single and advanced to second when the next man up, John "Red" Hall, walked.

Thomas popped out to the catcher and Caskey then singled home Pace.

Both Caskey and Thomas had four runs batted in for the game. Third baseman Charley Dykes accounted for the other.

The sixth frame was the wildest of the contest as the Indians counted six tallies.

David Worthington led off with a double, followed by catcher Eddie Kincaid who walked. Dykes' ground single into right field scored Worthington from second.

Pace, the next man at bat, singled to load the bases. Hall struck out, but Thomas' double brought in three runs.

At this point Caskey came through with his second homer which scored Thomas ahead of him.

Floyd Murry went all the way on the mound for the Tribe as he got his first win of the year against two losses.

Murry gave up six hits and struck out four in posting the shutout.

The second game was a thriller all the way with Northeast taking a two run lead in the third inning and the Bulldogs getting one back in the fifth.

Dean Bounds, Indian pitcher, allowed the visitors only three hits as he put his season record at 1-2.

The Tribe in turn collected seven safeties off USL's Norbert Morgan, compared to the 13 hits off three Bulldog hurlers in the opening game.

The big man with the bat in the windup fray was Worthington as he accounted for both Northeast runs with a homer while Joey McGinn was aboard.

He also made the fielding play of the day when he robbed Harold LeRay, USL's left fielder, of a hit with a diving back - handed stab of a line drive in the sixth inning of the second game.

In the Tribe third McGinn reached base on shortstop Ashton Chaisson's error, the fourth in a series of five for both games by the Southwestern infielder.

Worthington then slapped Morgan's first pitch over the left field fence.

The next hitter, catcher Kincaid, knocked a single to left and moved to second when the left fielder booted the play.

Kincaid, however, died at second as Dykes popped to the catcher and Pace lined to the second baseman.

Northeast threatened in the fourth when lead off man Pace singled and later moved to second on another error by the USL shortstop.

Pace couldn't advance past that point as Bounds struck out and McGinn went down short to first.

Southwestern put its first man up in the fifth, Lionel Kleinpeter, on base on Worthington's error.

Brother Leonard Kleinpeter singled, moving Lionel to second where he was out moments later on the tail end of a double play when Paul Boeneke lined to McGinn and McGinn tossed to Worthington on the bag.

Morgan then lofted a fly ball to right which fell in for a double when Pace lost it in the sun.

The fluke hit scored the runner from first base.

The Indians' defense allowed the Bulldogs only one base runner in the last two innings, he on a base on balls in the seventh.

Northeastern pulled off two double plays, one in each game, while USL managed only one.

Southwestern committed seven errors to the Tribe's three for the day. NLSC added up to 20 hits while the Bulldogs got nine.

Northeast travels to Hammond Monday for a two game set with the strong Southeastern Lions, last year's conference champions.

SNEAD IN SLUMP

Jack Nicklaus Soars Ahead At Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus put together three consecutive birdies halfway through the back nine Saturday to shoot a four under par 67 and vault past slumping Sam Snead into a three-shot lead after 54 holes of the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament with a 206 total.

Snead, the leader by three shots through each of the first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament, was stunned by a triple bogey 6 on the seventh hole and wound up with 74 to drop to a four-way tie for second at 209.

Defending champion Doug Sanders charged back from a slow start to fire 66, winning $400 for the day's low round that tied him with Snead, Canadian Al Johnston and Australian Bill Dunk.

Al Geiberger's 70 put him alone in sixth place at 210, one stroke ahead of U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, who was the co-leader with Larry Mowry through the first nine holes of the day's play.

Boros faltered to an incoming 38 for a 73 round over the par 71 Sedgefield Country Club course, a 7,000-yarder. Mowry, out in 33, soared to 40 in the incoming nine for 73 that dropped him to 213.

Nicklaus, playing here only because snow a week ago prevented him from practicing at home in Columbus, Ohio, for his defense of the Masters title next weekend, had five birdies and one bogey.

"I'm still not hitting the ball real solid, but it's been a little better every day," he said. "My front nine iron play wasn't good, but I got the ball closer to the hole on the back nine. I feel I will be hitting the ball better by the time the Masters opens."

Nicklaus had eight pars and a birdie from three feet on the short third for a front nine 35. He had to make three par putts of four to five feet after his initial efforts were short.

He knocked in a 12-footer to birdie No. 10 and took three to get down from the edge on No. 12, his only bogey. Starting on 13, he knocked in birdie putts of seven, eight and 15 feet. He missed a seven-footer on the final green that would have tied Sanders for the low round.

Snead battled back from bogeys on the fourth and fifth holes with an eagle on the long sixth. But on No. 7, a 171-yard, par 3 hole, he lost his lead.

His tee shot caught the edge of a trap and rolled back into the bunker. There was no way to hit under the ball cleanly and sam whacked it three times before reaching the green. Then he needed two putts.

A bogey followed on No. 8 and the 51-year-old seven-time winner here, turned in 40.

Coming back, he birdied 12 and 14, but went over par on 16 and 17, three-putting both. A birdie on 18 wound up a sad day. He lamented that in 54 holes he knocked in only one putt longer than six feet.

Sanders put together a par of 33s; Dunk had a 36-35 card and Johnston shot the course in 36-33 to tie Snead for second place.

Arnold Palmer, hitting every green, shot 70 on 15 pars, an eagle, a birdie and a double bogey.

Sixty-two pros who shot 222 or better and 10 amateurs qualified for the final 18 holes Sunday.

Willie Pastrano Does Gym Work For Title Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano put in an hour of gym work Saturday but passed up any sparring as he continued to tune up for Friday's title bout with Argentina's Gregorio Peralta.

Peralta, who arrived from New York Friday, boxed three rounds in the same gym after Pastrano finished his workout.

The South American puncher was pronounced "coming along fine," by Charlie Johnson, his American manager.

Trainer Lou Gross, handling Pastrano for the championship bout, said the New Orleans native would box "two or three rounds Sunday. And, of course, he'll run about three miles in the morning."

Pastrano has boxed 101 round in preparation for the fight, his firt defense of the title he won last June 1 from Harold Johnson.

Peralta has put in more than 50 rounds with sparring mates.

Promoter Bennie Geigerman, meanwhile, announced that he was trying to line up a match between the winner of the Pastrano - Peralta championship bout and Carl (Bobo) Olson, the former middleweight king who now fights in the light heavyweight division.

Geigerman said advance sales for Friday's bout, to be staged in Municipal Auditorium, totaled "around $15,000 so far, but next week is when most of the tickets will be sold."

Geigerman has the fight scaled for an $80,000 gate. The bout will be nationally-telecast starting at 10 p.m., EST, over ABC with a blackout within a 150-mile radius of New Orleans.

MAN FROM MISSOURI

Mighty Lingle Hero In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Fifteen records fell and one was tied as Missouri, speared by the mighty Robin Lingle, who ran a 1:48.1 half-mile and a 4:02.4 mile, dominated the Texas Relays with two records Saturday.

The Missouri two-mile relay team with Lingle doing his 1:48.1 on the anchor, set a record of 7:22.7.

Oklahoma also won two relays and Grambling took two in the college division, hanging up a record of 1:23.3 in the 880.

The Grambling Tigers from Louisiana missed on their efforts to set a world mark in the 440-yard relay. They did 40.6—six-tenths of a second over the record.

The college division produced two records—Grambling's 880-yard relay and 9:57.8 in the distance medley by Emporia, Kan. State.

Motorcycle Runs This Afternoon At Selman Field

Motorcycle races sponsored by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Twin City Ramblers start at 1 p.m. today at Selman Field.

The runs will be on a kidney shaped dirt track. The event is sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association and drivers are expected from all over Louisiana and out of state.

The races are of the tourist trophy scramble type which means only trophies, rather than money, will be given as prizes.

The Jaycee Jaynes will have the concession stand. All funds from the afternoon will go the Jaycee youth fund which sponsors various activities for young people.

All admission is $1 except for children under 12 who will be admitted free if accompanied by parents.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Wildlife Area Is Wilderness

With Sam Hanna

Atchafalaya In Trouble

Just as you fly out of sight of the state capitol at Baton Rouge, the Atchafalaya Swamp spreads out in front of you like a blanket stretching from one horizon to the other.

As far as your eye can see, that's the Atchafalaya Swamp.

We were astounded by the vastness of Louisiana's greatest wilderness a few days ago when we flew it—from Baton Rouge to above New Roads, down to Morgan City, all the way to the Gulf of Mexico, then up to Lafayette and back to Baton Rouge.

Even in a fast plane, it took almost three hours to get a good look at the Atchafalaya. It's big-all 1300 square miles of it — and, mon fran, the Frenchmen say it's full of critters and fish.

That's why the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission doesn't want to lose the Atchafalaya, or see it endangered in any way, because it's the biggest thing Louisiana has in the way of fresh water fishing and ideal game habitat.

That's why the commission hopes that the U.S. Corps of Engineers can be stopped with a project that would flush out the Atchafalaya, taking backwater off thousands of acres that make up good hunting and fishing, dumping a ton of muddy water into the Gulf on top of the oyster beds.

This is a problem located in South Louisiana — far from our upstate outdoor problems. But when a problem affects the outdoors in Louisiana, then it's our problem as well as it is the problem of our Cajun cousins to the South.

You see, the Atchafalaya River Basin is important in the lower Mississippi River valley, because it takes water from all parts of the country, then channels it to the Gulf. Water that flows past our doorstep here eventually passes down the Atchafalaya to the Gulf.

Down through the years the Army engineers have constructed three floodways in the area to handle flood waters — the Morganza, West Atchafalaya and Atchafalaya Basin.

This program is designed to handle three million cubic feet of water per second through Louisiana and into the Gulf via the Mississippi and Atchafalaya. Under the Corps plans, the West Atchafalaya Floodway would come into use only when the combined capacity of the Mississippi, Atchafalaya and Morganza Floodway were exceeded. This floodway is expected to be used once in one hundred years.

Once a century, but the Army engineers want more.

They say that overflow from the Atchafalaya into the three floodways is depositing silt at an alarming rate. This, they contend, is reducing the capacity of these floodways to carry water when they are needed to do so.

So the Army engineers have a four-part program for the Atchafalaya area:

1. Development of a main channel through the basin by dredging. 2. Confinement of moderate floodflows to a main channel by closures of outlets along the main channel to the maximum degree possible. 3. Extension of both the east and west Atchafalaya River levees further downstream. 4. Maintenance of all segments of presently authorized navigation projects within the basin.

The Corps wants to stop the overflow in the Atchafalaya. Yet the overflow is what makes the Atchafalaya the wildlife wilderness that it is.

While the commission argues that the project would harm the area for sport fish and hunting, the commission also points out that the Atchafalaya plays a major role in the state's economy.

For example, the commission says that in 1962 fishermen caught 15 million pounds of fish in the basin, amounting to a return of $2,627,937.87 for the fishermen.

Trappers get abont $4-million annually from animals snared in the basin, including nutria, muskrats, mink, raccoon, otter and opossum.

The nine parishes largely affected by the basin represent one-fourth of the state's fur economy, or an income to trappers of $1-million annually, according to the commission.

This, however, is just part of the story, because the flood network of the Atchafalaya is a complicated matter.

But the commission, joined by the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, has been fighting the Corps plan now for a long time. Unfortunately, the Army engineers have sent their recommendations to Washington, which means, in the fears of some informed people, that it wont' be long before approval of the project is granted.

Meantime, the commission has recommended this three-part program:

1. That the federal government give full consideration to the possibility of obtaining, by acquisition, in fee simple title lands comprising the project area and provide for their subsequent development for fish and wildlife, recreation and commercial purposes by federal, state and local interest for maximum public use.

2. That navigation access between the Atchafalaya Basin Protection Levees be maintained.

3. That in view of losses sustained in the past and to alleviate these conditions, specific structures be designed to furnish freshwater to depleted areas.

This, in summary fashion, is the Atchafalaya story. It covers a huge section of Louisiana of all backcountry that makes Northeast Louisiana — with its wooded areas being converted into farmland — look like a park.

If the Atchafalaya is lost, the sportsmen, the trappers and the fishermen of Louisiana will have suffered their greatest loss in modern times.

Managing Fish Ponds

Max W. Summers, a fisheries biologist who has been with the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission for the past 10 years, has just released an excellent booklet entitled "Managing Louisiana Fish Ponds."

Max Summers, a young man who came to Louisiana from his native state of Missouri, tells you the "hows" and "whys" in the practice of managing fish ponds.

In Max's work, the commission has seen fit to give the public a printed document that will assist any property owner in creating a fish pond or improving on an old one.

As Max says in the preface, "The fish pond program has been accelerated in order to keep pace with the interests, demands and needs of the thousands of pond owners throughout the state."

He, of course, is referring to the fish hatcheries maintained by the commission, including the James A. Noe Hatchery at Monroe.

But basically, Max's booklet does this for anyone interested in reading it:

"It will supply the basic facts and principles necessary to conduct a beneficial fish pond management program. It is a further intent that this bulletin will serve as a reference guide for all those interested in having a well-managed, successful fish pond."

Everywhere you go these days you see farm ponds. Some of them are good for fishing; others are not. In fact, some of our largest bass have been landed in farm ponds.

And that's the purpose of the Max Summers booklet. It is intended to provide information for the man who wants to create or improve a pond for fishing.

If you want a copy of the booklet, just write Max Summers at the commission office, 400 Royal Street in New Orleans. He'll gladly send you a copy.

Because, as Max says in the introduction, "Under present day conditions of heavy fishing pressures and shorter working hours, the farm pond can be a source of enjoyment and relaxation if sound conservation principles are followed."

Get Max's booklet. It's worth having.

Little Man's Corner

It was windy and the water was muddy, but some of the little men made news afield.

From Sicily Island, Sonny Gilbert got the jump on his fellow turkey hunters in Louisiana by bagging a gobbler in Arkansas on opening day, which was last Wednesday.

Hunting in Deshea County, Sonny, the state senator, killed a turkey that weighed 19½-pounds with a 9-inch beard and wing spread of 50½ inches. He killed the bird at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Deshea is one of three counties in Arkansas that produce the most kills. The second split of the Arkansas season will be April 13-16th.

Louisiana's season, of course, opened yesterday and will run through April 19th. One gobbler per hunter for the season.

Locally, at Black Bayou, C. D. Smith of Monroe caught a string of 18 specs and bream, plus a bass. W. P. Slack of Monroe landed 25 big bream.

Also from Monroe, Mrs. W. E. Lawson landed a string of 40 specs, bream and bass in Black Bayou. Phillip May of Ruston caught 25 white perch, 30 bream and three bass.

Archie Parker of Monroe caught 40 chinkapins in Black Bayou.

From West Monroe, Mrs. Mecie Frost and her son, Dean, got the limit of bream and barfish in Lake St. John. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Antley of Winnsboro landed the limit of bass in Lake Concordia.

Also in the Ferriday area, Billy Priester and Powell Kaiser caught bream, white perch and the limit of bass at Red River basin below Deer Park.

Percy May and Bill Strickland of Ferriday continued to catch bass in Lake Concordia while James Waycaster got the limit of bream there.

And in the Lake Providence area, Jimmy Baur and J. L. Baur of Lake Providence caught 24 bass in the big lake. J. L. landed a bass that weighted 6¼-pounds. Tony Cohran caught the limit of bass. Two of them weighed 4½ pounds each while another went five pounds.

BROTHER DON ENTERED ALSO

Dave Styron To Join Runs At Southwestern Relays

LAFAYETTE (Special) — The Southwestern Relays has added Olympic hopeful Dave Styron to its super-star lineup which will perform here next Saturday in the 36th annual running at USL's McNaspy Stadium.

Relays director David Fisher announced Saturday afternoon that the sprinting ace who helped to make Northeast Louisiana State a national track power will enter the open 400-meter dash.

Dave and twin brother Don are stepping up their spring cinder activities to be ready for the Olympic trials this summer.

Fisher added that he has also been invited to compete in Saturday's big meet. The elder (by 24 minutes) of the identical twins is currently pursuing graduate studies at East Texas State in Commerce. Saturday, he raced in the Texas Relays at Austin.

The meet director said he hopes to hear Monday from Don, who holds the world record for the 200-meter low hurdles.

He set the mark of 21.9 seconds at the LSU Invitational meet in 1960 at Baton Rouge.

Dave's entry in the 400 meter race will provide a crack field of contenders.

William Shapiro of Tulane, 1963 Sugar Bowl champion; former LSU standout Jack O'Neil; and Ed Domingue, a LSU student, will be going against Styron.

Styron two years ago won the 400-meter title at the Trinidad Games in British West Indies. His clocking of 47.2 seconds broke the Trinidad record. He also turned in an excellent 46.6 to win the 440-yard dash at the Albuquerque Invitational. Eddie Southern of Texas holds the SW Relays record in the gruelling 400 meter event. He set the standard of 46.7 seconds in 1960.

Shapiro and O'Neil rank among the best quartermen in the entire southland. Shaprio's 47.6 took first in the Sugar Bowl last December at New Orleans, and O'Neil ran a 46.7 for the Tigers to set a 440-yard record last year at the LSU Invitational. Shapiro's time in the Sugar Bowl is the best credited to any Louisiana Collegian this season.

Dave Styron, who is now completing requirements for a teaching certificate at Northeast, ran the 60-yard dash in 6 seconds flat at Lubbock, Tex., in 1962 to equal the world record. In his last Southwestern Relays appearance two years ago he won the 100 — yard dash in 9.5 and also ran legs on Northeast State's three first place relay teams — 400 yards, 880 yards, and mile.

On the same day brother Don broke the meet record in the 120-yard high hurdles. He was clocked at 13.8 seeconds, bettering the 13.9 standard which he had established in 1961.

The fabulous twins were co-winners of the Gulf States Conference "most outstanding athlete" award in both 1959 and 1960.

This 440-meter chase will now be spotlighted with the pole vault, which features world recordholder John Pennel and a field of our 16-foot plus vaulters, the 400 meter hurdles, headed by Louisiana State's Billy Hardin who ran a superb 50.8 Friday night to win his event at the Texas Relays; and open two-mile run.

Two Umpire Meetings Set

The Monroe Recreation Department will hold two meetings Tuesday night for anyone interested in umpiring in summer baseball and softball programs. Those interested in umpiring softball will meet at 7:00 and those interested in umpiring baseball will meet at 8:00.

The meetings will be at the Benoit Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive. All people planning to umpire must attend these meetings as plans for the season, rules and uniforms will be discussed.

Archers Will Meet Monday To See Film

A training film, "The Art of Archery," will be shown at the meeting of the Tupawek Bowmen's Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the First National Bank in West Monroe.

Other business for the meeting will be discussion of the state tournament to be held at the Tupawek range in June.

Arcadia Hornets Nip Bossier 9

ARCADIA (Special) — The Arcadia Hornets edged the Bossier sophomores, 7-6, in a baseball game here Saturday afternoon.

Richard Hood was the winning pitcher and now has a 4-1 season record. He gave up six hits and struck out nine.

Ricky Poulon was top Hornet hitter with a single and double for four triples to the plate.

POWELL GETS 3RD WIN

Lions, Bulldogs Split Conference Twinbill

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Southeastern Louisiana split a Gulf States Conference twin bill here Saturday afternoon with the Lions winning the first tilt, 1-0, on an unearned run and the Bulldogs copping the second, 3-1.

Tech ace George Woodson and SLC's Curt Chaisson hooked up in a mound duel of three-hitters in the opener but the Lions got a run in the first inning. Jim Reynolds doubled and Ron Oubre singled in the frame. Reynolds scored on a passed ball.

It was Chaisson's fifth win against one loss and Woodson's first loss in five decision. Chaisson walked one and struck out five while Woodson walked two intentionally and struck out three.

Sophomore southpaw Mike Powell earned Tech a split with a nifty six-hitter in the second game. It was his third victory of the season without a loss.

Wildness cost Henry Winters the loss. He walked four men and allowed an infield single as Tech bunched all three runs in the second inning. The Bulldogs got only three hits as Eldon Remondet permitted only more two hits in a four and one third innings relief role.

Tech travels to Natchitoches Monday to meet Northwestern, while SLC plays host to league leading Northeast State in Hammond.

The Bulldogs had a number of chances to win the opener. Paul Labenne trippled with one out in the bottom of the second, but died there. Later Jon Pat Stevenson had a ground rule double. He couldn't score either. Woodson also came up with a long blast to left field with a man on base, but Southeastern's Reynolds made a fine one-handed stab near the fence to rob the Techmen of at least one sure run.

WARRIORS BACK IN

Playoffs Continue For NBA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs will be resumed today at St. Louis and Cincinnati with the San Francisco Warriors back in the picture and the Boston Celtics attempting to make it a rout.

After viewing films of their opening game loss-a so-called horror film — the Warriors bounced back Friday night with a 120-85 victory over the St. Louis Hawks which tie the best-of-7 game series at 1-1.

The defending champion Boston Celtics are 2-0 over the Cincinnati Royals and need only two more victories to go into the finals.

Coach Alex Hannum sat his Warriors in a club house studio and made them watch in agony the first game in which they blew two 20-point leads in losing to St. Louis 116-111.

Chagrined at the exhibition, the San Francisco team went out and crushed the Hawks in the second game at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 28 points and Guy Rodgers 21 for the Warriors.

"Rodgers was terrific coming up with loose balls and triggering the fast break," Hannum said. The coach also praised his team's defense.

The Celtics are bubbling with confidence in their one-sided series with the Royals after their fastest playoff start in six years.

Frank Ramsey, the Celtics' co-captain, said a four-game sweep is impossible, but he added the odds were 1,000 to 1 against Boston losing the series.

No team has ever come back from a 0-2 deficit to win a seven-game playoff.

Feature of Boston's success so far has been the work of K. C. Jones, who has held Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati's most valuable player, to 15 field goals in the first two games.

Wildlife Area Is Wilderness

With Sam Hanna

Atchafalaya In Trouble

Just as you fly out of sight of the state capitol at Baton Rouge, the Atchafalaya Swamp spreads out in front of you like a blanket stretching from one horizon to the other.

As far as your eye can see, that's the Atchafalaya Swamp.

We were astounded by the vastness of Louisiana's greatest wilderness a few days ago when we flew it—from Baton Rouge to above New Roads, down to Morgan City, all the way to the Gulf of Mexico, then up to Lafayette and back to Baton Rouge.

Even in a fast plane, it took almost three hours to get a good look at the Atchafalaya. It's big-all 1300 square miles of it — and, mon fran, the Frenchmen say it's full of critters and fish.

That's why the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission doesn't want to lose the Atchafalaya, or see it endangered in any way, because it's the biggest thing Louisiana has in the way of fresh water fishing and ideal game habitat.

That's why the commission hopes that the U.S. Corps of Engineers can be stopped with a project that would flush out the Atchafalaya, taking backwater off thousands of acres that make up good huntng and fishing, dumping a ton of muddy water into the Gulf on top of the oyster beds.

This is a problem located in South Louisiana — far from our upstate outdoor problems. But when a problem affects the outdoors in Louisiana, then it's our problem as well as it is the problem of our Cajun cousins to the South.

You see, the Atchafalaya River Basin is important in the lower Mississippi River valley, because it takes water from all parts of the country, then channels it to the Gulf. Water that flows past our doorstep here eventually passes down the Atchafalaya to the Gulf.

Down through the years the Army engineers have constructed three floodways in the area to handle flood waters — the Morganza, West Atchafalaya and Atchafalaya Basin.

This program is designed to handle three million cubic feet of water per second through Louisiana and into the Gulf via the Mississippi and Atchafalaya. Under the Corps plans, the West Atchafalaya Floodway would come into use only when the combined capacity of the Mississippi, Atchafalaya and Morganza Floodway were exceeded. This floodway is expected to be used once in one hundred years.

Once a century, but the Army engineers want more.

They say that overflow from the Atchafalaya into the three floodways is depositing silt at an alarming rate. This, they contend, is reducing the capacity of these floodways to carry water when they are needed to do so.

So the Army engineers have a four-part program for the Atchafalaya area:

1. Development of a main channel through the basin by dredging. 2. Confinement of moderate floodflows to a main channel by closures of outlets along the main channel to the maximum degree possible. 3. Extension of both the east and west Atchafalaya River levees further downstream. 4. Maintenance of all segments of presently authorized navigation projects within the basin.

The Corps wants to stop the overflow in the Atchafalaya. Yet the overflow is what makes the Atchafalaya the wildlife wilderness that it is.

While the commission argues that the project would harm the area for sport fish and hunting, the commission also points out that the Atchafalaya plays a major role in the state's economy.

For example, the commission says that in 1962 fishermen caught 15 million pounds of fish in the basin, amounting to a return of $2,627,937.87 for the fishermen.

Trappers get about $4-million annually from animals snared in the basin, including nutria, muskrats, mink, raccoon, otter and opossum.

The nine parishes largely affected by the basin represent one-fourth of the state's fur economy, or an income to trappers of $1-million annually, according to the commission.

This, however, is just part of the story, because the flood network of the Atchafalaya is a complicated matter.

But the commission, joined by the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, has been fighting the Corps plan now for a long time. Unfortunately, the Army engineers have sent their recommendations to Washington, which means, in the fears of some informed people, that it wont' be long before approval of the project is granted.

Meantime, the commission has recommended this three-part program:

1. That the federal government give full consideration to the possibility of obtaining, by acquisition, in fee simple title lands comprising the project area and provide for their subsequent development for fish and wildlife, recreation and commercial purposes by federal, state and local interest for maximum public use.

2. That navigation access between the Atchafalaya Basin Protection Levees be maintained.

3. That in view of losses sustained in the past and to alleviate these conditions, specific structures be designed to furnish freshwater to depleted areas.

This, in summary fashion, is the Atchafalaya story. It covers a huge section of Louisiana of all backcountry that makes Northeast Louisiana — with its wooded areas being converted into farmland — look like a park.

If the Atchafalaya is lost, the sportsmen, the trappers and the fishermen of Louisiana will have suffered their greatest loss in modern times.

Managing Fish Ponds

Max W. Summers, a fisheries biologist who has been with the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission for the past 10 years, has just released an excellent booklet entitled "Managing Louisiana Fish Ponds."

Max Summers, a young man who came to Louisiana from his native state of Missouri, tells you the "hows" and "whys" in the practice of managing fish ponds.

In Max's work, the commission has seen fit to give the public a printed document that will assist any property owner in creating a fish pond or improving on an old one.

As Max says in the preface, "The fish pond program has been accelerated in order to keep pace with the interests, demands and needs of the thousands of pond owners throughout the state."

He, of course, is referring to the fish hatcheries maintained by the commission, including the James A. Noe Hatchery at Monroe.

But basically, Max's booklet does this for anyone interested in reading it:

"It will supply the basic facts and principles necessary to conduct a beneficial fish pond management program. It is a further intent that this bulletin will serve as a reference guide for all those interested in having a well-managed, successful fish pond."

Everywhere you go these days you see farm ponds. Some of them are good for fishing; others are not. In fact, some of our largest bass have been landed in farm ponds.

And that's the purpose of the Max Summers booklet. It is intended to provide information for the man who wants to create or improve a pond for fishing.

If you want a copy of the booklet, just write Max Summers at the commission office, 400 Royal Street in New Orleans. He'll gladly send you a copy.

Because, as Max says in the introduction, "Under present day conditions of heavy fishing pressures and shorter working hours, the farm pond can be a source of enjoyment and relaxation if sound conservation principles are followed."

Get Max's booklet. It's worth having.

Little Man's Corner

It was windy and the water was muddy, but some of the little men made news afield.

From Sicily Island, Sonny Gilbert got the jump on his fellow turkey hunters in Louisiana by bagging a gobbler in Arkansas on opening day, which was last Wednesday.

Hunting in Deshea County, Sonny, the state senator, killed a turkey that weighed 19½-pounds with a 9-inch beard and wing spread of 50½ inches. He killed the bird at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Deshea is one of three counties in Arkansas that produce the most kills. The second split of the Arkansas season will be April 13-16th.

Louisiana's season, of course, opened yesterday and will run through April 19th. One gobbler per hunter for the season.

Locally, at Black Bayou, C. D. Smith of Monroe caught a string of 18 specs and bream, plus a bass. W. P. Slack of Monroe landed 25 big bream.

Also from Monroe, Mrs. W. E. Lawson landed a string of 40 specs, bream and bass in Black Bayou. Phillip May of Ruston caught 25 white perch, 30 bream and three bass.

Archie Parker of Monroe caught 40 chinkapins in Black Bayou.

From West Monroe, Mrs. Mecie Frost and her son, Dean, got the limit of bream and barfish in Lake St. John. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Antley of Winnsboro landed the limit of bass in Lake Concordia.

Also in the Ferriday area, Billy Priester and Powell Kaiser caught bream, white perch and the limit of bass at Red River basin below Deer Park.

Percy May and Bill Strickland of Ferriday continued to catch bass in Lake Concordia while James Waycaster got the limit of bream there.

And in the Lake Providence area, Jimmy Baur and J. L. Baur of Lake Providence caught 24 bass in the big lake. J. L. landed a bass that weighted 6¼-pounds. Tony Cohran caught the limit of bass. Two of them weighed 4½ pounds each while another went five pounds.

BROTHER DON ENTERED ALSO

Dave Styron To Join Runs At Southwestern Relays

LAFAYETTE (Special) — The Southwestern Relays has added Olympic hopeful Dave Styron to its super-star lineup which will perform here next Saturday in the 36th annual running at USL's McNaspy Stadium.

Relays director David Fisher announced Saturday afternoon that the sprinting ace who helped to make Northeast Louisiana State a national track power will enter the open 400-meter dash.

Dave and twin brother Don are stepping up their spring cinder activities to be ready for the Olympic trials this summer.

Fisher added that he has also been invited to compete in Saturday's big meet. The elder (by 24 minutes) of the identical twins is currently pursuing graduate studies at East Texas State in Commerce. Saturday, he raced in the Texas Relays at Austin.

The meet director said he hopes to hear Monday from Don, who holds the world record for the 200-meter low hurdles.

He set the mark of 21.9 seconds at the LSU Invitational meet in 1960 at Baton Rouge.

Dave's entry in the 400 meter race will provide a crack field of contenders.

William Shapiro of Tulane, 1963 Sugar Bowl champion; former LSU standout Jack O'Neil; and Ed Domingue, a LSU student, will be going against Styron.

Styron two years ago won the 400-meter title at the Trinidad Games in British West Indies. His clocking of 47.2 seconds broke the Trinidad record. He also turned in an excellent 46.6 to win the 440-yard dash at the Albuquerque Invitational. Eddie Southern of Texas holds the SW Relays record in the gruelling 400 meter event. He set the standard of 46.7 seconds in 1960.

Shapiro and O'Neil rank among the best quartermen in the entire southland. Shaprio's 47.6 took first in the Sugar Bowl last December at New Orleans, and O'Neil ran a 46.7 for the Tigers to set a 440-yard record last year at the LSU Invitational. Shapiro's time in the Sugar Bowl is the best credited to any Louisiana Collegian this season.

Dave Styron, who is now completing requirements for a teaching certificate at Northeast, ran the 60-yard dash in 6 seconds flat at Lubbock, Tex., in 1962 to equal the world record. In his last Southwestern Relays appearance two years ago he won the 100 — yard dash in 9.5 and also ran legs on Northeast State's three first place relay teams — 400 yards, 880 yards, and mile.

On the same day brother Don broke the meet record in the 120-yard high hurdles. He was clocked at 13.8 seeconds, bettering the 13.9 standard which he had established in 1961.

The fabulous twins were co-winners of the Gulf States Conference "most outstanding athlete" award in both 1959 and 1960.

This 440-meter chase will now be spotlighted with the pole vault, which features world recordholder John Pennel and a field of our 16-foot plus vaulters, the 400 meter hurdles, headed by Louisiana State's Billy Hardin who ran a superb 50.8 Friday night to win his event at the Texas Relays; and open two-mile run.

Two Umpire Meetings Set

The Monroe Recreation Department will hold two meetings Tuesday night for anyone interested in umpiring in summer baseball and softball programs. Those interested in umpiring softball will meet at 7:00 and those interested in umpiring baseball will meet at 8:00.

The meetings will be at the Benoit Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive. All people planning to umpire must attend these meetings as plans for the season, rules and uniforms will be discussed.

Archers Will Meet Monday To See Film

A training film, "The Art of Archery," will be shown at the meeting of the Tupawek Bowmen's Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the First National Bank in West Monroe.

Other business for the meeting will be discussion of the state tournament to be held at the Tupawek range in June.

Arcadia Hornets Nip Bossier 9

ARCADIA (Special) — The Arcadia Hornets edged the Bossier sophomores, 7-6, in a baseball game here Saturday afternoon.

Richard Hood was the winning pitcher and now has a 4-1 season record. He gave up six hits and struck out nine.

Ricky Poulon was top Hornet hitter with a single and double for four triples to the plate.

POWELL GETS 3RD WIN

Lions, Bulldogs Split Conference Twinbill

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Southeastern Louisiana split a Gulf States Conference twin bill here Saturday afternoon with the Lions winning the first tilt, 1-0, on an unearned run and the Bulldogs copping the second, 3-1.

Tech ace George Woodson and SLC's Curt Chaisson hooked up in a mound duel of three-hitters in the opener but the Lions got a run in the first inning. Jim Reynolds doubled and Ron Oubre singled in the frame. Reynolds scored on a passed ball.

It was Chaisson's fifth win against one loss and Woodson's first loss in five decision. Chaisson walked one and struck out five while Woodson walked two intentionally and struck out three.

Sophomore southpaw Mike Powell earned Tech a split with a nifty six-hitter in the second game. It was his third victory of the season without a loss.

Wildness cost Henry Winters the loss. He walked four men and allowed an infield single as Tech bunched all three runs in the second inning. The Bulldogs got only three hits as Eldon Remondet permitted only more two hits in a four and one third innings relief role.

Tech travels to Natchitoches Monday to meet Northwestern, while SLC plays host to league leading Northeast State in Hammond.

The Bulldogs had a number of chances to win the opener. Paul Labenne trippled with one out in the bottom of the second, but died there. Later Jon Pat Stevenson had a ground rule double. He couldn't score either. Woodson also came up with a long blast to left field with a man on base, but Southeastern's Reynolds made a fine one-handed stab near the fence to rob the Techmen of at least one sure run.

WARRIORS BACK IN

Playoffs Continue For NBA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs will be resumed today at St. Louis and Cincinnati with the San Francisco Warriors back in the picture and the Boston Celtics attempting to make it a rout.

After viewing films of their opening game loss-a so-called horror film — the Warriors bounced back Friday night with a 120-85 victory over the St. Louis Hawks which tie the best-of-7 game series at 1-1.

The defending champion Boston Celtics are 2-0 over the Cincinnati Royals and need only two more victories to go into the finals.

Coach Alex Hannum sat his Warriors in a club house studio and made them watch in agony the first game in which they blew two 20-point leads in losing to St. Louis 116-111.

Chagrined at the exhibition, the San Francisco team went out and crushed the Hawks in the second game at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 28 points and Guy Rodgers 21 for the Warriors.

"Rodgers was terrific coming up with loose balls and triggering the fast break," Hannum said. The coach also praised his team's defense.

The Celtics are bubbling with confidence in their one-sided series with the Royals after their fastest playoff start in six years.

Frank Ramsey, the Celtics' co-captain, said a four-game sweep is impossible, but he added the odds were 1,000 to 1 against Boston losing the series.

No team has ever come back from a 0-2 deficit to win a seven-game playoff.

Feature of Boston's success so far has been the work of K. C. Jones, who has held Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati's most valuable player, to 15 field goals in the first two games.

Exhibition Baseball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Lynch, Pittsburgh's pinch-hitting specialist, took advantage of a starting role, clubbed two homers, a double and a single, drove in four runs and scored four himself as the Pirates crushed Detroit 14-6 in an exhibition baseball game Saturday.

Lynch's 4-for-4 performance led a 20-hit Pittsburgh attack that also included a two-run homer by rookie Gene Alley. Don Demeter hit a homer for the Tigers.

Besides Alley, two other rookies played key roles—Minnesota outfielder Tony Oliva and Joeff Long of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Oliva smashed three doubles while Harmon Killebrew drove in three runs in the Twins' 7-4 victory over Kansas City. Ed Charles kept the A's in the game with a homer and two doubles.

Long collected three hits in a 15-hit Cardinal attack that overwhelmed the New York Mets 10-1. Charley James hit a three-run homer for St. Louis and Curt Simmons pitched five-hit ball for six innings.

Four other games turned into long struggles with the New York Yankees edging one half of the Chicago White Sox' split squad 9-8, Cincinnati defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6, Philadelphia beating Houston 9-6 and Boston outlasting the Chicago Cubs 9-7 in 14 innings.

Rookie Archie Moore stroked a two-run single that capped a five-run ninth inning uprising and won for the Yankees. Clete Boyer homered for New York.

Pete Rose's run-producing single in the ninth inning gave the Reds their victory over the Dodgers and ended a homer battle. Vada Pinson and Gordy Coleman connected for Cincinnati while Jim Gilliam, Willie Davis and Tommy Davis homered for Los Angeles.

John Herrnstein's two-run homer highlighted an eight-run second inning that gave the Phillies more than enough to withstand the Colts. Dick Farrell absorbed the second inning punishment.

The Red Sox won in the 14th when winning pitcher Arnold Earley singled across one of two runs in the inning. Paul Toth, the last of four Cub pitchers, set the stage for the loss with a throwing error.

In night games, Milwaukee met Washington, and the other half of the Chicago White Sox' split squad played Baltimore. The Los Angeles Angels-Cleveland game was rained out.

San Francisco whipped Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League 9-7 on homers by Willie Mays and Tom Haller.

FEDERAL TALKS

Boxing May Get Deep Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talks now under way between the Justice Department and investigating senators may have an important bearing on the fate of a bill for federal regulation of professional boxing.

While the principle of federal regulation has wide support, the measure is a sort of orphan now. The trouble is that the Justice Department and various other agencies are all reluctant to accept the proposed policing chore.

The pending bill, introduced last year by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, would create the post of national boxing commissioner as an arm of the Justice Department and would give the commissioner broad authority.

The measure lay dormant, and seemingly dead, for months in the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee until the controversial Feb. 25 bout in which Cassius Clay dethroned Sonny Liston as the world heavy weight champion.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D - Mich., promptly revived the bill, and conducted a round of hearings. The testimony exposed secret money deals linking the camps of Clay and Liston.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach confirmed in an interview that he has told Hart that only as a last resort would the Justice Department accept jurisdiction over any regulatory agency.

Katzenbach said the department, as a law enforcement agency, should stay out of the regulatory field.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy disclosed he said much the same thing to Kefauver within a week before the senator's death from a heart attack last August.

A number of legislators on Capitol Hill have expressed similar misgivings privately about asking the Justice Department to police boxing.

The Commerce Department and Federal Trade Commission have been suggested as possible choices, but have indicated their reluctance to tackle a job so foreign to their normal lines of work.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., confirmed a report that subcommittee members have discussed a suggestion that the office of boxing commissioner be created as an independent agency. But that they fear this would add to the difficulties of getting the bill through Congress because it would invite criticism it would create a new bureaucracy.

CONFERENCE ACTION

Indian Clubs In Full Week

The Gulf States Conference champion tennis team makes its season debut, the golf team plays its first match at home, the baseball club plays two GSC doubleheaders and the track team faces its biggest challenge of the year as spring sports hit peak activity at Northeast State this week.

The Indian baseball team begins the week with a doubleheader against defending GSC champ Southeastern in Hammond, Saturday the Indians will be at home against Northwestern in a pair.

Tuesday the tennis team meets its major antagonist of last season, Northwestern, at Natchitoches. The match will be Northeast's first while Northwestern opened its campaign a couple of weeks ago.

Last season Northwestern was the only team to defeat Northeast, winning two dual matches, and was a close second to the Indians in the conference tournament. Although the Demos have lost their top player, Lloyd Wallace, they are still considered one of the GSC's best teams.

Northeast has the nucleus of last year's championship team back in action — Margo Alvarez, the league singles champion; Richard Campbell, member of the champion doubles team; and Bob Statham, who won eight of 12 matches at No. 5.

Other netters on the team are Bob Owen, an excellent player who is just now recovering from a sprained ankle suffered in basketball season; 1962 letterman Buddy Embanato; 1963 squadman Mike Boykin; and newcomer Dickie Hebert.

Northeast's golfers, after two dual matches and two tournaments on the road, will meet Centenary Wednesday at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Friday both the golf and tennis teams will be in action again, the linksmen meeting Southeastern at Bayou DeSiard and the tennis team taking on Louisiana Tech here on the Forsythe Park courts.

Saturday afternoon, while the baseball team plays Northwestern here, the Tribe trackmen face a strong field in the giant Southwestern Relays at Lafayette. Fifteen teams are expected to be represented at the meet with Houston and Louisiana State rated the major threats to Northeast for the team championship.

Cleveland Hires Hemus At 3rd; Former Redbird

Tucson, Airz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians Saturday hired Solly Hemus, 40, former St. Louis Cardinals manager, to coach third base.

The regular Cleveland third base coach, George Strickland, is managing the American League club until Birdie Tebbetts recovers from a heart attack.

Tebbetts suffered a heart attack Wednesday night, and Strickland had been acting as manager since then.

In announcing the appointment, Gabe Paul, the Tribe's general manager and president, said Hemus is being hired only until Tebbetts returns to work. Doctors say Tebbetts will need at least two months to recover, and he is not expected to be back this season.

Hemus was an infielder with the Cardinals and the Philadelphia Phillies before managing the Cards. St. Louis finished and third the next year.

Minden Scholar Inks Cage Pact With Northeast

Thomas Edward (Buster) Toms, a Minden High School student who makes A's in the classroom and on the basketball court, has signed a letter of intent with Northeast State.

Northeast Coach Lenny Fant announced the signing of the cage ace Saturday and called him "one of the best college prospects I've seen this year."

Toms, who has compiled an A average in high school, will major in health and physical education at Northeast.

He made the all-district team and was named to the class AA all-state third team. He led Minden to the district championship, made 74.8 per cent of his free throw attempts and averaged 7.3 rebounds and 15.5 pounds. He is also a baseball standout and made the all-district team in that sport.

The newest Northeast recruit stands 6-3 and weighs 170 pounds. He is 17 years old.

Buster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom E. Toms of Minden and a second cousin of a former Northeast cage great, Stuart Toms, an all-Gulf States Conference choice and the league scoring champion in conference play in 1963.

Exhibition Baseball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Lynch, Pittsburgh's pinch-hitting specialist, took advantage of a starting role, clubbed two homers, a double and a single, drove in four runs and scored four himself as the Pirates crushed Detroit 14-6 in an exhibition baseball game Saturday.

Lynch's 4-for-4 performance led a 20-hit Pittsburgh attack that also included a two-run homer by rookie Gene Alley. Don Demeter hit a homer for the Tigers.

Besides Alley, two other rookies played key roles—Minnesota outfielder Tony Oliva and Joeff Long of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Oliva smashed three doubles while Harmon Killebrew drove in three runs in the Twins' 7-4 victory over Kansas City. Ed Charles kept the A's in the game with a homer and two doubles.

Long collected three hits in a 15-hit Cardinal attack that overwhelmed the New York Mets 10-1. Charley James hit a three-run homer for St. Louis and Curt Simmons pitched five-hit ball for six innings.

St. Pete Lead Taken By Faulk; Rawls Slips Off

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Mary Lena Faulk pulled four strokes ahead of the field Saturday and put herself in a commanding position to win the $10,000 St. Petersburg Women's Open Golf Tournament.

She fired a one-under-par 70, the day's best score, and jumped from third place with a total of 215.

Second-round leader Betsy Rawls, who won in 1958, fell off to a 76 for a three-round total of 219 and a tie with Kathy Cornelius, who shot a 71.

Miss Faulk, who holds the course record of 275, carded three birdies and two bogeys around the 5,237-yard Sunset course, which is par-71. She won the tournament in 1957.

Clifford Ann Creed fourth with 220. The veteran Patty Berg, a former winner also, blew up to 77 for 221 and a tie with Sandra Haynie.

Cleveland Hires Hemus At 3rd; Former Redbird

Tucson, Airz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians Saturday hired Solly Hemus, 40, former St. Louis Cardinals manager, to coach third base.

The regular Cleveland third base coach, George Strickland, is managing the American League club until Birdie Tebbetts recovers from a heart attack.

Tebbetts suffered a heart attack Wednesday night, and Strickland had been acting as manager since then.

In announcing the appointment, Gabe Paul, the Tribe's general manager and president, said Hemus is being hired only until Tebbetts returns to work. Doctors say Tebbetts will need at least two months to recover, and he is not expected to be back this season.

Hemus was an infielder with the Cardinals and the Philadelphia Phillies before managing the Cards. St. Louis finished and third the next year.

Minden Scholar Inks Cage Pact With Northeast

Thomas Edward (Buster) Toms, a Minden High School student who makes A's in the classroom and on the basketball court, has signed a letter of intent with Northeast State.

Northeast Coach Lenny Fant announced the signing of the cage ace Saturday and called him "one of the best college prospects I've seen this year."

Toms, who has compiled an A average in high school, will major in health and physical education at Northeast.

He made the all-district team and was named to the class AA all-state third team. He led Minden to the district championship, made 74.8 per cent of his free throw attempts and averaged 7.3 rebounds and 15.5 pounds. He is also a baseball standout and made the all-district team in that sport.

The newest Northeast recruit stands 6-3 and weighs 170 pounds. He is 17 years old.

Buster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom E. Toms of Minden and a second cousin of a former Northeast cage great, Stuart Toms, an all-Gulf States Conference choice and the league scoring champion in conference play in 1963.

Abel Exchange Told In Tension

Strangers On A Bridge. The Case of Colonel Abel. By James B. Donovan. Atheneum. $6.95.

There are two main themes in Donovan's engrossing book.

One is the story of the long legal battle, before, during and after Rudolf Abel's trial as a Soviet spy. The other is a highly graphic account of the tricky negotiations which Donovan conducted behind the Berlin Wall to bring about the exchange of Abel for Francis Gary Powers, the U-2 pilot, and another American.

The author makes it unmistakably clear that he, as the Bar Association's choice to provide Abel the professional defense specified by law, always performed with absolute correctness. He was concerned not with Abel's guilt, which he assumed the government would prove, but with the preservation of the constitutional rights of any defendant to the due process of law.

Donovan tells his story in the framework of a diary, and this makes for a fine tension, even though we know the outcome. It is interesting to watch how Donovan's contacts with the defendant gradually built a personal portrait of the spy as a man.

There also is a passage in which Donovan relates how a piece of microfilm —which would have made a strong piece of evidence in the trial — was found in Abel's effects long after he had started serving his sentence. The original searchers had overlooked it.

The last 5 pages are worth the whole price of the book. Donovan's negotiations in East Germany, primarily with a Soviet official named Schischkin, are like something straight from a spy thriller. The author is an excellent narrator and limner of character, and few writers of fiction could match his real life account.

This is the same Donovan who more recently negotiated the release from Cuba of many Americans and anti-Castro Cubans.

His story about the Abel case deserves a wide audience.

PARIS (AP)—The first direct relay of a television program from Japan to Europe via Telstar will take place April 16, the French Post and Telecommunications Ministry announced.

This Pilot Is Stuck In Wide Orbit

MAROONED. By Martin Caidin. Dutton. $4.95.

An astronaut is stuck in orbit, and will die as his oxygen supply runs out. As the Americans race to put a rescue craft into space, they find a Russian vehicle already orbiting.

That is the gist of the hair-curling story Caidin tells. It is fiction with all the realistic urgency of the broadcast format, "We interrupt this program to bring you. . . ."

The author has created a situation in which the Mercury program has been extended for one more flight, and the fifth American to go into orbit is an Air Force test pilot, Maj. Richard J. Pruett.

Pruett and his Mercury Seven complete their mission in fine fashion. Then comes the time for the retrorockets to fire, slowing the capsule so that it descends to earth. The rockets fail to fire. This means Pruett will continue to orbit at 300 miles a minute until the gradual pull of gravity brings him down. By that time his oxygen will be gone. He has a scant two days to live.

Technicians, working frantically, pull a Gemini (two-man) capsule out of a test installation and gamble on sending it up with Jim Dougherty, Pruett's friend and back-up pilot, aboard.

Meanwhile their instruments pick up the trail of the huge Russian capsule, which proves to be Vostok IX, manned by cosmonaut Andrie Yakovlev. Having been launched from the other side of the world, the cosmonaut has the tricky task of maneuvering the Vostok into the same orbit pattern as the Mercury Seven.

There is a dazzling display of technical information in this story; in fact there are times when the scientific details threaten to get in the way of the suspense-filled narrative. But the technical data also have the effect of making the drama more vivid.

Subjects In Book Varied

Dancers On The Shore. By William Melvin Kelley, Doubleday $3.95.

Kelley has had one novel published, and it proved to be a highly imaginative creation. Here he presents 16 short stories which demonstrate his skill in delineating a wide range of characters in moments of stress.

The first three stories are careful, penetrating explorations into the fears and anxieties of childhood, only to be followed by a vignette of two aged men getting on each other's nerves.

Several tales deal with members of the Charles Dunford family — the two brothers, Chig and Pete, and their sister Connie. We see Chig trapped into an engagement which cannot possibly work out, and Pete helping his sister through a crisis. There also is a story of Charles Dunford's return to his old home, in which old tensions between him and his mother and brother are renewed.

Then we have a look at the Bedlows — Carlyle and his young brother Mance. The latter is an 11-year-old with a precocious knowledge of the world's ways, who is sent to an agency for disturbed children, where Pete Dunford is confronted with the distressing problem of reaching into the youngster's cautious and suspicious mind.

But probably the best is the final story, on Uncle Wallace Bedlow. Titled "Cry For Me," it is a very moving chronicle of a natural born folk singer and the strange things that happen to him when he visits New York.

Kelley has an unusual talent in sensing the emotions that push and pull against the balance of the human equation, and for capturing these emotions in a taut, clean prose.

Stretch Fabric Provides Better Fit, Comfort

Better fit and more comfort in action are advantages promised by the many sportswear and dress fashions on the spring scene.

Shape - retaining stretchability has been imparted to a wide variety of fabrics, in solids and prints. Among them are denim, cotton, knits, sailcloth, twill, seersucker, gabardine and linen. Stretch lace appears for lingerie.

Vertical stretch in stirrup-styled pants remains important, but the newer horizontal stretch vastly increases the versatility of the fabrics.

Still another type is two - way stretch, in all nylon.

One use of stretch, seen again and again in spring sportswear collections, is the combination of boldly printed non - stretch with horizontal or vertical stretch pants.

In the stretch, too, are skimmer dresses, skirts, shirts, knit tops, culottes, jackets, pullovers shorts.

FOR DRAMA

Stretch Fabric Provides Better Fit, Comfort

Better fit and more comfort in action are advantages promised by the many sportswear and dress fashions on the spring scene.

Shape - retaining stretchability has been imparted to a wide variety of fabrics, in solids and prints. Among them are denim, cotton, knits, sailcloth, twill, seersucker, gabardine and linen. Stretch lace appears for lingerie.

Vertical stretch in stirrup-styled pants remains important, but the newer horizontal stretch vastly increases the versatility of the fabrics.

Still another type is two - way stretch, in all nylon.

One use of stretch, seen again and again in spring sportswear collections, is the combination of boldly printed non - stretch with horizontal or vertical stretch pants.

In the stretch, too, are skimmer dresses, skirts, shirts, knit tops, culottes, jackets, pullovers shorts.

FOR DRAMA

Dramatic look for spring is the dress with cowl collar. One such dress, s slim shift in white, adds still more drama because the collar converts to a hood.

Use Ingenuity For Different Party Themes

A little ingenuity is all that is needed to think up something different that suits your crowd or a current situation, when planning a party. Like a "Have you been to" potluck. Ask each guest or couple to bring a food typical of the foreign country they enjoyed most or would most like to visit.

You'll have an around-the-world smorgasbord. Exchange recipes too. You might suggest that guests bring recordings from their favorite countries for an international evening of music. Use travel posters or large foreign souvenirs to set the stage.

If your crowd likes to dress up, there are dozens of ideas you can work out. Come as a book title — Lawrence of Arabia, My Cousin Rachel, The Dollmaker, or how about Oliver Twist (wear an Oliver name tag and do the twist). Or come as a Broadway hit — South Pacific, My Fair Lady, A Man for All Seasons (wear salt and pepper shakers, steak sauce and paprika containers, spices and bunches of parsley. Of course, the guests should try to decide who represents what. The albums from musicals could provide a pleasant background.

Here's a new twist on the old American custom of quilting bees and barn raisings, where a group pools its skills and muscles to help a friend. Today's idea is a waxing bee for a new neighbor or a new bride, to get the house in order. Works fine as a house-warming too.

When you're having a mixed group and good conversation is the object of the party, use the guests as ingredients for a lively evening. The more varied their interests and talents the better they will entertain each other.

The party won't get off the ground if the hostess is constantly harassed with things to be done after guests arrive. Plan food that can be completely prepared in advance and serve buffet style. Some groups enjoy food they can help prepare, such as hamburgers, waffles, do-it-yourself Dagwood sandwiches.

Invite enough people to fill the entertaining area comfortable, but not so many that they feel like sardines. If it's a mixer-type party and things are going well, don't halt activities to introduce late arrivals.

Colonial Dames Of 17th Century To Advertise Louisiana At Conference

Louisiana will be well represented at the National Conference of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century to be held April 15 through April 17 in Washington D.C. at the Mayflower Hotel.

Of the four major attractions, a tea ,two luncheons and a banquet, the State of Louisiana has been asked to be responsible for the tea at which delegates from every state in the Union will be present.

Mrs. E. L. Gladney Jr. of Bastrop, state president of the society has asked Mrs. C. O. Cook of Shreveport to serve as chairman of the tea which will be the first day of the conference from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Mrs. Lucille Turpin of Monroe, will also be among state delegates attending the conference.

The Louisiana group plans to take advantage of the occasion to advertise and enlighten those present by using the theme "Lovely Louisiana." To achieve this plans have been made to have a garden setting for the tea with the background carried out in native Louisiana greenery, live oak trees draped with moss, magnolia trees studded with buds and white wrought iron patio furniture completing the picture.

Small tables placed throughout the room will display Louisiana's industries and products. In the center and rear of the room will be a patriotic display with the Colonial Dames flag, the Louisiana State flag, a pelican and an arrangement of magnolia blossoms. Other displays will feature oil with miniature derricks and a pumping oil well and as a background a painting showing off-shore drilling.

Other tables will display a model shrimp boat with a painting of the "blessing of the shrimp fleet"; a doll depicting Louisiana's colonial heroine, Evangeline, dressed by Mrs. R. A. Stafford of Baton Rouge; with a drawing and brochure of Longfellow's beloved Evangeline by Mrs. Drew N. Hays of Ruston; Louisiana forestry depicting the Cypress trees and around the room will be displayed the mantles, colorful and festive of the Mardi Gras, peach and Cotton Queens.

Other paintings done by Mrs. Hays which will be on display are Belle Hellene, Oak Alley, Afton Villa, Steamboat Gothic, Oaklawn Manor, Oakland, African House and Melrose Plantation. Each of these mansions has its own story linked closely to the history of the state.

Souvenirs of Louisiana products will be presented each guest in the old Louisiana custom, "Lagniappe." Lagniappe bags will hold miniature packages of rice, sugar, salt, syrup, Crayfish Bisque, hot sauce, paper note pads, sulphur paperweights and other products made possible through the generosity of Louisiana merchants.

Fresh Louisiana native iris in blue and gold from Hodges Gardens will form the centerpiece of the tea table, at either end antique silver tea services will further carry out the heritage of the state. Sugar cubes in blue with the letters LA embossed in gold will feature the colors of the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century. Guests will be served the famous Louisiana black coffee, shrimp, bite sized sweet potato pies and strawberries furnished by Louisiana merchants. Mrs. M. R. Veal, an accomplished pianist of Shreveport, will render selections of Louisiana classical folk music interspersed with selections by a harpist. Corsages of rice, sugar and cotton will be used. The Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century is a patriotic organization which aids in the preservation of the records and of the historical shrines of our country.

Members of the Louisiana Society plan to attend the Conference and invitations have been extended to the wives of Louisiana Senators and Congressmen as well as the wife of the President, Mrs. Lyndon Bains Johnson.

Furry Little Furs Set New Fashion Trend

Nice, well-bred minks have been the fashion fur ideal for so long that a fox could hardly get in the picture even at the basement level.

But perhaps it's a sign of the new trend to feminism in clothes that furry little kit foxes are suddenly all over the place. Taller women are wearing them as full coats, but the petite gals aren't to be outdone, so snap them up in scarves, hats, brief jackets and even stoles.

Fur stylists say that kit fox looks good for spring. It's light, soft and romantic, and its white to deep beige coloring has a spring look, especially with white and beige suits.

First Lady Campaigns On 'Low Calorie' Ticket

NEW YORK — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson counts calories in the White House as strictly as millions of other American women do in their own homes.

A two-pound gain is the signal for the First Lady to launch a luncheon campaign consisting of boiled eggs and consomme, states the current issue of a leading magazine.

Mrs. Johnson, who weighs herself every day, also keeps the calorie tabs for the President and the other members of her family.

When President Johnson had to go on a diet after suffering a heart attack in 1955, Mrs. Johnson "took the lead in making him stick to it while agreeing to his decree that she, too, must diet until she reached size ten, and then remain there." Mrs. Johnson's dress size was "fourteen or more" at the time. Today's she's a size ten, said the article.

For her family, she memorized the calorie count of just about everything. She learned where to buy unsalted popcorn and nuts. She keeps stocked up on dietetic soft drinks and desserts.

The Johnsons keep an extra close watch on the calorie chart after they attend ceremonial dinners. They diet "strenuously" for the next several meals, states the article.

Mrs. Johnson also likes to have the President select and buy clothes for her. She harbors no ambitions as a style-setter herself, but approves of the President's taste. He favors beige, yellow, coral and other warm tones, but rarely buys black.

As for the President's reputation as a "fancy dresser," Mrs. Johnson says, "Lyndon is a bit too materialistic about clothes."

What Mrs. Johnson likes best, says the article "is to be described as 'petite.' She insists, 'Lyndon deserves the credit, because it surely did not come naturally.' "

DOUBLE BEAUTY

A favorite spot for a colorful floral arrangement is a console table. The Society of American Florists says that, with a mirror behind the arrangement the over-all appearance of the flowers and their reflection gives you "double your money's worth" of beauty.

Goldwater Has Fashion Touch

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Jacqueline Kennedy may have lent fashion glamour to the Kennedy era, but Senator Barry Goldwater is the first fashion business possible Presidential candidate.

The Senator is still board chairman of Goldwater's, Arizona's important fashion store, founded by his family. He is said to keep up with the fashion market in a general way, is known to clip pictures from fashion magazines and send them to Goldwater buyers with instructions to "get this for Peggy."

Peggy is his wife, a relaxed, humorous, hospitable lady with as much fashion interest as her husband. She often buys for him as he does for her. She is known to have clothes currently from Larry Aldrich and Helen Rose — and a wig!

Colonial Dames Of 17th Century To Advertise Louisiana At Conference

Louisiana will be well represented at the National Conference of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century to be held April 15 through April 17 in Washington D.C. at the Mayflower Hotel.

Of the four major attractions, a tea ,two luncheons and a banquet, the State of Louisiana has been asked to be responsible for the tea at which delegates from every state in the Union will be present.

Mrs. E. L. Gladney Jr. of Bastrop, state president of the society has asked Mrs. C. O. Cook of Shreveport to serve as chairman of the tea which will be the first day of the conference from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Mrs. Lucille Turpin of Monroe, will also be among state delegates attending the conference.

The Louisiana group plans to take advantage of the occasion to advertise and enlighten those present by using the theme "Lovely Louisiana." To achieve this plans have been made to have a garden setting for the tea with the background carried out in native Louisiana greenery, live oak trees draped with moss, magnolia trees studded with buds and white wrought iron patio furniture completing the picture.

Small tables placed throughout the room will display Louisiana's industries and products. In the center and rear of the room will be a patriotic display with the Colonial Dames flag, the Louisiana State flag, a pelican and an arrangement of magnolia blossoms. Other displays will feature oil with miniature derricks and a pumping oil well and as a background a painting showing off-shore drilling,

Other tables will display a model shrimp boat with a painting of the "blessing of the shrimp fleet"; a doll depicting Louisiana's colonial heroine, Evangeline, dressed by Mrs. R. A. Stafford of Baton Rouge; with a drawing and brochure of Longfellow's beloved Evangeline by Mrs. Drew N. Hays of Ruston; Louisiana forestry depicting the Cypress trees and around the room will be displayed the mantles, colorful and festive of the Mardi Gras, peach and Cotton Queens.

Other paintings done by Mrs. Hays which will be on display are Belle Hellene, Oak Alley, Afton Villa, Steamboat Gothic, Oaklawn Manor, Oakland, African House and Melrose Plantation. Each of these mansions has its own story linked closely to the history of the state.

Souvenirs of Louisiana products will be presented each guest in the old Louisiana custom, "Lagniappe." Lagniappe bags will hold miniature packages of rice, sugar, salt, syrup, Crayfish Bisque, hot sauce, paper note pads, sulphur paperweights and other products made possible through the generosity of Louisiana merchants.

Fresh Louisiana native iris in blue and gold from Hodges Gardens will form the centerpiece of the tea table, at either end antique silver tea services will further carry out the heritage of the state. Sugar cubes in blue with the letters LA embossed in gold will feature the colors of the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century. Guests will be served the famous Louisiana black coffee, shrimp, bite sized sweet potato pies and strawberries furnished by Louisiana merchants. Mrs. M. R. Veal, an accomplished pianist of Shreveport, will render selections of Louisiana classical folk music interspersed with selections by a harpist. Corsages of rice, sugar and cotton will be used. The Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century is a patriotic organization which aids in the preservation of the records and of the historical shrines of our country.

Members of the Louisiana Society plan to attend the Conference and invitations have been extended to the wives of Louisiana Senators and Congressmen as well as the wife of the President, Mrs. Lyndon Bains Johnson.

Furry Little Furs Set New Fashion Trend

Nice, well-bred minks have been the fashion fur ideal for so long that a fox could hardly get in the picture even at the basement level.

But perhaps it's a sign of the new trend to feminism in clothes that furry little kit foxes are suddenly all over the place. Taller women are wearing them as full coats, but the petite gals aren't to be outdone, so snap them up in scarves, hats, brief jackets and even stoles.

Fur stylists say that kit fox looks good for spring. It's light, soft and romantic, and its white to deep beige coloring has a spring look, especially with white and beige suits.

First Lady Campaigns On 'Low Calorie' Ticket

NEW YORK — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson counts calories in the White House as strictly as millions of other American women do in their own homes.

A two-pound gain is the signal for the First Lady to launch a luncheon campaign consisting of boiled eggs and consomme, states the current issue of a leading magazine.

Mrs. Johnson, who weighs herself every day, also keeps the calorie tabs for the President and the other members of her family.

When President Johnson had to go on a diet after suffering a heart attack in 1955, Mrs. Johnson "took the lead in making him stick to it while agreeing to his decree that she, too, must diet until she reached size ten, and then remain there." Mrs. Johnson's dress size was "fourteen or more" at the time. Today's she's a size ten, said the article.

For her family, she memorized the calorie count of just about everything. She learned where to buy unsalted popcorn and nuts. She keeps stocked up on dietetic soft drinks and desserts.

The Johnsons keep an extra close watch on the calorie chart after they attend ceremonial dinners. They diet "strenuously" for the next several meals, states the article.

Mrs. Johnson also likes to have the President select and buy clothes for her. She harbors no ambitions as a style-setter herself, but approves of the President's taste. He favors beige, yellow, coral and other warm tones, but rarely buys black.

As for the President's reputation as a "fancy dresser," Mrs. Johnson says, "Lyndon is a bit too materialistic about clothes."

What Mrs. Johnson likes best, says the article "is to be described as 'petite.' She insists, 'Lyndon deserves the credit, because it surely did not come naturally.'"

DOUBLE BEAUTY

A favorite spot for a colorful floral arrangement is a console table. The Society of American Florists says that, with a mirror behind the arrangement the over-all appearance of the flowers and their reflection gives you "double your money's worth" of beauty.

Ju Dian Lee Is Bride Of Mr. Guimbellot

Goldwater Has Fashion Touch

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Jacqueline Kennedy may have lent fashion glamour to the Kennedy era, but Senator Barry Goldwater is the first fashion business possible Presidential candidate.

The Senator is still board chairman of Goldwater's, Arizona's important fashion store, founded by his family. He is said to keep up with the fashion market in a general way, is known to clip pictures from fashion magazines and send them to Goldwater buyers with instructions to "get this for Peggy."

Peggy is his wife, a relaxed, humorous, hospitable lady with as much fashion interest as her husband. She often buys for him as he does for her. She is known to have clothes currently from Larry Aldrich and Helen Rose — and a wig!

At the risk of being repetitious, we must say again that Spring brings new delights each day. This has been the week of dogwood and wisteria, and surely both have been lovelier than ever. And now azalea blossoms are approaching their peak—best we get out and enjoy all this glory before gardens are cooked in summer's oven.

Among the out of town visitors here at this, our nicest time of year, has been GUSSIE WILLIS, guest in the home of her daughter CHARLOTTIE DENT, BILL, and sons BUDDY and MARK. Gussie was in town for two weeks, over Easter, and left Thursday for home in Headland, Alabama.

Charlottie was hostess at luncheon in her home last Friday, inviting a dozen ladies who had entertained her mother. Spring flowers in a cut glass bowl centered the dining room table, where eight were seated, while a smaller arrangement was used on another table for four. The menu included chicken Mornay, glazed carrots, and cranberry salad. For dessert, blonde brownies and miniature pecan pies were passed with coffee.

On Monday, VIRGINIA WARNER invited Gussie and a few friends for lunch and bridge. Virginia's menu consisted of chicken spaghettie, tomato aspic and floating island for dessert.

Luncheon at home was the compliment planned by MARGE MULLENS for Gussie on Wednesday at noon. Yellow Dutch iris centered the dining room table. The menu served to six guests included shrimp with wild rice, and for dessert a lemon sponge-cake-pudding.

Later that afternoon, VIRGINIA HARGROVE was hostess at her home for dessert and coffee, inviting a small group for a visit with Gussie. An arrangement of spring flowers in all yellow shades was placed near the entrance, while pansies decorated a low table in the living room.

Variegated tulips in reds and yellows centered the dining room table, where CAROLYN SHELTON presided at the coffee service. Guests were offered a choice of German chocolate cake or cracker pie. GAY HARGROVE assisted her mother with serving.

Another out of town guest present for this party was MRS. WILLIAM CLUTHE of Mobile, Alabama, who was here visiting her daughter, BARBARA MOORE. On Thursday, Barbara's father arrived to complete the party. The Cluthes are to return home tomorrow.

Tuesday afternoon Barbara and MARY WEBSTER entertained at a sherry party in the Webster home, honoring Mrs. Cluthe and the hostesses' birthdays. Pink azaleas filled an antique white pitcher which stood on a side table in the den. On the dining room table, a beautiful arrangement of apple blossoms, wisteria, spirea, and pink azaleas in a silver bowl formed the centerpiece. With a choice of sherry or coffee, the hostesses served chicken sandwiches, cheese-wrapped olives, shrimp dip, and lemon squares.

Visitors in the ED HEARD home last weekend were Mildred's brother and his wife, HAROLD and ELEANOR OATMAIL of Colombus, Ohio; and MARY ALICE and OTTAWAY DENNEY of Baton Rouge. On Friday evening, JEAN and DOYLE HAMILTON entertained the group at an informal family supper party.

Saturday at noon, MAYDRON JONES and CHRIS COLLINS were hostesses at luncheon honoring Mary Alice and Eleanor. The party was held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where guests were seated at the table in the bay window of the main dining room. A yellow straw hat filled with white tulips and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table, which was covered with a white cloth and appointed with green glasses. Ten ladies enjoyed a luncheon of Polynesian chicken with Balinesian rice, salad of marinated artichoke hearts, and strawberry shortcake for dessert.

Speaking of Jean Hamilton, as we were above, she celebrated a gala birthday all last weekend. On Friday at noon, a dozen friends surprised her with luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. An Easter arrangement decorated the table. On Saturday night, it was a couple's dinner party at the Paragon. Making up the party with Doyle and Jean were the JESSE MCDONALDS WAYNE WOODS, JIMMY RIVERS, and BOB LEWISES.

This coming Saturday night is the date of the BIG TIMERS" Dance club spring formal. The party is to be held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where the festivities get underway with a social hour at 7:30. Dancing will begin at nine, to music by Joe Reichman, his orchestra, and twin pianos. The JACK MABRAYS and GRAYSON GUTHRIES are chairmen of the hosts for the evening.

And speaking of things-to-come, a full week of special events is planned at Louisiana Tech later this month in commemoration of the birth of William Shakespeare April 23, 1564. This four hundredth anniversary is being celebrated throughout the English-speaking world.

Tech's program, entitled "Festival of the Arts", is to include daily events. Scheduled are the Sigma Tau Delta banquet and awards program; a Shakespearian motion picture; an evening of Renaissance music by the Tech Choir and Madrigal Singers; an opera; a presentation of "Twelfth Night" Saturday evening; and a concert by the Ruston Civic Symphony orchestra. We will give more details later on times and speakers for these events.

In any discussion of Shakespeare, the question of identity is quite beside the point. It matters not whether "Shakespeare" was his own or a pen name, the glory is that ANY man could produce such a mountain of masterpieces. After four hundred years, his sonnets are unrivaled, his poetry soars, his plays are the actor's ultimate goal and challenge.

So this month let us, too, observe Shakespeare's four hundreth anniversary and read some of his poetry. In this, the eighteenth sonnet, he makes a reference to the length of time he expects his poetry to be remembered:

Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?
Thou art more lovely and more temperate:
Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And summer's lease hath all too short a date;
Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
And often is his gold complexion dimmed;
And every fair from fair sometime declines,
By chance or nature's changing course untrimmed:
But thy eternal summer shall not fade
Nor lose possession of that fair thou ow'st:
Nor shall Death brag thou wand'rest in his shade,
When in eternal lines to time thou grow'st:
So long as men can breathe or eyes can see,
So long lives this and this gives life to thee.

New American Fabrics Used In High Style

High fashion designers often use nothing but European fabrics, claiming that they can't find enough American fabrics with quality, originality and exclusivity.

A new designer, Tzaims Luksus (pronounced James Looksus), is proving that it can be done here. His wools and chiffons have been used by Sarmi, Norell, Trigere, Tassell and Galanos among others.

Luksus fabrics cost $20 a yard and more, because he experiments to find his unusual results, such as chiffons dyed like tie silks, used by Sarmi. His wools look heavy and hand-loomed, are actually very light.

Such a designer is one big reason why designer clothes are expensive, and worth their money.

Shift Silhouette On Way Out Of Fashion Picture

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

This summer the shift silhouette will enter the last spiral of its fashion cycle. By fall, there may well be only a few lurking about — on the loungewear racks!

Loungewear is one of the spots in fashion to watch, not for the new as often as for the old, what's almost out, not what's just coming in.

Loungewear is the end of the fashion spiral that begins with Paris and a few top designers in this country, moves on to the next lower level of expensive clothes, down to succeeding price levels, until at last it hits loungewear.

The top role for loungewear this summer will be played by shifts, at the same time as the star part in Paris, way at the beginning of the spiral, will be played by fitted, feminine and ruffled clothes. When the end of the spiral features one silhouette that silhouette is finished for the beginning.

It is this downward spiral of fashion which confuses so many women today. Paris is highly publicized, and women vaguely expect they will see Paris when next they go into the stores. Instead, they are likely to see — and buy — what Paris started several years ago. It takes a long while for a trend to permeate thoroughly through designers, fabrics makers, store buyers, especially as each price level is a world and a law unto itself.

Only the very expensive clothes move fast in fashion, and only a part of them, at that. Just a few women, even wealthy ones, are fashion followers who love changing to new styles.

CAPES ARE SUNNY

Capes and cape effects look sunny out in the rain for spring. New raincoats are sometimes shaped completely as capes; others have capelets which detach so that the coat may be reversed to show a contrasting color.

On Monday, VIRGINIA WARNER invited Gussie and a few friends for lunch and bridge. Virginia's menu consisted of chicken spaghettie, tomato aspic and floating island for dessert.

Luncheon at home was the compliment planned by MARGE MULLENS for Gussie on Wednesday at noon. Yellow Dutch iris centered the dining room table. The menu served to six guests included shrimp with wild rice, and for dessert a lemon sponge-cake-pudding.

Later that afternoon, VIRGINIA HARGROVE was hostess at her home for dessert and coffee, inviting a small group for a visit with Gussie. An arrangement of spring flowers in all yellow shades was placed near the entrance, while pansies decorated a low table in the living room.

Variegated tulips in reds and yellows centered the dining room table, where CAROLYN SHELTON presided at the coffee service. Guests were offered a choice of German chocolate cake or cracker pie. GAY HARGROVE assisted her mother with serving.

Another out of town guest present for this party was MRS. WILLIAM CLUTHE of Mobile, Alabama, who was here visiting her daughter, BARBARA MOORE. On Thursday, Barbara's father arrived to complete the party. The Cluthes are to return home tomorrow.

Tuesday afternoon Barbara and MARY WEBSTER entertained at a sherry party in the Webster home, honoring Mrs. Cluthe and the hostesses' birthdays. Pink azaleas filled an antique white pitcher which stood on a side table in the den. On the dining room table, a beautiful arrangement of apple blossoms, wisteria, spirea, and pink azaleas in a silver bowl formed the centerpiece. With a choice of sherry or coffee, the hostesses served chicken sandwiches, cheese-wrapped olives, shrimp dip, and lemon squares.

Visitors in the ED HEARD home last weekend were Mildred's brother and his wife, HAROLD and ELEANOR OATMAIL of Colombus, Ohio; and MARY ALICE and OTTAWAY DENNEY of Baton Rouge. On Friday evening, JEAN and DOYLE HAMILTON entertained the group at an informal family supper party.

Saturday at noon, MAYDRON JONES and CHRIS COLLINS were hostesses at luncheon honoring Mary Alice and Eleanor. The party was held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where guests were seated at the table in the bay window of the main dining room. A yellow straw hat filled with white tulips and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table, which was covered with a white cloth and appointed with green glasses. Ten ladies enjoyed a luncheon of Polynesian chicken with Balinesian rice, salad of marinated artichoke hearts, and strawberry shortcake for dessert.

Speaking of Jean Hamilton, as we were above, she celebrated a gala birthday all last weekend. On Friday at noon, a dozen friends surprised her with luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. An Easter arrangement decorated the table. On Saturday night, it was a couple's dinner party at the Paragon. Making up the party with Doyle and Jean were the JESSE MCDONALDS WAYNE WOODS, JIMMY RIVERS, and BOB LEWISES.

This coming Saturday night is the date of the BIG TIMEPS" Dance club spring formal. The party is to be held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where the festivities get underway with a social hour at 7:30. Dancing will begin at nine, to music by Joe Reichman, his orchestra, and twin pianos. The JACK MABRAYS and GRAYSON GUTHRIES are chairmen of the hosts for the evening.

And speaking of things-to-come, a full week of special events is planned at Louisiana Tech later this month in commemoration of the birth of William Shakespeare April 23, 1564. This four hundredth anniversary is being celebrated throughout the English-speaking world.

Tech's program, entitled "Festival of the Arts", is to include daily events. Scheduled are the Sigma Tau Delta banquet and awards program; a Shakespearian motion picture; an evening of Renaissance music by the Tech Choir and Madrigal Singers; an opera; a presentation of "Twelfth Night" Saturday evening; and a concert by the Ruston Civic Symphony orchestra. We will give more details later on times and speakers for these events.

In any discussion of Shakespeare, the question of identity is quite beside the point. It matters not whether "Shakespeare" was his own or a pen name, the glory is that ANY man could produce such a mountain of masterpieces. After four hundred years, his sonnets are unrivaled, his poetry soars, his plays are the actor's ultimate goal and challenge.

So this month let us, too, observe Shakespeare's four hundreth anniversary and read some of his poetry. In this, the eighteenth sonnet, he makes a reference to the length of time he expects his poetry to be remembered:

Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?
Thou art more lovely and more temperate:
Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And summer's lease hath all too short a date;
Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
And often is his gold complexion dimmed;
And every fair from fair sometime declines,
By chance or nature's changing course untrimmed:
But thy eternal summer shall not fade
Nor lose possession of that fair thou ow'st;
Nor shall Death brag thou wand'rest in his shade,
When in eternal lines to time thou grow'st;
So long as men can breathe or eyes can see,
So long lives this and this gives life to thee.

New American Fabrics Used In High Style

High fashion designers often use nothing but European fabrics, claiming that they can't find enough American fabrics with quality, originality and exclusivity.

A new designer, Tzaims Luksus (pronounced James Looksus), is proving that it can be done here. His wools and chiffons have been used by Sarmi, Norell, Trigere, Tassell and Galanos among others.

Luksus fabrics cost $20 a yard and more, because he experiments to find his unusual results, such as chiffons dyed like tie silks, used by Sarmi. His wools look heavy and hand-loomed, are actually very light.

Such a designer is one big reason why designer clothes are expensive, and worth their money.

Shift Silhouette On Way Out Of Fashion Picture

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

This summer the shift silhouette will enter the last spiral of its fashion cycle. By fall, there may well be only a few lurking about — on the loungewear racks!

Loungewear is one of the spots in fashion to watch, not for the new as often as for the old, what's almost out, not what's just coming in.

Loungewear is the end of the fashion spiral that begins with Paris and a few top designers in this country, moves on to the next lower level of expensive clothes, down to succeeding price levels, until at last it hits loungewear.

The top role for loungewear this summer will be played by shifts, at the same time as the star part in Paris, way at the beginning of the spiral, will be played by fitted, feminine and ruffled clothes. When the end of the spiral features one silhouette that silhouette is finished for the beginning.

It is this downward spiral of fashion which confuses so many women today. Paris is highly publicized, and women vaguely expect they will see Paris when next they go into the stores. Instead, they are likely to see — and buy — what Paris started several years ago. It takes a long while for a trend to permeate thoroughly through designers, fabrics makers, store buyers, especially as each price level is a world and a law unto itself.

Only the very expensive clothes move fast in fashion, and only a part of them, at that. Just a few women, even wealthy ones, are fashion followers who love changing to new styles.

CAPES ARE SUNNY

Capes and cape effects look sunny out in the rain for spring. New raincoats are sometimes shaped completely as capes; others have capelets which detach so that the coat may be reversed to show a contrasting color.

MRS. CHARLES CLAYTON REDDITT

Charles Clayton Redditt Claims Texas Girl Bride

The wedding of Miss Carol June Berry and Charles Clayton Redditt, both of San Antonio, Texas, was solemnized Saturday, March 28, in Thrift Chapel, Trinity Baptist Church in San Antonio. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Berry of Tulia, Texas and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John B. Redditt Sr. of St. Joseph, La.

Palms and greenery flanked the altar of the chapel where the candlelight ceremony was performed at 6 p.m. by Dr. Buckner Fannin. Greenery also entwined the candelabra which formed a background setting.

Mrs. George Wright, organist and Sam Hicks, soloist, presented a program of traditional nuptial music.

Mr. Berry gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta fashioned on princess lines with scoop neckline and brief sleeves enhanced with scalloped reembroidered Alencon lace. The bouffant bell skirt featured appliques of self-fabric and Alencon lace. Unpressed pleats accented by a back bow formed a full chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of Alencon lace, traced with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. J. D. Purgason, Levelland, Texas, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth Redditt, sister of the groom of St. Joseph. They wore identical floor length gowns of deep aqua delustred satin with bouffant bell skirts. Their pillbox hats were covered with aqua net and they wore long white gloves, and carried cascades of pale yellow roses.

Candles were lighted by Miss Susan Redditt, of St. Joseph, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a full-skirted pale pink dress with white lace trim, and a white hat bedecked with pink roses. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white carnations.

Wylie E. Berry of Tulsa, Oklahoma, brother of the bride, attended Mr. Redditt as best man. Walter Maxmillan of San Antonio, served as groomsman. They also acted as ushers. Ring bearer was Darden Purgason of Levelland, Tex., nephew of the bride.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a dress of mauve silk with mauve patent shoes and mauve flower hat. Her gloves and bag were white and she wore a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Redditt, mother of the groom, wore a white linen model with pink and green embroidered floral motif, pink satin slippers and white accessories. Her corsage was also a white orchid.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the garden of LaDauphin Apartments where candles in hurricane lamps formed illumination. Two round tables were covered with white net over taffeta, from which lime punch and the tiered wedding cake decorated with pale yellow roses were served.

Miss Michele Stevens presided at the guest book and those in charge of serving the punch and cake were Miss Charleen Paauch, Miss Barbara Wyres, Mrs. Leslie Taylor and Mrs. Samuel Carroll Brietzke. White camellias floated in a bowl on the guest book table.

For a wedding trip to Lake Travis the bride changed into a pale pink Italian silk suit with bone patent accessories and hat of spring flowers. Her corsage was of orchids. The couple will be at home at 133 Parland Place in San Antonio.

Mrs. Redditt graduated from Texas Technological College and is presently a junior high home economics teacher with the North East Independent School District. Mr. Redditt attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute at Ruston and graduated from St. Mary's University in San Antonio. He is presently an executive trainee with Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Home Decorating Fabrics Convert To Aid Wardrobe

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The not absolutely-new technique in acquiring a chic wardrobe though poor is by cutting up the table linen, stitching up the bedspreads, and draping the draperies.

In ripping away the curtains of Old Tara and stitching up a Rhett-bait costume, that fictional Southern temptress Scarlet O'Hara may have started the whole thing.

More than 100 years later, the National Society for Industrial Designers has now put its stamp of approval on this sort of thing by inviting the couturiers to invade their field.

Big fashion designers persued the luxurious materials by the bolts, took home the bedding and the lace under the family silver, and went to work with their needles and pins.

Recently their inspirations were upholstered onto socialitie celebrities, and their favorite manikins and the girls were sent onto the runways for the approval of the general public, but especially the home furnishings-orientated.

They were a huge success. these opulent, embroidered, brocaded, or silken garments. They were regal, sexy, or slightly on the kookie side, depending on the moods of the makers.

One thing they were not was cheap. One silken creation required at least 10 yards at $86 each to execute, plus the labor costs involved. Another floor-length gown was snipped from a bolt going (but probably not too rapidly) at $100 a yard.

At this rate obviously using home decorating materials in your wardrobe is no bargain.

White Shoes Dazzle For Summer Wear

For summer, white is a primary dazzler. Newly interesting in footwear in a wide range of pebbled and grooved finishes, it also ices the suede, reptile and ostrich textures and frosts spring's favorite patent and kid. White blazing on black is better than ever, making some of the two-toned snakeskins natural beauties. Alone, it carries enough fashion weight to assume a role long reserved for black, that of the single important accent for a costume.

Spring likes the bleached sandy tones too, the popcorns, the chalky tans, the pale pongees. The white raisins, right for the bare-toed, bare-heeled look of summer are seen most often in patent, creamy kid, soft suede. Sun-struck or green-tinted beige shows the direction the new neutrals are taking. Taupes have tapered off. The deepened neutrals are warmer and best exemplified with camel tones. Medium browns are most often washed, ashy, sometimes slightly greyed.

Greens are on the go this season with shades that race from the pure acids to the sun yellowed tones to the cool, elegant aspens and jades.

Blues, with a king sized portion of the fashion excitement this season, range from the softest, most romantic pales through to dramatic lighter-than-navies.

Also consider the angel pinks, the raspberry to cyclamen reptiles, the lilac to violet colorings. And remember red, which means red that has impact, the scarlets, the brisk brights, the flaming fireballs.

New designs in leather are the prettiest idea ever to add a fling to fashion.

Tell Her You Can't Afford Her Appetite

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Call me Tom. I am a high school junior with big ideas and a small allowance. The girl I like best has an appetite like a horse. She can eat two of everything.

We have a real date either on Friday or Saturday night and $3 doesn't last any time at all. During the week when we walk home from school together she always wants to stop some place for a snack. I can't afford it.

I like this girl a lot but she is eating herself out of my life. Please don't tell me to suggest that she should watch her weight because she is skinny and is trying to put on ten pounds.

Would it be all right if I came right out and told her how I feel? Or should I pay up and shut up? — TOM

Dear Tom: Tell that vacuum cleaner with teeth that you can't afford her appetite. A feed-bag date once a week is o.k., but a healthy young girl should be able to make it home from school without stopping on the way for nourishment. If not, suggest she carry two lunches.

Dear Ann Landers: I have an old school chum I have known for over 25 years. Whenever we are with friends she manages to steer the conversation to things I said and did when we were teen-agers — nearly 40 years ago.

Back in those days I had no idea she thought I was so empty-headed and silly. Now it seems every word I said was stupid and everything I did was hilarious. She never misses an opportunity to embarrass me with tales that make me out to have been the village idiot. She's been doing it for about 20 years and I am sick of it.

Through the years this woman has had much trouble and sorrow. My husband and I have been at her side through all her tribulations. I can think of no reason for her to want to humiliate me.

I would like to put an end to it once and for all without losing her friendship. How? — OLD FRIEND OR FOE?

Dear ?: What's the matter with you — no vocal cords? Tell this woman precisely how you feel in language which will leave no room for doubt. If she persists in her routine drop her like a hot coal and don't worry about having lost a friend. Because she wasn't one.

MISS LEETA JOY COFFEY

Joy Coffey To Become May Bride

Mr. Hughes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hughes of Pulaski, Tenn.

Miss Coffey is a sister of Olan L. Coffey, 100 Anita Drive, Monroe.

The Rev. James Pleitz will perform the wedding ceremony on Saturday, May 9 in the First Baptist Church of Pensacola at 7 p.m.

The bride-elect received her bachelor of science degree in home ecomics from Northwestern State College and her master's degree from Louisiana State University. She is associate home demonstration agent in Escambia County, Florida.

Mr. Hughes attended Tennessee schools and colleges and is employed as principal real property appraiser in the Escambia County Assessor's office.

FRESH AS A DAISY

This year spring fashions emphasize the fresh, feminine look. Flattering ruffles trim blouses and shirtwaist dresses. Perky bows soften a neckline. Artist smocks of checked gingham top sleek stretch pants. Classic shifts and A-lines are joined by a "bunny shift" version which falls loosely from a smocked bodice. Spring fabric news includes a new interest in eyelets, organdies and sheer cottons.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The forecast for icicles and freezing winds is usually all it takes to turn a woman's thoughts toward a dry complexion and chapped skin. However, remember that harsh winter weather and drying indoor heating are not the only culprits.

Life and the elements wage an "all-seasons" war of attrition against our complexions. Sun, wind, stress and sudden changes in temperature, like we have in the spring, are some of the other factors we must consider.

Why not be wise and meet this challenge with an all - seasons beauty campaign? Your bathtub might well be your principal battlefield. As helpful as lubrication is, it is only part of the defense against dry skin. Just as a painter first prepares the surface before he begins to paint, so must you cleanse your skin before applying creams or lotions.

The first step is to fill your tub with comfortably warm water. Then lie back and soak under a blanket of soapsuds for five or 10 minutes. The longer the better because you will have more time to relax. This time is important also because it softens the skin and facilitates the removal of dried-out, dead cells, which make the surface rough, and can irritate the new skin because of the friction of clothing.

The next step is to scrub away these discarded cells of the skin as well as the dirt which has been loosened by soaking. Take a tip from the Romans who were bathing experts. They beautified their skins by scraping them with an instrument called a strigil.

That form of scraping may be a bit strenuous for us today, and anyway it is not necessary because of the wonderful soaps we have which make the operation so much more effective.

However, the modern way of scraping with a soapy washcloth or brush is just as essential. Besides washing away the dirt, this smooths and stimulates the skin. Pay special attention to problem areas such as the elbows and heels.

In fact it is a good idea to pretreat these body spots before bathing. While your bath water is running, coat your elbows and heels with a paste of soapsuds. Pump bumps can be smoothed with a well-lathered pumice.

After rinsing well and drying well your surface is ready for lubrication. For an extra dose of lubrication you might leave the cream on all night on your heels and elbows. You can protect your bed linens by wearing washable heel and elbow caps made especially for this purpose.

Most cosmetic companies have these but if you have trouble finding them in your community I will be glad to help you. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of Morning World.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Dubach Club Gives Show

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Flower Arrangements from the Dubach Garden Club were the feature for the T.V. and Fifth District Garden Center Program last Wednesday. The club's outgoing and incoming presidents, Mrs. W. C. Smith and Mrs. Joe Moore brought the designs—seven in all, made by four of the club's outstanding arrangers, Mrs. M. F. Henry, Mrs. C. S. Fuller, Mrs. Alvin Davis, and Mrs. Charles Colvin.

Mrs. Henry made two designs. The first was a massed - triangle featuring the "Golden Perfection" daffodils placed within a line of iris foliage and blossoming cherry laurel in a pale green pillar vase. Variegated euonymous foliage was used as a filler. Also, baby ivy was used low to cut the line of the container. A black base was used to add proper balance.

Ivy foliage was also used as line material in Mrs. Henry's second asymmetrical design in a tall cylinder vase (light green). Spring colors were combined in this design by next adding the blooming cherry laurel and the blue Dutch Iris. At the basic part of the design the clusters of (Dick Wellband) daffodils were filled in. These are very colorful with their orange cups and pale yellow petals. Hosta foliage formed the basic horizontal line. This as well as the other design would be cheerful in the home — most any room where a bit of springtime would be welcomed.

DISTINCTIVE

Mrs. C. S. Fuller used distinctive materials for her design. The curving branches of dried wisteria formed the line in a small, black oriental vase. Two magnolia leaves, painted white, were placed at the base of the vine to form a background for the light green grapes that were placed next to fall in clusters over the side of the container. One small cluster of dark red grapes formed the focal area. One grape leaf was used as filler under the dark red grapes. The design was placed on a woven, oriental mat, edged in black wood. This further created the oriental feeling in the design as well as created good balance. Lovely design for the low coffee table or end table in the living room.

Mrs. Fuller created her second design in a crystal bubble bowl. This ideal for the coffee table as a conversational design. White mums were clustered low in the bowl against a background of sansevieria foliage. Ivy leaves were used to soften the design. These materials were placed in a needlepoint holder which had been anchored into the bowl with posey clay. A small amount of water was used to keep the stems wet and fresh for a long time.

TRIANGLE DESIGN

Mrs. Charles Colvin used flowering peach and deep rose colored crab apple to form the massed triangle design in a light pink container. The peach blossoms were placed within the line of the crabapple—a perfect blend of colors. The foliage of the crabapple formed the filler at the outer edges of the design. A round black base gave the finishing touch.

For a her second design Mrs. Colvin created a distinctive and clever arrangement with pine blossoms and one small pine branch (clipped). This small branch (vertical) was placed in a tall soft green bottle-type vase. The blossoms of the pine followed as a filler being massed more heavily at the basic part of the vertical line. This would certainly be an eye-catcher in the den or breakfast room, and would be suitable for the bathroom design. This would last indefinitely and could be enjoyed for a long time without tiring of it. I can't wait to get home and clip some of my own pine blossoms and put them in a bottle.

Mrs. Alvin Davis chose three lovely materials to create her asymetrical design (massed triangle). The line was established with branches of pussywillow in groups of three to each line. Pale yellow into white mums were used as the line against a background of rich green boxwood foliage. The container was a soft white urn placed on a round white wooden base. This would be an ideal design for the church sanctuary or the large entrance table.

'LOVELY SHOW'

This was a lovely show of Spring flowers and colors. Thanks and congratulations, Dubach Garden Club.

This is indeed Tulip Time in the Twin Cities and vicinity surrounding. Many visitors have come to view the lovely array of blooms that have adorned the many gardens, driveways, and flower beds. The "Growing With West Monroe" Flower show presented by The Twin City Garden Club Council Thursday and Friday in downtown West Monroe was quite successful and created quite a lot of interest among the garden clubs of the Fifth District as well as the general public. Visitors are coming to the Bagwell Dutch Gardens in a steady stream. The weather has been ideal for the tulips — we are thankful since this has been an event that we have all looked forward to for over a year.

Dates to mark—The Newellton Garden Club presents it's Annual Spring Flower Show April 28, at the American Legion Home in Newellton. The theme is "Through the Garden Gate."

The Patio Garden Club will have it's bi-annual Flower Show April 15, at the Julia Wossman Recreation Center, Monroe. The time for the show "The American Scene," will be 2-4 p.m. Wednesday. The chairman of the show is Mrs. William Inabnet. The club president, Mrs. William Westin, cordially invites the public to attend.

The public is invited to view the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Colby, 4307 Bon Air Drive, Monroe. Of special interest is the pink tree peony. These will bloom now for the next two weeks, perhaps. The other types will be blooming from April 15 to May 1. Many kinds can be seen in this yard—singles and doubles. Mrs. Colby extended this lovely invitation to those who would enjoy seeing these rare blooms.

This week's program will be presented by the Mer Rouge Garden Club. Mrs. Jack Moore is the president of this Federated Garden Club.

Remeber: "Twin City Garden Club Council" meeting, Thursday at Julia Wossman Recreation Center, 9:30 a.m.

Add Charm To Bleak Little Room

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The barest, bleakest little room can be provided with charm if it is redecorated from scratch.

Such a transformation occurred when a Broadway dressing room was refurnished for star Elizabeth Ashley.

Theater dressing rooms are generally run down. Most theater owners are not producers as were George M. Cohan and Flo Ziegfield who provided lavish dressing rooms in the past for stars Anna Held and Lillian Russell. Instead today's owner rents to tenant producers, and all too often a play blacks out after opening night, making investments of a frivolous nature rather foolhardy.

LONG RUN

But Miss Ashley's play "Barefoot in the Park" is here to stay for a long while, judging from its smash success of the moment.

She had fallen heir to a typical dressing room — illumination was from bare bulbs scattered on the wall above a long narrow counter covered with oilcloth. Walls were peeling and cracking. Two rear windows were painted white to hide a view of ash cans and debris. There were no closets; costumes were hung on a pipe rack protected from dust by a sheet. The ceiling was a sprawl of sprinklers, plumbing, air - conditioning conduits.

What was accomplished with the little room is typical of what can be done with a little space and a practical but imaginative mind.

A chunky L-shaped room, its main area is about 12 feet square cornered against an entrance space about eight feet square.

Major architectural costs were avoided in the interest of a small budget, yet the idea was to block off the windows and conceal ceiling pipes.

FOUR-HINGED

Four hinged beachwood panels (3 feet by 8 feet) with fabric inserted were installed at the rear of the room, leaving windows accessible as a fire exit. The daybed, skirted to the floor, was placed in front of the panels, between two end tables. The Caprolan nylon upholstery fabric was the same as the fabric used in the panels, a textured frieze without pattern which made the room look larger. The carpet was of the same fire resistant nylon.

Walls are covered in a textured beige weave. An eight-foot square bulletin board area was created around the dressing table — soft boards were fastened floor to ceiling and covered with a striped fabric for posting notes, photos, playbills.

A fabulous trick at the ceiling was painting it and the myriad of pipes black, extending the black paint down the wall 12 inches. Rows of simple bullet light fixtures, painted black, borrowed stage lighting effects, making the ceiling almost invisible.

The walnut-stained dressing table is wall-hung to keep floors uncluttered. Louvre shutters created a closet and screened off the washstands. A large mirror was put on the wall between the two areas.

AFTER—Ceiling light fixtures direct the light away from the black-painted ceiling pipes. Wood panels with fabric insertion cover the windows, and a daybed is added. A small, attractive vanity table and light-framed mirror replace the old, long table in Elizabeth Ashley's dressing room in the Biltmore Theater.

BEFORE — Actress Elizabeth Ashley's dressing room once had a ceiling full of pipes, a long dressing table covered with oilcloth, two windows with glass painted white and a pipe rack for hanging clothes.

Problems In Housing Plentiful

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Writer

It's not the problems in the home, but our attitude toward them that counts. Things will go wrong in the stateliest homes, so we shouldn't get a "wretched house" complex. One must face up to individual obstacles as we approach them and solve them as quickly as possible, without treating each one as a strike against the house. Above all one shouldn't let little things accumulate until we are over our heads in disrepair.

"Our fireplace was built by a local carpenter, and the thing that bothers me is that I'm afraid it isn't safe," writes a woman. "I'm afraid to use it when my husband isn't here. Is there any way to test it for safety? It is a small, inadequate fireplace in any case, and that may be one reason I do not have confidence in it."

DOUBTS OUT

No fireplace that presents doubts should be in service. The best fireplaces need professional care, and a check at the end of each season. A good chimney man will check it for leaks, grease and other matter that can start fires. He will check each flue. The carpenter who built it must have worked from plans, and any experienced workman would have been careful in respect to safety features, even if fireplace building isn't his regular line of work. Your fears could be put to rest by a chimney expert.

"We have an enormous heat register near the corner of our living room, and it is an unsightly mess. We brought carpet from our other home and I'm in favor of putting it over part of the register. My husband wants to cut the carpet, but since we just rent the house, I'm against cutting the carpet. Is there any solution to this without cutting the carpet?"

Experience with two wool carpets has shown that it is not affected by registers. These two instances involved dark rugs — a red and a gray with pads beneath. The registers did not affect them. Each carpet was down more than five years and did not completely cover the registers. One carpet had a urethane underpad, the other had a jute underpad. How carpet of other fibers would react to heat, I do not know, but you could get this information from the manufacturer.

FLOOR STENCILING

"I have read a number of stories about floor stenciling being in vogue, and since I cannot afford carpet right now, I thought I would try it. Is it a difficult job? Is there an easier solution to the problem so that the floors do not look too bad? I plan to do the living room first, and then the others as I go along."

Stenciling floors does take time and a little skill. Furnishings should be removed from the room, and kept out of the room until everything is completely dry, for best results. If one can stencil a room over a long period, it may prove to be a very enjoyable task, rather than a back-breaking one. A good alternate plan is to paint the floors a bright color. Small area rugs could be used over floors, then moved to other rooms when carpet is purchased for the main room.

CHECK CAREFULLY

It pays to check a house thoroughly when you buy it as this reader found out.

"We bought a small house recently, only to find that the bedrooms do not have heat. Outside in the hall between the two bedrooms there is a heater, and the house is adequately heated downstairs. We are now trying to decide on the kind of portable heating units we should buy. The bedrooms are small and it shouldn't take a great amount of heat to do it, but we would need a modern unit of some sort."

You could no doubt have heating units extended from your present heating system to these areas, depending on what type of heat flow you will have. Since other people have lived there without heat, perhaps enough heat is derived from the hall for the bedrooms. It would be good to give the rooms a chance as they are. You could be surprised to find that the heat is entirely adequate, and that you like the rooms on the cool side. Many modern homes are so overheated that windows must be left open all night to keep bedrooms cool enough for comfort. If you do decide on a portable heater, it is best to get advice from a heating expert who will select it on the basis of the size of your room and other factors.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The urge to be different overtakes almost every one who decides to have a house built. But a house that is different merely for the sake of being different doesn't "wear well," in the figurative sense. Time has a way of putting things in the proper perspective.

Architect Gerhard Karplus feels very strong about this, even though he has gained a national reputation for unusual designs. Viennese-born, Karplus served as a first lieutenant with the U.S. Army in the China-Burma-India campaign from 1942 through 1945. His father, Dr. Arnold Karplus, was Austria's first outstanding modern architect.

ADVISE

When advising individuals who are about to build their own homes, Karplus stresses caution in overdoing individuality.

"It is understandable," he says, "that people surrounded by monotony, uniformity and automation want to get away from it all by being different. It is also understandable that in this age of experimentation, daily influx of new materials and novel construction methods, many want to participate in this progressive trend. But if the sole idea is to be different, original or sensational—the result will be freakish structures which should not be confused with the justifiable longing for individual expression."

Karplus called attention to the buildings erected at the New York World's Fair. He said many of them are new forms created deliberately to attract the eye by being sensational. They serve that purpose well, the architect explains, but would be out of place in structures intended for living quarters.

GOOD ARCHITECT

Quite naturally, Karplus believes that a good architect is the answer to a person's wish to express his taste and reflect his personality. Based on his experience, the architect can find simple solutions for his client's needs, creating individuality without necessarily using something drastically new.

Has Karplus noted anything particular in his relations with families who want homes built?

"Yes. There are two matters that seem to crop up more than anything else. One is the desire not merely to do as the Joneses do, but to outdo them. The other is the fiction that there is a hazardous relationship between the architect and the owner during the period in which the house is being built."

Many Pests Feed On Camellias

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspect of camellia propagation.)

Camellias are fed on, either by preference or accidentally, by a relatively large number of insects and allied pests, some of which often cause serious damage. They consist of more than 40 species of scales, several kinds of mites, aphids, thrips, beetles, caterpillars, ants, pill bugs, snails, slugs, grasshoppers, and others.

Scale insects are the most important group of pests that infest camellias. They have sucking mouth parts; consequently, they feed by removing juices from the plants. Since they do not consume the plant tissue — either leaves, bark, or flower buds — the extent of damage caused is overlooked or underestimated.

MIXED INFESTATIONS

Mixed infestations of two or more species often occur on the same plants. However, the number one enemy of camellias is the tea scale, which infests the underside of the leaves mostly, causing conspicuous yellowish splotches on the upper surface. An infestation is also characterized by cottony masses on the underside of the leaves, which in some cases of severe infestation may cover the entire under surface.

This has very often been mistaken for mildew and is very similar in appearance. The female tea scale is light brown in color, the male is white. They measure about one-twentieth of an inch long and are covered by a hard shell. Breeding is continuous, but is intensified in hot, humid weather. Heavy emegence of crawlers begins in late March and reaches its peak in late August or September.

CONTROL MEASURES

Fortunately for the grower, tea scale, as well as all other scale and insects that infest camellias, can be controlled and sometimes completely eradicated with one thorough spraying at the proper time with a combination of miscible oil and malathion. This can be applied in the spring or fall when all danger of freezes is absent.

The preferred time is the middle of April to the middle of June. Where plants are heavily infested, another treatment should be made in early October. The rule of thumb is over 40 degrees F. and under 90 degrees F. Never spray more than twice per year or when plants are dry and suffering for water.

Spray material must be applied with good pressure in a fine mist to the underside of the leaves. This spray material is a contact and a stomach poison to insects and is harmless to humans and warm-blooded animals unless swallowed or taken internally. After applying the spray, inspect the shrub and if all the scale has turned black, it is dead. A rain after spraying does no harm. As mentioned above, the spray smothers the scale and kills on contact.

In the next article, which will be the conclusion to this one, will be discussed the various spray materials to be used.

A $250,000 garden, including 20-foot palm and coconut trees, date and fig trees and exotic flowers, was shipped from Miami to Grand Bahama Island by chartered freighter to landscape a new hotel.

In a series of trips, the ship also carried yews, silver buttonwoods, Queensland umbrella trees, 300 privet hedge plants, 500 morning glory plants, and enough grass seed to sow five acres of lawn. There also were jasmine, bougainvillea and iris, day lilies, bird of paradise, monkey-apple and spanish bayonet plants.

The plants were set in a temporary area pending transplanting to the Lucayan Beach Hotel's 16-acre garden.

Infestation Signs Seen

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If your camellia plants have discolored leaves with a colony scale under surface, they are infested with camellia scale. An old standby for control of scale and one still effective is oil emulsion that should be applied during the mild spring season. However, a more recent material and one proving quite successful for control of scale insects is Cygon. This may be used as a foliage spray or applied as a soil drench. Follow the manufacturers directions very closely for applications since the material is injurious to many plants such as the hollies.

Divide chrysanthemums in April and early May. Plant in fertile well drained soil in a location receiving full sunlight. Take stolons that have formed at the crown of old plants. Only the outer stolons should be used, as the center ones are more likely to be diseased according to our horticulturists, Neil Odenwald. Discard the old plants. Flowers of higher quality will be produced on the plants if tranplanted to an area where they have room to grow with little competition from other plants.

HOBBY DAY

Don't forget our annual Hobby Day Tuesday, April 7, from 9:30 A.M. - 11:30 A.M. at the Agricultural Auditorium in West Monroe.

BOOKS

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, have some valuable old leather bound books that are slowly disintegrating? If so, take a tip from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and give them a lacquer treatment. Lacquer will improve their appearance and postpone, perhaps indefinitely, the necessity for rebinding. Here are the directions: Gently rub the leather smooth with a very fine emery cloth, giving special attention to scuffed, peeling or powdery places. If you want to oil the leather, apply the oil next. Oil can't be applied after leather is lacquered. Touch up light colored areas with a leather dye, if necessary. Ready made lacquers are on the market in aerosal bomb and liquid forms. The aerosal spray is easier to use. Be sure the lacquer spray is recommended for leather, cloth or other flexible material. Spray or brush on thin coat, let dry, apply a second coat.

Lacquer protects leather bindings very well, however, it does change the natural leather appearance. giving it a rather shiny finish.

Handle lacquers with caution. They give off vapors and fumes which ignite easily and burn freely. Apply them in the open or where fresh air circulates freely. Keep away from fires and don't smoke while using them.

FOOD BUDGETING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, need some help in planning within your food budget, your U. S. Department of Agriculture has prepared a publication for you. It is free and you can get your copy by sending a post card with your name and address and the title Family Food Budgeting H G-94 to the office of Information U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

There are five family food plans geared to different levels of cost. Each food plan suggests the kinds and quantities of foods to buy weekly to provide a nutritionally adequate diet for each member of your family based on sex, age, and activity.

Included in the publication are an economy plan, two low-cost plans, one moderate cost and one liberal plan. The moderate cost plan, suitable for the family with an average income, allows for meals with more variety and less home preparation than does the basic low cost plan.

HINTS

Peppers are high in vitamins A and C. Vitamins A and C are needed regularly for growth and healthy body tissues and vegetables are a primary source of these nutrients.

You never outgrow your need for milk. An adult needs two or more eight -ounce glasses of milk each day. But it doesn't all have to be consumed as milk. It can come from cheese, ice cream, puddings, pies or casserole dishes you eat each day.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plant Late Perennials

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Some of the mid-summer and late summer and early autumn perennials can be planted now to supply gardens with flowers during August and September when landscapes are apt to be drab indeed in the South. Luckily, there are some good tough perennials that will flower during these difficult times.

Because the succulent foliage is handsome and cheerful all summer long, even if the plants did not flower, Sedum spectabile has pride of place on any list of August and September perennials. Our grandmothers liked this plant well enough to grow it in spite of the fact that the kind they had bore rather dingy heads of grey - pink flowers. Today, we can get this big sedum in deep bright rose, white and even bright red. Some of the varieties are called Carmen, Meteor and Indian Chief, and the white one is listed as alba.

Sedum spectabile is a very drought resistant plant because it stores water in the fat, succulent leaves up and down the stem. It looks best in part shade, and some shade is needed during those scorching August and September days to prevent the sun from drying up the flowers prematurely. When hurricanes come along and dump floods of water on our gardens, the flower heads look drab for a few hours and then dry out. After autumn frosts dry up the seed heads, they make beautiful material for winter dried arrangements. In Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ewing like to save them for this purpose every year.

For sheer drought resistance, there is perhaps no perennial to beat out native cone flowers.

The English, German and American perennial fanciers have developed some striking varieties. Oldest is the handome and striking White Lustre with brown gold centers. The King is a dusty pink one with dark maroon center, and two golden ones are Goldstrum — orange and black, and Goldquelle — clear yellow. The gorgeous wild cone flowers from which the Germans selected these last two are plentiful in our hedgerows and ditches, but "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Dubach Club Gives Show

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Flower Arrangements from the Dubach Garden Club were the feature for the T.V. and Fifth District Garden Center Program last Wednesday. The club's outgoing and incoming presidents, Mrs. W. C. Smith and Mrs. Joe Moore brought the designs—seven in all, made by four of the club's outstanding arrangers, Mrs. M. F. Henry, Mrs. C. S. Fuller, Mrs. Alvin Davis, and Mrs. Charles Colvin.

Mrs. Henry made two designs. The first was a massed - triangle featuring the "Golden Perfection" daffodils placed within a line of iris foliage and blossoming cherry laurel in a pale green pillar vase. Variegated euonymous foliage was used as a filler. Also, baby ivy was used low to cut the line of the container. A black base was used to add proper balance.

Ivy foliage was also used as line material in Mrs. Henry's second asymmetrical design in a tall cylinder vase (light green). Spring colors were combined in this design by next adding the blooming cherry laurel and the blue Dutch Iris. At the basic part of the design the clusters of (Dick Wellband) daffodils were filled in. These are very colorful with their orange cups and pale yellow petals. Hosta foliage formed the basic horizontal line. This as well as the other design would be cheerful in the home — most any room where a bit of springtime would be welcomed.

DISTINCTIVE

Mrs. C. S. Fuller used distinctive materials for her design. The curving branches of dried wisteria formed the line in a small, black oriental vase. Two magnolia leaves, painted white, were placed at the base of the vine to form a background for the light green grapes that were placed next to fall in clusters over the side of the container. One small cluster of dark red grapes formed the focal area. One grape leaf was used as filler under the dark red grapes. The design was placed on a woven, oriental mat, edged in black wood. This further created the oriental feeling in the design as well as created good balance. Lovely design for the low coffee table or end table in the living room.

Mrs. Fuller created her second design in a crystal bubble bowl. This ideal for the coffee table as a conversational design. White mums were clustered low in the bowl against a background of sansevieria foliage. Ivy leaves were used to soften the design. These materials were placed in a needlepoint holder which had been anchored into the bowl with posey clay. A small amount of water was used to keep the stems wet and fresh for a long time.

TRIANGLE DESIGN

Mrs. Charles Colvin used flowering peach and deep rose colored crab apple to form the massed triangle design in a light pink container. The peach blossoms were placed within the line of the crabapple—a perfect blend of colors. The foliage of the crabapple formed the filler at the outer edges of the design. A round black base gave the finishing touch.

For a her second design Mrs. Colvin created a distinctive and clever arrangement with pine blossoms and one small pine branch (clipped). This small branch (vertical) was placed in a tall soft green bottle-type vase. The blossoms of the pine followed as a filler being massed more heavily at the basic part of the vertical line. This would certainly be an eye-catcher in the den or breakfast room, and would be suitable for the bathroom design. This would last indefinitely and could be enjoyed for a long time without tiring of it. I can't wait to get home and clip some of my own pine blossoms and put them in a bottle.

Mrs. Alvin Davis chose three lovely materials to create her asymetrical design (massed triangle). The line was established with branches of pussywillow in groups of three to each line. Pale yellow into white mums were used as the line against a background of rich green boxwood foliage. The container was a soft white urn placed on a round white wooden base. This would be an ideal design for the church sanctuary or the large entrance table.

'LOVELY SHOW'

This was a lovely show of Spring flowers and colors. Thanks and congratulations, Dubach Garden Club.

This is indeed Tulip Time in the Twin Cities and vicinity surrounding. Many visitors have come to view the lovely array of blooms that have adorned the many gardens, driveways, and flower beds. The "Growing With West Monroe" Flower show presented by The Twin City Garden Club Council Thursday and Friday in downtown West Monroe was quite successful and created quite a lot of interest among the garden clubs of the Fifth District as well as the general public. Visitors are coming to the Bagwell Dutch Gardens in a steady stream. The weather has been ideal for the tulips — we are thankful since this has been an event that we have all looked forward to for over a year.

Dates to mark—The Newellton Garden Club presents it's Annual Spring Flower Show April 28, at the American Legion Home in Newellton. The theme is "Through the Garden Gate."

The Patio Garden Club will have it's bi-annual Flower Show April 15, at the Julia Wossman Recreation Center, Monroe. The time for the show "The American Scene," will be 2-4 p.m. Wednesday. The chairman of the show is Mrs. William Inabnet. The club president, Mrs. William Westin, cordially invites the public to attend.

The public is invited to view the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Colby, 4307 Bon Air Drive, Monroe. Of special interest is the pink tree peony. These will bloom now for the next two weeks, perhaps. The other types will be blooming from April 15 to May 1. Many kinds can be seen in this yard—singles and doubles. Mrs. Colby extended this lovely invitation to those who would enjoy seeing these rare blooms.

This week's program will be presented by the Mer Rouge Garden Club. Mrs. Jack Moore is the president of this Federated Garden Club.

Remeber: "Twin City Garden Club Council" meeting, Thursday at Julia Wossman Recreation Center, 9:30 a.m.

Stenciling floors does take time and a little skill. Furnishings should be removed from the room, and kept out of the room until everything is completely dry, for best results. If one can stencil a room over a long period, it may prove to be a very enjoyable task, rather than a back-breaking one. A good alternate plan is to paint the floors a bright color. Small area rugs could be used over floors, then moved to other rooms when carpet is purchased for the main room.

CHECK CAREFULLY

It pays to check a house thoroughly when you buy it as this reader found out.

"We bought a small house recently, only to find that the bedrooms do not have heat. Outside in the hall between the two bedrooms there is a heater, and the house is adequately heated downstairs. We are now trying to decide on the kind of portable heating units we should buy. The bedrooms are small and it shouldn't take a great amount of heat to do it, but we would need a modern unit of some sort."

You could no doubt have heating units extended from your present heating system to these areas, depending on what type of heat flow you will have. Since other people have lived there without heat, perhaps enough heat is derived from the hall for the bedrooms. It would be good to give the rooms a chance as they are. You could be surprised to find that the heat is entirely adequate, and that you like the rooms on the cool side. Many modern homes are so overheated that windows must be left open all night to keep bedrooms cool enough for comfort. If you do decide on a portable heater, it is best to get advice from a heating expert who will select it on the basis of the size of your room and other factors.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The urge to be different overtakes almost every one who decides to have a house built. But a house that is different merely for the sake of being different doesn't "wear well," in the figurative sense. Time has a way of putting things in the proper perspective.

Architect Gerhard Karplus feels very strong about this, even though he has gained a national reputation for unusual designs. Viennese-born, Karplus served as a first lieutenant with the U.S. Army in the China-Burma-India campaign from 1942 through 1945. His father, Dr. Arnold Karplus, was Austria's first outstanding modern architect.

ADVISE

When advising individuals who are about to build their own homes, Karplus stresses caution in overdoing individuality.

"It is understandable," he says, "that people surrounded by monotony, uniformity and automation want to get away from it all by being different. It is also understandable that in this age of experimentation, daily influx of new materials and novel construction methods, many want to participate in this progressive trend. But if the sole idea is to be different, original or sensational—the result will be freakish structures which should not be confused with the justifiable longing for individual expression."

Karplus called attention to the buildings erected at the New York World's Fair. He said many of them are new forms created deliberately to attract the eye by being sensational. They serve that purpose well, the architect explains, but would be out of place in structures intended for living quarters.

GOOD ARCHITECT

Quite naturally, Karplus believes that a good architect is the answer to a person's wish to express his taste and reflect his personality. Based on his experience, the architect can find simple solutions for his client's needs, creating individuality without necessarily using something drastically new.

Has Karplus noted anything particular in his relations with families who want homes built?

"Yes. There are two matters that seem to crop up more than anything else. One is the desire not merely to do as the Joneses do, but to outdo them. The other is the fiction that there is a hazardous retationship between the architect and the owner during the period in which the house is being built."

Many Pests Feed On Camellias

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspect of camellia propagation.)

Camellias are fed on, either by preference or accidentally, by a relatively large number of insects and allied pests, some of which often cause serious damage. They consist of more than 40 species of scales, several kinds of mites, aphids, thrips, beetles, caterpillars, ants, pill bugs, snails, slugs, grasshoppers, and others.

Scale insects are the most important group of pests that infest camellias. They have sucking mouth parts; consequently, they feed by removing juices from the plants. Since they do not consume the plant tissue — either leaves, bark, or flower buds — the extent of damage caused is overlooked or underestimated.

MIXED INFESTATIONS

Mixed infestations of two or more species often occur on the same plants. However, the number one enemy of camellias is the tea scale, which infests the underside of the leaves mostly, causing conspicuous yellowish splotches on the upper surface. An infestation is also characterized by cottony masses on the underside of the leaves, which in some cases of severe infestation may cover the entire under surface.

This has very often been mistaken for mildew and is very similar in appearance. The female tea scale is light brown in color, the male is white. They measure about one-twentieth of an inch long and are covered by a hard shell. Breeding is continuous, but is intensified in hot, humid weather. Heavy emegence of crawlers begins in late March and reaches its peak in late August or September.

CONTROL MEASURES

Fortunately for the grower, tea scale, as well as all other scale and insects that infest camellias, can be controlled and sometimes completely eradicated with one thorough spraying at the proper time with a combination of miscible oil and malathion. This can be applied in the spring or fall when all danger of freezes is absent.

The preferred time is the middle of April to the middle of June. Where plants are heavily infested, another treatment should be made in early October. The rule of thumb is over 40 degrees F. and under 90 degrees F. Never spray more than twice per year or when plants are dry and suffering for water.

Spray material must be applied with good pressure in a fine mist to the underside of the leaves. This spray material is a contact and a stomach poison to insects and is harmless to humans and warm-blooded animals unless swallowed or taken internally. After applying the spray, inspect the shrub and if all the scale has turned black, it is dead. A rain after spraying does no harm. As mentioned above, the spray smothers the scale and kills on contact.

In the next article, which will be the conclusion to this one, will be discussed the various spray materials to be used.

Miami Ships Whole Garden

A $250,000 garden, including 20-foot palm and coconut trees, date and fig trees and exotic flowers, was shipped from Miami to Grand Bahama Island by chartered freighter to landscape a new hotel.

In a series of trips, the ship also carried yews, silver buttonwoods, Queensland umbrella trees, 300 privet hedge plants, 500 morning glory plants, and enough grass seed to sow five acres of lawn. There also were jasmine, bougainvillea and iris, day lilies, bird of paradise, monkey-apple and spanish bayonet plants.

The plants were set in a temporary area pending transplanting to the Lucayan Beach Hotel's 16-acre garden.

Infestation Signs Seen

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If your camellia plants have discolored leaves with a colony scale under surface, they are infested with camellia scale. An old standby for control of scale and one still effective is oil emulsion that should be applied during the mild spring season. However, a more recent material and one proving quite successful for control of scale insects is Cygon. This may be used as a foliage spray or applied as a soil drench. Follow the manufacturers directions very closely for applications since the material is injurious to many plants such as the hollies.

Divide chrysanthemums in April and early May. Plant in fertile well drained soil in a location receiving full sunlight. Take stolons that have formed at the crown of old plants. Only the outer stolons should be used, as the center ones are more likely to be diseased according to our horticulturists, Neil Odenwald. Discard the old plants. Flowers of higher quality will be produced on the plants if transplanted to an area where they have room to grow with little competition from other plants.

HOBBY DAY

Don't forget our annual Hobby Day Tuesday, April 7, from 9:30 A.M. - 11:30 A.M. at the Agricultural Auditorium in West Monroe.

BOOKS

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, have some valuable old leather bound books that are slowly disintegrating? If so, take a tip from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and give them a lacquer treatment. Lacquer will improve their appearance and postpone, perhaps indefinitely, the necessity for rebinding. Here are the directions: Gently rub the leather smooth with a very fine emery cloth, giving special attention to scuffed, peeling or powdery places. If you want to oil the leather, apply the oil next. Oil can't be applied after leather is lacquered. Touch up light colored areas with a leather dye, if necessary. Ready made lacquers are on the market in aerosal bomb and liquid forms. The aerosal spray is easier to use. Be sure the lacquer spray is recommended for leather, cloth or other flexible material. Spray or brush on thin coat, let dry, apply a second coat.

Lacquer protects leather bindings very well, however, it does change the natural leather appearance. giving it a rather shiny finish.

Handle lacquers with caution. They give off vapors and fumes which ignite easily and burn freely. Apply them in the open or where fresh air circulates freely. Keep away from fires and don't smoke while using them.

FOOD BUDGETING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, need some help in planning within your food budget, your U. S. Department of Agriculture has prepared a publication for you. It is free and you can get your copy by sending a post card with your name and address and the title Family Food Budgeting H G-94 to the office of Information U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

There are five family food plans geared to different levels of cost. Each food plan suggests the kinds and quantities of foods to buy weekly to provide a nutritionally adequate diet for each member of your family based on sex, age, and activity.

Included in the publication are an economy plan, two low-cost plans, one moderate cost and one liberal plan. The moderate cost plan, suitable for the family with an average income, allows for meals with more variety and less home preparation than does the basic low cost plan.

HINTS

Peppers are high in vitamins A and C. Vitamins A and C are needed regularly for growth and healthy body tissues and vegetables are a primary source of these nutrients.

You never outgrow your need for milk. An adult needs two or more eight -ounce glasses of milk each day. But it doesn't all have to be consumed as milk. It can come from cheese, ice cream, puddings, pies or casserole dishes you eat each day.

A THOUGHT

The smallest deed is better than the grandest intention.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plant Late Perennials

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Some of the mid-summer and late summer and early autumn perennials can be planted now to supply gardens with flowers during August and September when landscapes are apt to be drab indeed in the South. Luckily, there are some good tough perennials that will flower during these difficult times.

Because the succulent foliage is handsome and cheerful all summer long, even if the plants did not flower, Sedum spectabile has pride of place on any list of August and September perennials. Our grandmothers liked this plant well enough to grow it in spite of the fact that the kind they had bore rather dingy heads of grey - pink flowers. Today, we can get this big sedum in deep bright rose, white and even bright red. Some of the varieties are called Carmen, Meteor and Indian Chief, and the white one is listed as alba.

Sedum spectabile is a very drought resistant plant because it stores water in the fat, succulent leaves up and down the stem. It looks best in part shade, and some shade is needed during those scorching August and September days to prevent the sun from drying up the flowers prematurely. When hurricanes come along and dump floods of water on our gardens, the flower heads look drab for a few hours and then dry out. After autumn frosts dry up the seed heads, they make beautiful material for winter dried arrangements. In Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ewing like to save them for this purpose every year.

For sheer drought resistance, there is perhaps no perennial to beat out native cone flowers.

The English, German and American perennial fanciers have developed some striking varieties. Oldest is the handome and striking White Lustre with brown gold centers. The King is a dusty pink one with dark maroon center, and two golden ones are Goldstrum — orange and black, and Goldquelle — clear yellow. The gorgeous wild cone flowers from which the Germans selected these last two are plentiful in our hedgerows and ditches, but "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

CURTAIN CALL

The hilarious comedy "Breath of Spring," opens at Strauss Playhouse this coming Friday at 8:15 p.m., followed by performances Saturday and Sunday night. After a three-day interruption, the run will be resumed Thursday through Sunday, April 16-19.

As most members know, there are two ways to make reservations. You can either send in the reservation form mailed you earlier this past week or you can get in touch with the box office between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., April 8-12, and April 15-19, (FA 3-1235).

Little Theatre has chosen a real rib-tickler for its fourth production of the season. As in most good comedies, the funny lines share the comic effect with the situations and characterizations. "Breath Of Spring," gives us characters of impeccable respectability to all outward appearance: a retired brigadier, a timid mender of china, a voice teacher who must have played hockey for a correct school and two society women accustomed to moving in the better circles. The only trouble is they are bored with the dull routine of their lives.

EMERGENCY

Suddenly they are confronted with an emergency that requires daring, teamwork and split-second planning to extricate their maid from an escapade that might have sent her back to prison. In carrying it off brilliantly, they discover unsuspected resources within themselves that makes them reluctant to return to their humdrum existence.

Thus these five senior citizens start the most improbable crime syndicate in history. One ridiculous situation leads to another until the final curtain rescues them - or does it? A vital element of the comedy is their British nationality, for long stage tradition makes this race supreme in stuffiness, the stiff upper lip, boarding house gentility, the upholding of law and order and all the other principles that "Breath of Spring" knocks into a cocked hat. Our audiences may count on an evening of light entertainment loaded with laughter.

GENEROSITY

Mrs. Matt Hirsch was again the soul of generosity in letting Richard Clark and Lonny Fraze ransack her home for any pieces of furniture they thought suitable for furnishing the set. Bill Carpenter of Bastrop loaned the inevitable tiger skin.

We want to make special mention of The Woman's Shop for its kindness in lending us a number of handsome new fur pieces to match the description called for in the script. Our fur requirements have now been satisfied as Joy Marshall, Feejee Carmack, Blossom Butler, and Velma Kettenring also helped us with the loot that the five off beat thieves manage to accumulate.

Several people have recently added to wardrobe and props. Mrs. Tom Houghton gave us a surprise package of glassware, ornaments and a rug, while Velma and Mary Gill donated items like hats and dresses. This time we were able to costume the whole show out of wardrobe except, of course, for many of the furs.

Out of town visitors to rehearsals have included Sara Womack, Sharon Griffith, Barbara Easterling's mother, Mrs. Brogan, George Hargus Jr., and Carolyn and Bob Evans Jr. John Frazier and Dan Palser have assisted with the set construction. S. C. Strausser added a new signboard for our sign at Louisville Avenue and Lamy Lane, not to mention needed materials.

TRADITIONAL

George Spelvin is a traditional nom de theatre for actors who wish to appear incognito. Everyone will recognize him anyway, so we will reveal that the George Spelvin of "Breath Of Spring" is Paul Wank who consented to fill the small walk-on part at the end in addition to acting as assistant to the director.

Besides the hits reported last week, Lallage Feazel's New York play-going included "Foxy" "The Chinese Prime Minister," "Here's Love," "Nobody Loves An Albatross," "Luther," "A Case Of Libel," and "The Girl Who Came To Supper." Now somebody tell us how she found time to attend the Flower and Antique Shows at the Coliseum and several of New York's fashionable shops as well.

AMUSEMENTS

HUMOR in photography is an effective way to gain attention. Several rehearsals of the models in this scene were required before the water was turned on and the camera caught the spontanous action for a German advertisement. It is from "Techniques of Advertising Photography" by Joachim Giebelhausen.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

We live in a world of advertising, and photography has assumed an increasingly important role to inform viewers, dramatize products and spread ideas. Amateur photographers are quick to appreciate the technical excellence and imaginative approach which distinguishes modern advertising photography, but they are not likely to be aware of the various complicated steps and the number of people who are involved in its technical production.

HELPFUL BOOK

At hand is a book which will not only inform the amateur but can be most helpful to people in every phase of the business because it surveys the whole field and covers every aspect of photographic possibilities and methods in advertising. "Techniques of Advertising Photography" by Joachim Giebelhausen was originally published in Germany by Nicolaus Karpf of Verlag Grossbild - Technik GMBH Munich. The present English language edition is distributed by Kling Photo Corp., New York.

Beautifully printed, with 450 illustrations of which 50 are in brilliant color, the book can serve as a reference manual for art directors, layout artists, typographers and printers as well as photographers. It brings to American readers the novelty and different approach of the European photos which outnumber the examples of advertising photography from this country.

Many of the principles which enhance effective photography in advertising are also applicable to everyday shooting by amateurs. It takes some thought and planning to make eye-catching pictures but any photographer will make better pictures with: 1. An off-beat camera angle or unusual perspective. 2. Putting a light subject against a dark background. 3. Using dramatic lighting such as backlight, sidelight or rimlight. 4. Contrasting colors or shapes for visual interest. 5. Making use of a battery of photo tricks such as intentional double-exposure, soft focus or unsharp areas through selective focus, high and low-key shooting, contrast printing and intentional movement through slow shutter speeds or panning with the camera.

"Lawrence of Arabia" portrays a moment in history when a brash, young British officer encounters the beginnings of the Arabian revolt in the desert against the Turks, and plays an almost super role in uniting the fueding tribes into an effective fighting force. Lawrence's knowledge of Arabia, its people and its language gets him into one historic dramatic situation after another.

The only trouble is they are bored with the dull routine of their lives.

EMERGENCY

Suddenly they are confronted with an emergency that requires daring, teamwork and split-second planning to extricate their maid from an escapade that might have sent her back to prison. In carrying it off brilliantly, they discover unsuspected resources within themselves that makes them reluctant to return to their humdrum existence.

Thus these five senior citizens start the most improbable crime syndicate in history. One ridiculous situation leads to another until the final curtain rescues them - or does it? A vital element of the comedy is their British nationality, for long stage tradition makes this race supreme in stuffiness, the stiff upper lip, boarding house gentility, the upholding of law and order and all the other principles that "Breath of Spring" knocks into a cocked hat. Our audiences may count on an evening of light entertainment loaded with laughter.

GENEROSITY

Mrs. Matt Hirsch was again the soul of generosity in letting Richard Clark and Lonny Fraze ransack her home for any pieces of furniture they thought suitable for furnishing the set. Bill Carpenter of Bastrop loaned the inevitable tiger skin.

We want to make special mention of The Woman's Shop for its kindness in lending us a number of handsome new fur pieces to match the description called for in the script. Our fur requirements have now been satisfied as Joy Marshall, Feejee Carmack, Blossom Butler, and Velma Kettenring also helped us with the loot that the five off beat thieves manage to accumulate.

Several people have recently added to wardrobe and props. Mrs. Tom Houghton gave us a surprise package of glassware, ornaments and a rug, while Velma and Mary Gill donated items like hats and dresses. This time we were able to costume the whole show out of wardrobe except, of course, for many of the furs.

Out of town visitors to rehearsals have included Sara Womack, Sharon Griffith, Barbara Easterling's mother, Mrs. Brogan, George Hargus Jr., and Carolyn and Bob Evans Jr. John Frazier and Dan Palser have assisted with the set construction. S. C. Strausser added a new signboard for our sign at Louisville Avenue and Lamy Lane, not to mention needed materials.

TRADITIONAL

George Spelvin is a traditional nom de theatre for actors who wish to appear incognito. Everyone will recognize him anyway, so we will reveal that the George Spelvin of "Breath Of Spring" is Paul Wank who consented to fill the small walk-on part at the end in addition to acting as assistant to the director.

Besides the hits reported last week, Lallage Feazel's New York play-going included "Foxy "The Chinese Prime Minister," "Here's Love," "Nobody Loves An Albatross," "Luther," "A Case Of Libel," and "The Girl Who Came To Supper." Now somebody tell us how she found time to attend the Flower and Antique Shows at the Coliseum and several of New York's fashionable shops as well.

AMUSEMENTS

HUMOR in photography is an effective way to gain attention. Several rehearsals of the models in this scene were required before the water was turned on and the camera caught the spontanous action for a German advertisement. It is from "Techniques of Advertising Photography" by Joachim Giebelhausen.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

We live in a world of advertising, and photography has assumed an increasingly important role to inform viewers, dramatize products and spread ideas. Amateur photographers are quick to appreciate the technical excellence and imaginative approach which distinguishes modern advertising photography, but they are not likely to be aware of the various complicated steps and the number of people who are involved in its technical production.

HELPFUL BOOK

At hand is a book which will not only inform the amateur but can be most helpful to people in every phase of the business because it surveys the whole field and covers every aspect of photographic possibilities and methods in advertising. "Techniques of Advertising Photography" by Joachim Giebelhausen was originally published in Germany by Nicolaus Karpf of Verlag Grossbild - Technik GMBH Munich. The present English language edition is distributed by Kling Photo Corp., New York.

Beautifully printed, with 450 illustrations of which 50 are in brilliant color, the book can serve as a reference manual for art directors, layout artists, typographers and printers as well as photographers. It brings to American readers the novelty and different approach of the European photos which outnumber the examples of advertising photography from this country.

Many of the principles which enhance effective photography in advertising are also applicable to everyday shooting by amateurs. It takes some thought and planning to make eye-catching pictures but any photographer will make better pictures with: 1. An off-beat camera angle or unusual perspective. 2. Putting a light subject against a dark background. 3. Using dramatic lighting such as backlight, sidelight or rimlight. 4. Contrasting colors or shapes for visual interest. 5. Making use of a battery of photo tricks such as intentional double-exposure, soft focus or unsharp areas through selective focus, high and low-key shooting, contrast printing and intentional movement through slow shutter speeds or panning with the camera.

Film Here On 'Lawrence Of Arabia'

"Lawrence of Arabia," the most talked about motion picture of the year and winner of seven Academy Awards, including the Best Picture of the Year, is now showing at the Paramont Theatre for a limited engagement.

Starring Peter O'Toole as the famed English soldier turned Arab leader, the picture has a cast of international actors, including Alec Guinness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer, Anthony Quayle, Claude Rains, Arthur Kennedy and Omar Sharif.

The Sam Spiegel - David Lean production, presented by Columbia Pictures, is in Technicolor and Super Panavision 70, was actually filmed in the deserts of the Middle East, where the actual incidents took place. Working closely with the motion picture production were some of the crack division of the Jordan Desert Patrol. In one sequence alone, a total of 15,000 members of the Jordan patrol were employed.

"Lawrence of Arabia" portrays a moment in history when a brash, young British officer encounters the beginnings of the Arabian revolt in the desert against the Turks, and plays an almost super role in uniting the fueding tribes into an effective fighting force. Lawrence's knowledge of Arabia, its people and its language gets him into one historic dramatic situation after another.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Large Number Of Books Available

By FRANCES FLANDERS, Ouachita Parish Librarian

The month of March is a heavy one in the publishing world and we have a large number of new books to offer you this week. In the field of fiction there are several important books. Probably the one which will be most discussed is "The Keepers of the House" by Shirley Ann Grau. This book is extremely well-written and presents the Southern dilemma in an unforgettable manner. It is a book which the thoughtful reader will long remember. Janice Holt Giles has written a number of successful stories of the pioneer period in American history. Her latest book deals with the Civil War period and is concerned with the adventures of a young river pilot, who is determined to sail his boat, The Rambler up the Green River in Kentucky, in spite of Confederate and Federal troops. The title of this book is "Run Me a River" and it is very well done. "A Million Pesos" by Pepe Romero is a delightful story of Mexican life and will interest everyone who has visited there. "Like Birds, Like Fishes and Other Stories" by Ruth Prawer Jhabvala is a collection of seven short stories dealing with middle class Indian life. The author has a delightful gift of satire, which is well used in this book. "Martha and Eric and George" by Margery Sharp is a sequal to her "Martha in Paris" and will appeal to the same audience who enjoyed it. "The Nature of Witches" by Joan Sanders will not appeal to every reader. "Break the Young Land" by Joshua Stark is a western story, which will appeal to readers who like this type of book. "Flight of the Bat" by Donald Gordon is an action filled science fiction story, which will interest many readers. "Royal Flush" by William Dryden is a story based on the old television scandals and is a book which will have a popular appeal. Two mysteries are "The Benefits of Death" by Roderic Jeffries and "Nerve" by Dick Francis. The latter will appeal particularly to horse racing enthusiasts.

The field of non-fiction offers some interesting books for all types of readers. "Ghost Hunter" by Hans Holzer is a new book in the field of physical research. "Thirty-Six Psalms" is the new English translation by Frank Kendon. It is beautifully done. "Presbyterians in the South, V. 1, 1607-1861" written by Ernest Trice Thompson will interest many readers. A new book in the field of family relations is "What's Happening to our Families" by Wallace Denton. "The Negro Revolution in America" by William Brink is a most informative book. "Diplomat Among the Warriors" written by Robert Murphy is a resume of foreign relations today. "The great Treasury Raid" by Philip M. Stern is an alarming book which shows how our national treasurey has been raided and how many people have cheated the government.

"Farms and Farmers in an Urban Age" by Edward Higbee and "Dairy Cattle Management" by James Marvin Wing are two new books which will be of special interest to the farmers of our Parish. Would you like to manage your money more successfully? If so you could use "Your Financial Guide for Living" by Lorraine L. Blair and "Personal Finance" by Elmo Bryant Phillips. Power is Washington" by Douglass Cater gives us a good look at behind the scenes activities in our capitol. "Twins in History and Science" by Luigi Gedda is a comprehensive study of this subject, written from a scientific viewpoint. "The Cured Alcoholic" by Arthur H. Cain discusses the new concepts in the treatment of alcoholics. "Repairing Home Audio Systems" by Eugene Ecklund is a practical guide to the subject. "Elegance" by Genevieve Antoine Dariaux is a most valuable book for the woman who wants to be well and properly dressed for all occasions.

Art books are always lovely additions to the Library collection and there are several new ones this week. "The Art of the Renaissance" by Peter and Linda Murray is a very lovely book as is "Romanticism" by Pierre Courthion, which discusses the art of the Romantic age.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

"Breath of Spring" is the timely title of Little Theatre's comedy opening this week at Strauss Playhouse. Billed as a British laugh fest, the play will star Ronn Robinson, Sue Brooks, Barbara Easterling, Judy Evans, Jean Sayles, Jennie Welch and Billy Ray Moore.

From what we can hear, the piece is built around a loosely contrived crime syndicate that has Scotland Yard acting like the Keystone Kops of the silent screen.

The comedy will run on weekends only — Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 10, 11, and 12; then on the following weekend — Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 16, 17, 18, and 19. Curtain time for all performances is 8:15. p.m.

Little Theatre of Monroe has scheduled one more play for the 1963-64 season. This one will be "Take Her She's Mine," and tryouts will be held Monday and Tuesday, April 13 and 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the playhouse.

Louisiana Tech has one more attraction on its regularly billed listings with duo-pianists Ferrante and Teicher. We understand they will play a concert of popular music in the Memorial Gymnasium on Monday, April 20. Whether with an all-serious program or a variety of "pop" numbers and light classics, Ferrante and Teicher become much-appreciated return comers to the Tech Campus. In the roving concert business, that is a rare distinction.

The Twin City Symphony with Eloy Fominaya conducting will close out the Northeast State series April 28. Guest soloist for the occasion will be Kenneth Byler violist.

BEYOND MUSIC

The Dallas Symphony Orchestra's performance of the "Symphony No. 4 in F Minor" by Tchaikowsky here last Tuesday night brought cheers from the audience. It's rather a pity that more people don't turn out for orchestral programs, but we also hasten to add that more are coming these days than formerly. Musical comedy, it seems, continues, to draw the largest audiences.

But in dealing with the enthusiasm — mabye it was even inspiration — of those who did hear, the question of "what did it?" arises.

To begin with, Tchaikowsky wrote many ballets — "Nutcracker," "Sleeping Beauty," "Swan Lake" — so he realized the need for music to communicate with his audience. Perhaps this means he was somewhat of a "ham" in that he was writing music that was aimed at stirring the listener rather than merely exposing him to music for its own sake.

So the "fourth symphony" under discussion here can hardly be called "absolute music," that is, music that has no meaning aside from its own musical content. Tchaikowsky and any number of other 19th century composers left such purely aesthetic writing to others.

Another factor is the feeling for this sort of music held by Dallas conductor, Donald Johanos. I had a few words with him before the performance, and happened to mention the first movement of the symphony. I saw immediately he didn't regard this particular composition as musical "old hat." He smiled, held up both hands in anticipation—and in brief gestures, gave every indication of a fellow who knew the musical route and was anxious to get going.

As for any specific verbal message in the Tchaikowsky fourth, there really isn't any. Dramatic as the performance was, and as well received, no one would want to specify any "plot." Music simply is not that cut and dried.

The important thing was, the musicians and conductor — one way or another — were able to bring to life one whopper of a musical adventure. If they had a story to tell, the audience might not have caught the words. But the performance certainly carried the impact, which, after all, might be the true reasoning behind "programmatic music" — or music that strives to go beyond itself.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks reached an historic high when it closed at 303.3 from 301.7 a week earlier as indicated in chart. The commodity index moved higher this week to 161.6 from 161.1 in preceding period. Food showed the largest gain. (AP Wirephoto)

Busy Trading Raises Stocks To New Highs

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market completed last week a digestion of earlier gains and climbed to record highs in heavy trading.

Airlines pushed their big advance higher, then stumbled on profit taking toward the weekend, still keeping well ahead. The battered cigarette stocks were heartened by reports that March cigarette sales were higher than a year ago.

Coppers resumed their climb early in the week amid news of soaring prices in the commodity futures market for the metal and reports that another price boost may be in the making. But they faltered Friday when a presidential candidate in Chile said that, if elected, he would nationalize the big mining properties of Kennecott and Anaconda.

News that the business expansion has passed the 38th month and had becme the longest peacetime rise in American history helped boost stocks. The New York Stock Exchange had more losers than gainers on Monday and Tuesday but the averages made new highs Thursday and Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 7.08, ending at an historic closing high of 822.99.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.6 on the week to close at a record 303.3.

Volume swelled to 29,690,790 shares from 21,395,264 in the previous week shortened to four seasons by Good Friday.

Of 1,522 issues traded, gainers outnumbered losers by 807 to 559 during the week.

Wall Streeters reported that the "little fellow" was coming back into the market and statistics at the end of the week seemed to confirm this. So did dealings in the lower priced issues.

Volume totaled $52,607,000 par value compared with about $43 million in four business days the preceding week.

12 Completions Noted In District

Four wells were completed in Ouachita Parish last week as drillers in the Monroe Oil & Gas District finaled or gauged a total of 12 new wells.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's weekly summary also showed 24 rigs active in eight of the district's 15 northeast Louisiana parishes.

The completions were recorded in seven parishes and included, besides the four in Ouachita, two wells each in Union and Tensas Parishes, as well as one each in Caldwell, Catahoula, Morehouse and Rapides.

LaSalle Parish led in general activity with seven rigs actively drilling or testing, while Tensas and Concordia Parishes had five each. Two rigs were active in both Ouachita and Catahoula and Avoyelles, Grant and Union each had one working unit.

The week's total on new locations slipped moderately below last week's, with only 10 new sites staked in five of the 15 parishes. Cook's breakdown showed three of them in Ouachita Parish, two each in Concordia, LaSalle and Union and one in Catahoula Parish.

Only recompletion during the week was listed as Placid Oil's Wright No. 2, recompleted at 4,038 feet. It is located in section 15-7-3E of LaSalle Parish's Nebo Hemphill Field.

Five wells were plugged and abandoned, leaving a total of 62 sites listed inactive at week's end.

This district manager's report gave this information on completions, active rigs and new locations:

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks reached an historic high when it closed at 303.3 from 301.7 a week earlier as indicated in chart. The commodity index moved higher this week to 161.6 from 161.1 in preceding period. Food showed the largest gain. (AP Wirephoto)

Busy Trading Raises Stocks To New Highs

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market completed last week a digestion of earlier gains and climbed to record highs in heavy trading.

Airlines pushed their big advance higher, then stumbled on profit taking toward the weekend, still keeping well ahead. The battered cigarette stocks were heartened by reports that March cigarette sales were higher than a year ago.

Coppers resumed their climb early in the week amid news of soaring prices in the commodity futures market for the metal and reports that another price boost may be in the making. But they faltered Friday when a presidential candidate in Chile said that, if elected, he would nationalize the big mining properties of Kennecott and Anaconda.

News that the business expansion has passed the 38th month and had becme the longest peacetime rise in American history helped boost stocks. The New York Stock Exchange had more losers than gainers on Monday and Tuesday but the averages made new highs Thursday and Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 7.08, ending at an historic closing high of 822.99.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.6 on the week to close at a record 303.3.

Volume swelled to 29,690,790 shares from 21,395,264 in the previous week shortened to four seasons by Good Friday.

Of 1,522 issues traded, gainers outnumbered losers by 807 to 559 during the week.

Wall Streeters reported that the "little fellow" was coming back into the market and statistics at the end of the week seemed to confirm this. So did dealings in the lower priced issues.

Volume totaled $52,607,000 par value compared with about $43 million in four business days the preceding week.

12 Completions Noted In District

Four wells were completed in Ouachita Parish last week as drillers in the Monroe Oil & Gas District finaled or gauged a total of 12 new wells.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's weekly summary also showed 24 rigs active in eight of the district's 15 northeast Louisiana parishes.

The completions were recorded in seven parishes and included, besides the four in Ouachita, two wells each in Union and Tensas Parishes, as well as one each in Caldwell, Catahoula, Morehouse and Rapides.

LaSalle Parish led in general activity with seven rigs actively drilling or testing, while Tensas and Concordia Parishes had five each. Two rigs were active in both Ouachita and Catahoula and Avoyelles. Grant and Union each had one working unit.

The week's total on new locations slipped moderately below last week's, with only 10 new sites staked in five of the 15 parishes. Cook's breakdown showed three of them in Ouachita Parish, two each in Concordia, LaSalle and Union and one in Catahoula Parish.

Only recompletion during the week was listed as Placid Oil's Wright No. 2, recompleted at 4,038 feet. It is located in section 15-7-3E of LaSalle Parish's Nebo Hemphill Field.

Five wells were plugged and abandoned, leaving a total of 62 sites listed inactive at week's end.

This district manager's report gave this information on completions, active rigs and new locations:

Want Ad Causes Impromptu "Dog-Lover's Convention"

K. L. Raab, of Bothell, Washington, ran a Classified Ad in the Seattle Times offering a hunting dog "free to responsible party."

By the time he returned home from work that evening, dog lovers were already waiting, the phone was ringing constantly and soon the crowd was too large for his yard.

Raab served coffee and finally settled the "doggone" problem by putting all the names in a hat and drawing one lucky one. The crowd dispersed at 10 p.m.

WANT-AD WONDERS...from Work

Want Ad Causes Impromptu "Dog-Lover's Convention"

K. L. Raab, of Bothell, Washington, ran a Classified Ad in the Seattle Times offering a hunting dog "free to responsible party."

By the time he returned home from work that evening, dog lovers were already waiting, the phone was ringing constantly and soon the crowd was too large for his yard.

Raab served coffee and finally settled the "doggone" problem by putting all the names in a hat and drawing one lucky one. The crowd dispersed at 10 p.m.

GUNNY! HEY- IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU...UH...BUT COULD YOU COME BACK LATER. I GOT A LITTLE PROBLEM.

SORRY, SERGEANT... OUR BUSINESS IS URGENT! WE'LL TRY TO MAKE IT AS BRIEF AS POSSIBLE.

GUNNY! GUNNY GUNTHER!

WHAT'S WITH THE PACKED BAGS? GOIN' ON A TRIP?

I'LL TELL YOU ABOUT IT LATER, GUNNY... WHAT'S THE URGENT BUSINESS, MAJOR?

COULD YOU TELL ME WHERE YOU WERE TUESDAY NIGHT, SERGEANT... SAY, BETWEEN EIGHT AND ELEVEN?

MY HUSBAND WAS RIGHT HERE WITH ME, MAJOR. WE WATCHED THE WRESTLING MATCHES. THEY'RE THE ONLY THINGS ON TV THAT MIKE LIKES.

I'M GLAD TO HEAR THAT!

NO MORE THAN I AM! SIT DOWN, PLEASE. I'LL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT IT. THE INFORMATION IS RESTRICTED, HOWEVER... SO KEEP IT THAT WAY!

FIFTEEN MINUTES LATER...

WHEN STEVE LANDS THE CRIPPLED LIGHT PLANE, HE AND MRS. YEER ARE PICKED UP BY THE POLICE

WELL, DUCKY, WE MEET AGAIN! —YOU REMEMBER MINNIE FROM MARBLE ARCH!

YOU LEFT 'ERE WITH THE ESTIMABLE REVEREND YEER, YOUR 'USBAND —AND RETURNED WITH A 'ANDSOME BLOND YANK 'OO IS NOT YOUR SPOUSE!

NOW WE'RE ALL IN THE POKEY TOGETHER! CHUMS-LIKE

YOU CAN'T LOOK AFTER YOUR LITTLE FRIENDS IN THE JUNGLE—AND I CAN'T BE WITH MY SOCIAL SET IN THE TOWN...

MEANWHILE = IN THE PALACE

THE PRIME MINISTER WISHED TO LOOK AT YOU...

AND TO HEAR YOUR STORY! WHY ARE YOU HERE?

I PILOTED MRS. YEER, THE MISSIONARY, BACK TO HER STATION IN THIS COUNTRY...

WITH FULL CLEARANCE AND PERMISSION TO DO SO...

YOU WERE CLEARED TO LAND AT THE NATIONAL AIRPORT...

INSTEAD, YOU FLEW BEYOND! —WHY?

SO MRS. YEER COULD POINT OUT HER MISSION IN THE JUNGLE...

AND YOU, A COLONEL IN THE U.S. AIR FORCE, COULD MAKE A RECONNAISSANCE OVER THIS COUNTRY!

NO RESTRICTED AREAS WERE MENTIONED ON MY ENTRY PERMIT...

IS THERE SOMETHING WHICH THE NEW GOVERNMENT WISHES TO HIDE?

ALL RIGHT! —TAKE HIM AWAY!

YOU SENT FOR ME, DUCKY?

DID YOU LEARN ANYTHING FROM MRS. YEER?

NO — BUT IF I 'AD, YOU'D RUN ME OUTA THE COUNTRY ANYHOW! —SO WHAT'S THE RUB?

THIS SHOULD BE MORE YOUR STYLE... I AM GOING TO DEPORT YOU — AT THE SAME TIME WE RELEASE COL. CANYON...

IF YOU LEARN WHAT HE WAS DOING HERE, YOU WILL BE ALLOWED TO RETURN... BUT WE SHALL HOLD YOUR CHILD AS A HOSTAGE SO YOU WILL NOT GO FAR!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:

For those of you who have lots of laundry to do . . . when you hang clothes on the line take two of the pillowcases and hang them by one of the hems with three clothespins (don't clip them together), leaving the pillowcase gaping open.

When your clothes are dry, take them off the line and put all your little items (which do not have to be ironed) such as socks, etc., in one open pillowcase.

Take everything that needs to be sprinkled and put it all in the other pillowcase.

When you are ready to sprinkle the clothes, all you have to do is dump them from the pillowcase onto a table, sprinkle them quickly, put them back in the pillowcase, roll the entire bundle up, pound it a few times to distribute the water, roll it in a bath towel, and let 'er go . . .

HELOISE

RAW TREATMENT

DEAR HELOISE:

I cut thin, raw carrots, celery and cucumber sticks and place them in a jar and keep this "kiddies' treat" in our refrigerator at all times. I put the jar right where the kids will see it the minute they open the refrigerator.

I give them permission to eat from this jar any time they want to, without asking. In this way I get them to eat vegetables without pressuring them.

These vegetable "treats" never seem to spoil their appetites.

Widower

HOT FUDGE

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who make big batches of fudge once a month or so . . . I find that you can pour part of the fudge into a greased platter and then quickly beat a tablespoon or two of peanut butter into the remaining fudge.

This gives you two different kinds of fudge!

Another suggestion: Pour lots of vanilla flavoring into the first batter. It makes the fudge taste better, and seems to preserve it.

Helpful Harry

NEAT TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you know that if you place an old sponge in the bottom of your bathroom-bowl brush-holder, the bottom of the holder will not get rusty? The sponge catches the excess moisture, which then evaporates.

Mrs. S. W. Bashore

CLEAN SWEEP

DEAR HELOISE:

To keep a new broom in shape . . . simply cut a wide band from the top of an old nylon stocking and slip it down over the broom handle until it covers the upper part of the bristles. This holds the bristles in place. It also cuts down on wear, and I find that tight bristles clean better when banded together by this method.

Manchester

HOT PADS

DEAR HELOISE:

I make hot pads for my kitchen by cutting out the tops of my husband's old felt hats and binding the edges with embroidery or bright-colored tape to match my kitchen color scheme. Real nifty.

Louise M.

BEEF PATTIES

DEAR HELOISE:

For outdoor barbecuing of hamburgers . . . I take ground meat and roll it between waxed sheets of paper with my rolling pin! Flattens the meat perfectly. I remove the top sheet of paper and cut the meat to the desired size with a cup, glass or cookie cutter. It's really fast.

Ruth Euloth

CLEAN CUT

DEAR HELOISE:

I sharpen my scissors by cutting old emery boards with them. Just cut the length of the emery board two or three times. It really works.

Norman Frost

CLEANER CARS

DEAR HELOISE:

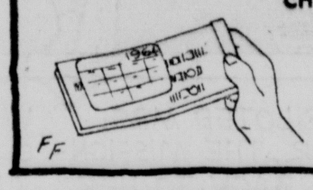
I put a flat rock in the bottom of the litter bag in our car, and this way it stays put.

I then insert a paper bag in the litter bag, turning down the edges over the top of the litter bag—and presto! a flexible waste container that does not tip or spill.

When it comes time for the litter bag to be emptied, the paper bag is easily disposed of.

Mrs. F.

CHECK IT!



DEAR HELOISE:

A small calendar taped to the inside or outside of your checkbook will prevent misdating your checks!

L. T. L.

CHEF'S SPECIAL

DEAR HELOISE:

When making a cake (before measuring the shortening) I always break the eggs into a measuring cup, then pour them into a bowl. This coats the inside of the measuring cup so that the shortening will not stick to the sides and bottom.

B. L.

BABY CARDS

DEAR HELOISE:

About the cutest and most-appreciated gift we received when our second baby came was some calling cards! It thrilled me to know that this little babe, born new to the world, had her name in print already! They are inexpensive, too.

Mother

GARDEN WORK

DEAR HELOISE:

Every man knows he must do some kind of garden work if he has a home, and I've got a wife who really demands it!

As soon as I get through clipping the grass or trimming the hedge, I take a little jar of kerosene, pour some on an old rag, and wipe my tools. I do not wipe the kerosene off. My tools are 20 years old and have not yet rusted.

The kerosene-soaked rag wipes off all the residue from the cutting edge of the tool and puts a coat of film on it which prevents rusting.

I hope other men will try this method.
